CLARENCE DAVIS

'I am Clarence Davis...'

Mike Klein's people

It's a theater performance which has played before thousands during nearly one dozen years on stage. But seldom does the audience exceed one or two persons.

There is one actor. He's an older gentleman whose only props are his notebook and a smile.

He visits some rooms, but strides quickly past others. This mission is highly organized. "I don't want any mistakes around here," he said earlier.

Nobody bothers him much except for an occasional "Good morning, Mr. Davis." They know that he has important business around Northwest Community Hospital.

And there's never enough time.

He was nearly finished on the second floor. Now, Mr. Davis approached yet another room, hesitated momentarily outside, then pushed the door ajar and burst inside.

"GOOD MORNING, I am Clarence Davis, one of the hospital's patient visitors," the gentleman told his audience in a voice crisp and strong. "Just stopped by to see if we're taking good care of you."

One woman reacted quickly and you knew that she was feeling pretty good. "Oh, they're doing their darndest!"

Clarence noticed that perhaps the other woman had been dozing. "Did I wake you up?" he wanted to know.

Not really, the woman responded. She had only been taking a little nap.

Clarence usually asks about the food, which even he describes as "edible," and better on Sundays. He wants to know whether their room has been kept clean.

"I do have one complaint," the first woman said. "They could have given me some more wine yesterday."

She was talking about her dinner wine, of course. It came with Sunday's lobster.

CLARENCE SAID he has been a patient at Northwest and that it helps to know the staff. That's how he got extra wine once without even asking.

"In fact, two doctors told me I needed the wine," Clarence told the listening women. "That's the kind of doctors I like!"

These discussions are usually the same. How's the food? . . . Keeping the place clean? . . . Hope you get well and hurry home.

But you are continually impressed with his sincerity.

Clarence walked a bit further down the hallway, then veered into a room where the woman was staring out the second floor window.

"Good morning. I am Clarence Davis. . ."

They talked a few minutes. All the regular topics were covered. She seemed distraught. There were many reasons.

THE WOMAN TOLD Clarence that her husband has a college degree but cannot find satisfactory employment.

Clarence walked back into the hallway shaking his head. "Her husband's making $3 per hour and supporting three children." He said no more.

Sometimes, the stories are sadder

Thoroughbreds won't run July 4 at race track

Arlington Park Race Track's request for Sunday racing on July 4 has been rejected by the Arlington Heights Village Board because trusttes feared a precedent for future Sunday racing would be set.

Thomas Rivera, a racetrack official, told the board Monday the special racing date was being requested because of the nation's Bicentennial celebration and because it is the 50th season of racing at the track.

New state racing laws permit Sunday racing with the permission of the municipality in which the track is located.

Plans to run the American Derby on July 4 will now have to be abandoned. Rivera said track officials already had begun talking with CBS about televising the race nationally.

"We have grouped all of our promotions and advertising around this special celebration," Rivera said. Arlington Park also was planning to have a special Bicentennial celebration at the park that day, with bands and picnic areas, he said.

RIVERA SAID the track probably would have lost money with the proposed July 4 racing. The Village of Arlington Heights would have received more than $3,500 that day with its new 10 cent head tax on each paid admission, he said.

River's request for racing on July 4 was denied in a somewhat unorthodox manner. The board first voted 5-4 against a motion to deny the request, then voted 5-4 against tabling the matter and finally voted 5-4 against approving the request. The deciding vote was cast by Trustee Alfred Barboro Jr., who was sworn in immediately prior to Monday's meeting.

Barboro voted against denying the park's request, but also voted against approving the request on the final motion.

Also voting against approving the request were Madeline Schroeder, Richard Durava, David Griffin and Frank Palmatier.

AUGUST BETTMAN, O.V. Anderson, Robert Miller and Village Pres. James T. Ryan voted to approve the request.

Three residents from the Ridge Park-Sherwood subdivisions near the racetrack objected to the request for one day of Sunday racing because of the heavy traffic generated by the track and because of the precedent it might set for future Sunday racing.

Bettman argued in favor of the racetrack's request, saying "Arlington Heights is getting a reputation of being against everything."

Request for four more firemen vetoed in budget

A request from Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden for four additional firemen has been rejected in the 1976-77 budget proposed by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

The village board's finance committee will conduct a hearing tonight on the proposed budgets for the fire and public works department.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The public works department's budget shows a decrease of two employes with the elimination of a foreman and a buildings repairman.

Last week during a hearing on the proposed police department budget it was learned Hanson had rejected requests for 11 additional patrolmen and five more cars.

The proposed budget does call for the purchase of a new aerial fire truck, which Hayden made a plea for at budget hearings last year. Purchase of the new truck was approved by the village board in June. Federal revenue sharing funds will be used to purchase the $158,000 vehicle.

Patty accuses SLA of 2 closet 'rapes'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst told the jury at her trial Tuesday two of the male kidnapers, Donald Defreeze and Willie Wolfe, forced her into "sexual intercourse" in a tiny closet as an introduction into the ways of the terrorist cult.

Gulping for breath and her voice quavering, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst said one of the woman members of the Symbionese Liberation Army told her it was time for her to "know what it was like being in the ceil."

"She told me I was going to sleep with Willie Wolfe, so I did," Miss Hearst said.

On the witness stand for a second day, Miss Hearst said she was told over and over that she was going to be killed and was forced to make a tape recording in which she berated her parents, saying they didn't care whether she was freed or not.

Defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey suddenly introduced the subject of her virtual rape about a month after her kidnaping while she was kept bound and blindfolded in the closet in the house where she was held.

Ford tells major intelligence reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Tuesday placed all intelligence operations under the management of CIA director George Bush, and created an independent, three-man White House board to safeguard against intelligence-gathering abuses.

Announcing a series of major reforms at the outset of a nationally broadcast news conference at the White House, the President asked Congress to outlaw assassination attempts by U.S. intelligence agencies against foreign heads of state and to make it a federal crime for agency employes to leak secret information.

Ford also said he was issuing a comprehensive set of legally binding guidelines intended to provide "stringent protections for the rights of American citizens" against illegal domestic intelligence activities.

Acting after months of widespread allegations of illegal or questionable CIA activities in Congress and the press, the President made clear he would retain ultimate control for U.S intelligence gathering.

AS ADMINISTRATIVE chief of the intelligence community, Bush will carry out policy set only by the National Security Council

Elk Grove GOP backs Thompson

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization has endorsed gubernatorial candidate James Thompson and lieutenant governor candidate David O'Neal in the March 16 primary. The organization endorsed Thompson unanimously and O'Neal with just two dissenting votes, said Elk Grove Committeeman Carl Hansen. Thompson, the former U.S. attorney, is running against Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper. O'Neal, St. Clair County sheriff, is running against Joan Anderson, a commissioner for the Metropolitan Sanitary District. The Elk Grove organization also agreed to make no endorsement in the race between President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the primary.

Village to try to get on TV show

Buffalo Grove, undaunted by the failure of another Northwest suburb's lack of success, may try to give the village national exposure on a televised game show. Last week Palatine officials considered applying for a chance to appear on the ABC-TV network's "Almost Anything Goes" game show, but found out that the village's 28,000 population put it well above the show's 20,000 limit. In the show, neighboring villages compete for the right to meet in a regional championship. Buffalo Grove Trustee John Marienthal has applied to the show's producers and now needs support from local civic groups. "I thought it would be a fantastic way to bring the community together and put Buffalo Grove on the map," Marienthal said. If Marienthal is successful, some of Buffalo Grove's 18,400 residents may be powdering their noses for the television camera by summer.

Budget cuts asked for hospitals

The Cook County Hospital governing commission budget ought to be cut by $8 million to $10 million in order to limit the amount of property tax increase required to support the hospitals, Cook County Comr. Mary McDonald said Tuesday. Mrs. McDonald said she and other suburban Republican commissioners intend to submit proposals to cut the hospital commission's $172 million budget when the budget is submitted for adoption today. The budget contains a request for a property tax increase of 6.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Mrs. McDonald, a persistent critic of spending by the hospital commission, said she expects to see cuts that will decrease, but not eliminate, the property tax increase needed to support the budget. The county board legally only has the power to cut the budget total, but cannot specify what areas of the budget must be cut.

Gene Leonard

GOP worker named to RTA

Bremen Township GOP Committeeman Gene Leonard Tuesday was appointed by the suburban Cook County Commissioners to the Regional Transportation Authority Board.

The approval came despite the objections of the president of the Ripon Society, a Republican policy-making organization.

The six suburban commissioners, all Republicans, approved the appointment of Lenard with two abstentions after hearing Peter Baugher, president of the Chicago Ripon Society, ask that they hold hearings to interview candidates for the RTA post.

Leonard will replace Joseph Tecson, who was recently appointed by the suburban commissioners to replace Comr. Floyd Fulle on the Cook County County Board. Leonard was one of 30 candidates in addition to Tecson who interviewed for the county board post.

Leonard was opposed by a number of GOP leaders, including former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, as unqualified for the county board. Recently Ogilvie said he favored another candidate for the RTA.

UNDER LAW THE suburban commissioners have the power to appoint the two RTA board members from the Cook County suburbs. Four members of the board are appointed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and two others are appointed by the five counties surrounding Cook.

Baugher said appointing Leonard to the RTA board without further public hearings "demonstrates a regrettable disregard for high-quality government, resembling the poor politics of the Chicago political machine which Republicans have deplored for years."

After the commissioners approved the appointment, Comr. Harold Tyrrell, of LaGrange Park, one of the four who voted in favor of Leonard, said Baugher's statement was "pretty damn arrogant," adding Leonard will be a good RTA board member because "we need people who are strong representatives for the people of Cook County."

Tecson and Comr. Mary McDonald both abstained from voting on Leonard's appointment. Mrs. McDonald is a known opponent of Leonard both for the county board post and for the RTA. Tecson said his decision to abstain had nothing to do with Leonard's qualifications for the job.

SATELLITE PHOTO taken at noon Tuesday shows layered clouds over most of New England and also over the Plains from Colorado to Minnesota. A band of rather dense cloudiness, with showers and thunderstorms, stretches from central Texas across Arkansas to Kentucky. Elsewhere in the Southeast, low clouds are widespread. In the Midwest, some high clouds overlie a blanket of dense fog and low stratus clouds. A band of dense clouds along the West Coast is associated with an advancing frontal system.

ABA gives lawyers permission to advertise prices

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The American Bar Association Tuesday for the first time in its history authorized lawyers to advertise limited price and other information in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

The change in the ABA Canon of Ethics, first passed in 1908, left in doubt whether lawyers could cooperate with consumer groups publishing a directory of services and charges, the subject of a law suit by Consumers Union pending in federal court in Virginia.

But on a voice vote, after three hours of debate, the canon was changed to permit publication of a lawyer's standard fee for an initial consulation in the yellow pages of the telephone book and in "reputable law lists or legal directories."

Lawyers were also allowed to advertise their office hours, legal education, credit terms and fields of concentration.

The action came in response to a Supreme Court ruling last June removing antitrust protection from the legal profession.

Ironically, the Reuben H. Donnelly Co., publishers of the yellow pages in much of the nation, said it does not accept specific price advertising. Presumably, the same restriction would apply to legal advertising. Other information such as credit terms could be advertised.

Changes approved by the 340 member House of Delegates must be separately considered by state bar associations before they are effective. State bars are free to accept or reject the national ABA's recommenations.

Left unclear was whether lawyers ethically could cooperate with organizations such as Consumer Union in publishing directories which are not approved by local or state bar associations.

An amendment introduced by Texas delegate Leroy Jeffers, a 1977 candidate for ABA president, deleted specific authorizafion for publication of consultant fees by "bonafide consumers' organizations." The amendment was approved 153 to 118.

But ABA President Lawrence E. Walsh told reporters after the vote he believed lawyers could cooperate with consumer groups if the legal directory included only information authorized by the new canon.

Lewis Van Dusen, a Philadelphia lawyer who chaired the committee reviewing advertising guidelines, disagreed. He suggested that a consumer legal guide must obtain ABA approval, costing $750, before it could enlist the cooperation of lawyers.

The Consumers Union suit charges that First Amendment rights of consumers were offended by old rules forbidding any advertising of price information. Since ABA officials were themselves unclear about the results of Tuesday's vote, it was uncertain whether the new canon would eliminate the need for further court action in the Consumers Union case.

A three-judge court is scheduled to hear further arguments in the case March 15.

you were getting it on with someone?" Bailey asked.

"Yes."

"Who was the woman?"

"Angela Atwood."

She said the woman told her the first one would be Wolfe, who Miss Hearst in one of her later tapes described as the only true love of her life.

"Did she say it was a custom of the SLA?"

"Yes, she said they wanted me to know more what it was like being in the cell with them. She said everyone had to take care of the needs of other people. She said that even though I was in the closet I should know more of this."

Miss Hearst said that same night Wolfe came into the closet.

"Was your blindfold removed?" Bailey asked.

"Yes."

"What happened next?"

"He came in the closet and closed the door, and . . ."

"Did he make you like down on the floor?"

"Yes."

"Then what happened?"

"We had sexual intercourse." Miss Hearst said that about a week later Defreeze, the "Field Marshal General Cinque" of the SLA, a black escaped convict, came into the closet.

"Did you do the same thing?"

"Yes."

A short time later, she said the gang moved her to another apartment.

She said she was put in a garbage can, and it was tied up and dumped into the back of a car.

"It seemed like I was in there 45 minutes or an hour," she said. "They took me out and started carrying me inside the garbage can. They dropped it a couple of times. When I got out, I couldn't stand because my legs had gone to sleep because of the position in the garbage can."

Miss Hearst said she stayed in another closet in the second location for a few weeks, and then she was let out and the blindfold removed.

"And that's when I knew they were going to rob something, and Cinque said they were gong to rob a bank."

She said Cinque told her that "I'd be going inside the bank."

"What were your feelings?"

"I just couldn't believe they really were going to do it."

Cinque made sure there were cameras in the bank, she said. Bailey asked her why cameras were important.

"Because it would take a picture of me that everyone would know I robbed a bank," she said.

Earlier Miss Hearst testified her SLA captors called themselves part of a nationwide revolutionary "Third World movement for poor people, especially pimps and prostitutes."

Occasionally dabbing at her eyes and nose with a handkerchief, Miss Hearst described life with the SLA terrorists.

She said she was told by her captors the SLA consisted of revolutionary groups spread across the country "which ordered the combat unit I was with to kidnap me."

Their aim, she said, was to create violence so that the government would retaliate with violence, causing the people to rise up in support of the SLA.

"It was a Third World movement for poor people, especially pimps and prostitutes," she testified.

Except for the leader, Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, the band consisted of whites, but "they said whites couldn't be trusted because they were sellouts historically."

She said the terrorists felt the only way to trust whites was if they proved they were willing to die.

Miss Hearst earlier listened on the witness stand with expressionless face as a jury heard a tape recording in which she turned on her parents and for the first time praised her kidnapers.

In another section of the tape made during the Hearst free food giveaway program in March 1974, which the SLA had demanded as ransom a month after her kidnaping, Miss Hearst berated her father for not caring enough for her to give more than $2 million.

France extends recognition to Angola Reds

The Communist-backed faction in Angola followed its battlefield victory with a diplomatic blitzkrieg Tuesday with western nations racing to recognize it as the first native Angolan government despite pleas for caution by the United states. France became the first Western nation to extend diplomatic recognition to the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola as the Angolan People's Republic. Britain and Holland said they would follow suit soon. The rest of the Common Market was expected to to likewise.

Church hits Ford at Conference of Jewry

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, opened the World Conference on Soviet Jewry in Brussels Tuesday by accusing President Ford of abandoning America ideals by not pressuring the Kremlin to free Jews who want to leave Russia. Church, a potential Democratic candidate for president, also said the United States should keep sending arms to Israel and that Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should demand "more humane treatment of Soviet Jews."

Latin America reassured by Kissinger

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger reassured Latin America Tuesday of its special place in Washington's foreign policy and proposed a program seeking to increase economic cooperation to lessen political frictions. "It is time that all of us in the hemisphere put aside slogans and turn from rhetoric to resolve," Kissinger said in a major policy speech.

Later in the day Kissinger called Cuban military intervention in Angola "unacceptable" and warned that America "will not stand idly by" if Havana sends troops to other countries.

headed by the President.

The special White House board created to report on intelligence agency abuses will be headed by Undersecretary of State Robert D. Murphy, former chief of secret diplomatic operations in World War II, and also will include former Army Sec. Stephen Ailes and economist Leo Cherne.

Ford said it was important to have a strong intelligence agency and as President, "I will not be a party to the dismantling of the CIA and the other intelligence agencies."

Pressed further about Bush's qualifications, Ford said, "I think he has the intelligence to do the job and the experience in foreign policy."

In the end, Ford said, "the final and ultimate reponsibility falls on the shoulders of the President." Ford said he would take that responsibility.

ASKED WHETHER placing responsibility for the CIA in the White House might not lead to abuses, Ford said, "I can assure you it (the responsibility) will be handled in the most appropriate way."

Regarding the elections in November, Ford said he believed that "anyone to the right of me cannot win the election." He said he was not referring specifically to Ronald Reagan in that statement — that there are candidates of both parties philosophically to the right of him.

The President cited two main issues on which he differs with the former California governor: Social Security and the Reagan plan to trim federal spending by $90 billion.

Asked how he feels he will do in the New Hampshire and Florida primaries, Ford replied: "I think we'll do well in both."

"I WAS GREATLY encouraged by the two days I have just spent in Florida," the President said. "The crowds were large and enthusiastic and I was encouraged by that."

As for the intelligence agencies, Ford said, one of his recommendations is for the attorney general to work with Congress for a new law under which the attorney general would have to get court authority for electronic surveillance, even in cases of national security.

He noted that the attorney general does not currently need that authority.

The President said he thought congressional leaks of classified material provided by the administration was "a very serious matter." This was an obvious reference to the House Intelligence Committee report, which the full House voted to keep secret but most of which was published recently in the Village Voice.

Home-rule powers tested, budget planning at stake

Suit seeks return of suburbs' veto at county board

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multi-million dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a two-thirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the board.

Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the two-thirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

A spoksman for County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the county "will defend the legality of our action."

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he said.

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Happy 89th birthday, Arlington!

by JOE SWICKARD

Happy Birthday, Arlington Heights. As a village, you're now 89 years old.

It was on this date back in 1887 when the village fathers started taking on airs and changed the name of the place from Dunton (after its founder) to the more "high-toned" Arlington Heights. The incorporation vote was 126 to 34, and the town was on its way.

In the ensuing 89 years, some things just don't change in Arlington Heights.

FOR EXAMPLE, streetlights were a big topic in the community's early official deliberations. In 1893 the first 50 lamps (fed with gasoline) were installed, and it wasn't long before there were complaints.

Because there wasn't a Scarsdale yet, the controversy centered around people who wanted more street lights. They were soon appeased with the addition of 75 more fixtures around the town.

Even this week, a village board committee will meet to wrangle with the street lighting question in Scarsdale.

An event in 1902 was to pave the way for future heated village board debates. That was the year the first concrete sidewalk was poured in town.

The last village election was highlighted with spirited debates on what areas of the village should have the sidewalks and who should pay for them.

WATER PROBLEMS are nothing new to Arlington Heights, either. Consider the newspaper account of 1902: "The engineer on the Arlington Heights waterworks must be a blunderbluss. The reservoir caved in Wednesday night."

Today, the village bans lawn sprinkling on certain summer days, and the village and other municipalities are trying to find a way to bring Lake Michigan water to the area.

During the winter of 1893-94, residents banded together to augment the three-man police force. They formed the Citizens Protective League.

In the winter of 1975-76, residents are being asked by the police to join the Neighborhood Watch program designed to keep an eye on vandals, burglars and rowdies.

There was imaginative municipal financing throughout the village's history. But some of the methods are not exactly endorsed procedures today.

IN 1937 IT WAS revealed the village got a cut of the take from the local slot machine racket. The officials didn't line their pockets, though.

Instead they bought a new police squad car, 500 feet of fire hose and put a new roof on the village bandstand.

It is unlikely that source of revenue will be suggested during the current hearings on the municipal budget.

If some malcontents are still looking for the heights of Arlington Heights, they can reread the fulsome praise that greeted the renaming 89 years ago.

Arlington Heights, it was noted, "is an especially appropriate one, for it is located on high ground . . . and its residents enjoy the full benefits of the pure health-giving air of the country, unvitiated by swamps and vapors."

After 89 years, the town is still unvitiated by those vapors and and still a nice place to live.

exactly as it is. Maybe they should just pull up shop and go elsewhere," Bettman said. "If they can put Arlington Heights on the map for one day, great. We can use some good publicity.

"NOW THAT WE got them (annexed), we want to slap their wrists everytime they ask for something. This should not be just an Arlington Park project; it could be an Arlington Heights project," said Bettman, who added that he is against Sunday racing at any other time.

Mrs. Schroeder said she didn't "equate a horse race with being patriotic. Citizens that live in that area are entitled to that one day off," she said. "Maybe we should consider having a race in honor of the Easter bunny, too, and call it the Bunny Hop," Griffin said. "The track will survive without this. The American Derby can be run as easily on July 3," he said.

In a final plea for approval of the request, Rivera said that as a resident of the area, he found it "strange to defend myself as a corporate pirate of some sort."

Home-rule powers tested, budget planning at stake

Suit seeks return of suburbs' veto at county board

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multi-million dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a two-thirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the board.

Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the two-thirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

A spoksman for County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the county "will defend the legality of our action."

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he said.

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Happy 89th birthday, Arlington!

by JOE SWICKARD

Happy Birthday, Arlington Heights. As a village, you're now 89 years old.

It was on this date back in 1887 when the village fathers started taking on airs and changed the name of the place from Dunton (after its founder) to the more "high-toned" Arlington Heights. The incorporation vote was 126 to 34, and the town was on its way.

In the ensuing 89 years, some things just don't change in Arlington Heights.

FOR EXAMPLE, streetlights were a big topic in the community's early official deliberations. In 1893 the first 50 lamps (fed with gasoline) were installed, and it wasn't long before there were complaints.

Because there wasn't a Scarsdale yet, the controversy centered around people who wanted more street lights. They were soon appeased with the addition of 75 more fixtures around the town.

Even this week, a village board committee will meet to wrangle with the street lighting question in Scarsdale.

An event in 1902 was to pave the way for future heated village board debates. That was the year the first concrete sidewalk was poured in town.

The last village election was highlighted with spirited debates on what areas of the village should have the sidewalks and who should pay for them.

WATER PROBLEMS are nothing new to Arlington Heights, either. Consider the newspaper account of 1902: "The engineer on the Arlington Heights waterworks must be a blunderbluss. The reservoir caved in Wednesday night."

Overpass upgrade for Rte. 72

A $4.5 million overpass improvement for Ill. Rte. 72 at the Northwest Tollway was announced Tuesday by Gov. Daniel Walker as part of a $59 million highway construction program.

The governor said the program calls for repairing or rebuilding more than 100 miles of roads, streets and highways, and the improvement of numerous bridges and intersections.

Walker said the program will be in addition to the area's share of regular road programs which will be announced in June.

The Ill. Rte. 72 overpass improvement will widen the bridge over the tollway from two lanes to four lanes, Walker said.

TWO OTHER AREA projects included in the program are $750,000 for improvement of the intersection of Irving Park and Barrington roads and $820,000 for improvement of Irving Park and Rohlwing roads in Schaumburg Township.

While some of the work will be started immediately, major construction projects will not begin until July.

"I am proposing that we start this summer to cut away at the backlog of repairs on neglected streets, some of which are 40 years old. These renovations must be undertaken now if we are to have quality transportation in the metropolitan Chicago area," Walker said.

In addition to the local improvements, Walker also announced plans to spend $8.5 million to resurface, widen and improve intersections along Cicero Avenue in Chicago.

WALKER AIDES said Monday the project had no connection with the Walker feud with Mayor Richard J. Daley over construction of the Crosstown Expressway, which closely parallels Cicero Avenue.

Funds for the project will come from a special state bond issue, which was to have been in a joint Chicago-Illinois road project. However, Walker aides said Chicago failed to meet all of its obligations in the project.

The project also will involve construction of bus turnout lanes at a number of locations, to allow other vehicles to move past buses stopping to load or unload passengers, and the construction of 100 bus shelters.

Crane urges cuts in U.N. support

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has told a congressional committee the United States should cut its payments to the United Nations from 26 per cent to slightly more than 5 per cent of the cost of operation.

Crane's comments came during a subcommittee hearing of the U. S. House International Relations Committee. He said the proposal would save the U. S. about $350 million annually.

Crane has pushed for a U. S.-backed change in the funding procedures for the United Nations since 1971.

In his testimony, Crane noted while the balance of power in the United Nations has shifted dramatically, the burden of financial support has remained on the same shoulders.

"Such a situation is an invitation to political demagoguery and violation of the U. N. charter," the congressman said. He cited the U. N. resolution which branded Zionism as a form of racism and the expulsion of Nationalist China as examples.

Under the payment formula proposed by Crane, third world "nonaligned countries" would pay 20 per cent of the U. N. budget. Such countries now pay only about 3 per cent of the cost.

The cost to China and India also would increase.

"Such a change in the assessment formula is badly needed and long overdue. By taking the first step and unilaterally reducing our contributions to 5.6 per cent, we would not only save the taxpayers money, but we would put the U. N. on notice, without wrecking it or withdrawing from it, that it cannot expect to command adequate financial support unless it exercises more discretion and acts with a greater sense of responsibility," Crane said.

Political briefs

Township Democratic Organization voted to endorse Walker's opponent, Sec. of State Michael Howlett, for governor in the March 16 primary.

Lynn Williams, Democratic Townshiip committeeman, said the group voted 51-11 to back Howlett over Walker.

He said members of the organization cited "disappointment with the Walker administration" as a major reason for backing Howlett.

Only Illinois Atty. General Ronald Stackler, who is running with Walker and seeking the nomination for attorney general, managed to obtain a plurality over a member of the regular Democratic ticket.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon was endorsed over State Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, in the race for secretary of state, and Michael Bakalis was backed over Roland Burris in the contest for comptroller.

Williams said the group voted 51-11 to endorse Howlett. He said at least 50 votes were needed for a candidate before the group would formally endorse.

The organization made no endorsements in the race between Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and Joanne Alter, where the vote was 40-26 for lieutenant governor; State Sen. Cecil Partee and Ronald Stackler, where the vote was 17-44 for attorney general; or between former Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan and Donald Page Moore, where the vote was 31-38, for Cook County State's Attorney.

Dems dinner-dance Friday

The Wheeling Township Democratic Organization dinner dance will be held Friday at Algauer's Restaurant in Northbrook.

Sec. of State Michael Howelett will be the featured speaker at the event. Howlett is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, State Treasurer Alan Dixon and former Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan also will attend the affair.

For Shutter Bugs

by Ed Landwehr

In case you don't know, shutter bugs are those people who spend more then the average time with cameras. We came across one during a TV service job; he was snapping pictures from the television screen, and we learned a bit about it.

Shoot your camera at shutter speeds of about 1/25th seconds. This speed seems to synchronize best with the TV tube scanning action. Keep reflections off the glass and block any strong light from the sides and top. Using a tripod or a firm base will get best results with the wider lens openings. Keep a record of your shots so you'll know which film does best.

Of course, your TV picture should be clear and bright, and we sneak in the commercial that a phone call to 255-0700 gets prompt service from Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Part of $59 million state plan

Overpass upgrade for Rte. 72

A $4.5 million overpass improvement for Ill. Rte. 72 at the Northwest Tollway was announced Tuesday by Gov. Daniel Walker as part of a $59 million highway construction program.

The governor said the program calls for repairing or rebuilding more than 100 miles of roads, streets and highways, and the improvement of numerous bridges and intersections.

Walker said the program will be in addition to the area's share of regular road programs which will be announced in June.

The Ill. Rte. 72 overpass improvement will widen the bridge over the tollway from two lanes to four lanes, Walker said.

TWO OTHER AREA projects included in the program are $750,000 for improvement of the intersection of Irving Park and Barrington roads and $820,000 for improvement of Irving Park and Rohlwing roads in Schaumburg Township.

While some of the work will be started immediately, major construction projects will not begin until July.

"I am proposing that we start this summer to cut away at the backlog of repairs on neglected streets, some of which are 40 years old. These renovations must be undertaken now if we are to have quality transportation in the metropolitan Chicago area, Walker said.

In addition to the local improvements, Walker also announced plans to spend $8.5 million to resurface, widen and improve intersections along Cicero Avenue in Chicago.

WALKER AIDES said Monday the project had no connection with the Walker feud with Mayor Richard J. Daley over construction of the Crosstown Expressway, which closely parallels Cicero Avenue.

Funds for the project will come from a special state bond issue, which was to have been in a joint Chicago-Illinois road project. However, Walker aides said Chicago failed to meet all of its obligations in the project.

The project also will involve construction of bus turnout lanes at a number of locations, to allow other vehicles to move past buses stopping to load or unload passengers, and the construction of 100 bus shelters.

Crane urges cuts in U.N. support

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has told a congressional committee the United States should cut its payments to the United Nations from 26 per cent to slightly more than 5 per cent of the cost of operation.

Crane's comments came during a subcommittee hearing of the U. S. House International Relations Committee. He said the proposal would save the U. S. about $350 million annually.

Crane has pushed for a U. S.-backed change in the funding procedures for the United Nations since 1971.

In his testimony, Crane noted while the balance of power in the United Nations has shifted dramatically, the burden of financial support has remained on the same shoulders.

"Such a situation is an invitation to political demagoguery and violation of the U. N. charter," the congressman said. He cited the U. N. resolution which branded Zionism as a form of racism and the expulsion of Nationalist China as examples.

Under the payment formula proposed by Crane, third world "nonaligned countries" would pay 20 per cent of the U. N. budget. Such countries now pay only about 3 per cent of the cost.

The cost to China and India also would increase.

"Such a change in the assessment formula is badly needed and long overdue. By taking the first step and unilaterally reducing our contributions to 5.6 per cent, we would not only save the taxpayers money, but we would put the U. N. on notice, without wrecking it or withdrawing from it, that it cannot expect to command adequate financial support unless it exercises more discretion and acts with a greater sense of responsibility," Crane said.

Township Democratic Organization voted to endorse Walker's opponent, Sec. of State Michael Howlett, for governor in the March 16 primary.

Lynn Williams, Democratic Township committeeman, said the group voted 51-11 to back Howlett over Walker.

He said members of the organization cited "disappointment with the Walker administration" as a major reason for backing Howlett.

Only Illinois Atty. General Ronald Stackler, who is running with Walker and seeking the nomination for attorney general, managed to obtain a plurality over a member of the regular Democratic ticket.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon was endorsed over State Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, in the race for secretary of state, and Michael Bakalis was backed over Roland Burris in the contest for comptroller.

Williams said the group voted 51-11 to endorse Howlett. He said at least 50 votes were needed for a candidate before the group would formally endorse.

The organization made no endorsements in the race between Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and Joanne Alter, where the vote was 40-26 for lieutenant governor; State Sen. Cecil Partee and Ronald Stackler, where the vote was 17-44 for attorney general; or between former Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan and Donald Page Moore, where the vote was 31-38, for Cook County State's Attorney.

Dems dinner-dance Friday

The Wheeling Township Democratic Organization dinner dance will be held Friday at Algauer's Restaurant in Northbrook.

Sec. of State Michael Howelett will be the featured speaker at the event. Howlett is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, State Treasurer Alan Dixon and former Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan also will attend the affair.

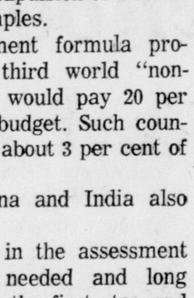
For Shutter Bugs



by Ed Landwehr

In case you don't know, shutter bugs are those people who spend more then the average time with cameras. We came across one during a TV service job; he was snapping pictures from the television screen, and we learned a bit about it.

Shoot your camera at shutter speeds of about 1/25th seconds. This speed seems to synchronize best with the TV tube scanning action. Keep reflections off the glass and block any strong light from the sides and top. Using a tripod or a firm base will get best results with the wider lens openings. Keep a record of your shots so you'll know which film does best.

Of course, your TV picture should be clear and bright, and we sneak in the commercial that a phone call to 255-0700 gets prompt service from Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

The way we see it

We support deficit plans

A growing number of suburban school districts are forecasting million dollar deficits. With that glum prospect in mind, boards of education are beginning to wrestle with major decisions involving tax hikes, school closings and program cutbacks.

The plight of many suburban school districts, under the pressure of declining enrollment and reduced state aid, is a long-term problem that will not be remedied easily.

The future includes a projected $3.9 million deficit in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 by 1984; bankruptcy in River Trails Dist. 26 by 1977; a $1 million deficit next year in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21; and more than $2 million deficits in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. The pattern extends to nearly every district in the Northwest suburbs.

One district, East Maine Dist. 63, has taken measures already to prevent an estimated $500,000 deficit next year. It's a step others may wish to consider.

Dist. 63, which serves the unincorporated portion of Maine Township, began discussing its bleak financial future last August. By January, board members had enrollment and demographic studies, budget studies and a list of options to increase revenue and decrease spending.

Last week the Dist. 63 board informally agreed on about $800,000 in budget cuts ranging from increasing book rental and lunch fees to decreasing teaching, custodial and secretarial staffs.

The initial cuts will prevent a deficit next year, and the board is already discussing holding a tax rate increase referendum, closing schools and selling its vacant property to prevent future money problems.

Dist. 63 is far ahead of many Northwest suburban school districts that are just now seeking solutions to their September financial woes. It is an example of a farsighted board and administration and good planning.

(by United Press International)

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 18, the 49th day of 1976 with 317 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and the last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American philanthropist George Peabody was born Feb. 18, 1795.

On this day in history:

• In 1861, Jefferson Davis was sworn into office as president of the Confederate States of America at Montgomery, Ala.

• In 1930, the planet Pluto was discovered by astronomer Clyde Tom Baugh at the Lovell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz.

• In 1967, nuclear physicist Robert Oppenheimer died at the age of 62. He played a key role in development of the atomic bomb.

• In 1969, six persons were wounded when Arab terrorists attacked an Israeli airliner in Zurich, Switzerland.

A thought for the day: Thomas Jefferson said, "I hold . . . that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, and as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical."

She endorses year-round school

Unfortunately, the referendum for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 went down in defeat and we must pick ourselves up, dust ourselves off and rethink our plans and procedures. There is only so much money any district has for educating their children.

If we spend it on new buildings we don't have it for teachers salaries, or other educational fund and operational and maintenance fund programs. Obviously, Dist. 54 has already spent too much for new schools and alternate plans for further use of the existing buildings have not been explored or examined to any degree.

Now, in this time of belt tightening, something has to give. The taxpayer is getting it from all sides and we are rethinking the cost of state and federal aid to our schools. These additional moneys do not necessarily increase academic achievement. Other alternatives are needed.

Right now, there are two million children in 168 districts using their schools more fully, on the 12-month basis. Why must we keep on building schools when they are used only nine months and only 2,600 out of 17,000 students in our district go to summer school?

Dist. 54 has overbuilt! Too much tax money has gone into new schools and their supplies. Now drastic measures must be taken to trim back program areas because our board and administrators have not read the writing on the wall.

What can be gained by a change in our school calendar? One-third more space in our schools, shorter review times than those necessary under a 12-week summer, more money for teachers choosing to work more days a school year, more time for lesson planning and material gathering as there are periodic breaks in the calendar, more sharing of facilities and materials by the schools, library and park districts and more of an individualized program for our children as the kindergarteners start four times a year on their birthdays and students can be accelerated or retained one-quarter year according to need.

Why has Dist. 54 not looked into the matter more purposefully?

Fact 'lack' hit

It's unfortunate that The Herald regards Betty Ford's views favoring intrauterine murder as "refreshing." Actually, it takes no talent to choose abortion's easy solution; what Americans have a right to expect (and are not receiving) from our First Lady is the example of compassion, responsibility and personal morality, and the courage to find alternatives to the slaughter of the innocent.

Betty believes that legal abortion is "great" because it gives the poor as much opportunity to kill their young as the rich. Using her demented logic, should we therefore supply heroin and hunting rifles to the poor, because the wealthy can afford these luxuries?

The Herald may appreciate Betty's "candor" because her views coincide with its editorial policy. But if "truth" were really important to The Herald, it would have long ago published photos of aborted infants and in-depth interviews with pro-life leaders, so that readers could be accurately informed on this important issue. Instead, The Herald — and Betty — continue their refrain: "Our minds are made up. Don't confuse us with the facts."

An error corrected

In response to an article on the front page of The Herald dated Feb. 13, a point was made that one of the five finalists for Schaumburg's Outstanding Young Woman (Nancy Larson) has not been a member of Volunteers In Action since November.

As I understand the competition, it is for all things done during the calendar year 1975. So, even if she hasn't been a member since November, it appears that she should and has been credited for her time spent in 1975 up to November. Unless that point is made, people would think she was judged improperly.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Feb. 13 story was an attempt to correct an earlier story, based on erroneous information, which indicated Mrs. Larson was currently president of the association. A straightforward correction should have been printed on an inside page, listing the name of the current president. The editor regrets compounding the error.

A conflict is resolved as Hug quits park post

Charles Hug, Des Plaines city attorney, announced last week that he will resign from his post as attorney for the Des Plaines Park District — a move that was long overdue.

Hug held the park district job before being selected city attorney and consistently said he would resign should his double work load become a conflict of interest.

Last week, after the city and park district were named as defendants in a lawsuit, Hug stepped down from the park district post.

Although we don't question Hug's integrity, we do feel he was ignoring a continuing conflict by being employed by two governing bodies that frequently deal with one another. Prior to the lawsuit, Hug faced another conflict when city officials were negotiating with the park district over acquiring land.

Hug's decision was a good one and we can only add that it is about time. With his second job out of the way, Hug can now give his full attention to the full-time job with the city.

Some tuition necessary in college education

No one likes to pay tuition for the privilege of going to college, but paying a reasonable amount of tuition to attend a state college or university is inevitable if education is to continue to thrive in Illinois.

Gov. Walker, however, apparently doesn't think so. Last week he announced he would reject tuition increases proposed last month for state universities.

At stake is an undergraduate tuition hike of $60 a year and graduate tuition of $90 a year. Walker argues that the tuition increases would be especially painful to middle income families.

But Walker should consider the alternatives: another undesirable cutback in programs or a tax increase, in which all of us will have to pay more to support public higher education.

As Walker has promised to slash tuition, he's also slashed in the past other forms of financial support for higher education. With such budget-cutting, Illinois' colleges and universities have found themselves trapped with no other way to raise needed funds. We think a moderate tuition increase is a reasonable alternative — and we urge the governor to change his mind and support it.

Quality of life a target

ACTION still at work

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA) — Around the conference table, where the state directors of Region IX of ACTION are holding their budget meeting, Jess Sixkiller is known as the "Outhouse King."

Jess's territory is the state of Arizona, and every time he cruises through the south part of Tucson, a look of satisfaction softens his dark Indian face. Because of him and his volunteers in the federally sponsored program, a ramshackle house on a potholed street at least has indoor plumbing.

"We have just now completed renovating 150 outhouses," he says proudly, "in south Tucson. We designed modern outhouses and put in plumbing and attached them to buildings."

That is not precisely a giant step for mankind, but it is symbolic of the work Jess and his director cohorts do to upgrade the quality of life in the western United States.

Jess (an older cousin of footballer Sonny Sixkiller, and a full-blooded Cherokee Indian) isn't a complete altruist. Nor is Chick Tooker, who organized volunteers to process and relocate Vietnamese refugees at Camp Pendleton in southern California. The same goes for Willie Hall, who has rehabilitated ex-convicts to work with recent prison parolees in northern California. And Mike Gale, who recruited immigrant nurses in Hawaii to combat the health problems from the flood of Far East immigrants.

THESE MEN are all civil servants, being paid an average of $25,000 a year to administer social services to their state sectors under ACTION, which was created July 1, 1971, to embrace American volunteer groups — such as the Peace Corps and VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) — in one federal agency directly responsible to the White House.

But Jess and Willie and Chick and Mike — and their regional bosses at this conference table, Don Brown and Patrick Twohig — are not your usual breed of bureaucrat. Mike and Willie and Chick were originally Peace Corps volunteers in far-flung outposts such as Venezuela, Ethiopia and the Philippines.

They're casual, moderately long-haired, and their average ages is 38. They have one common denominator, according to Jess: social concern.

"You can't stand on the outside and get it done," says Jess, a former Chicago police detective who now lives in Phoenix. "If you believe, it's a challenge. The agency is a young bureaucracy. It hasn't gotten hardening of the arteries."

IT'S NOT DEALING with peanuts, either. The budget for Region IX, whose director is Don Brown, a former All-American swimmer and vice president of U.S. International University (San Diego), is $25 million. More than 17,000 volunteers fan out throughout the states of California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii.

"We can move quite quickly," says Patrick Twohig, the regional program manager, "in bringing something about because we aren't bogged down by layers of bureaucracy. The men here are directly on top of their state programs."

Twohig is a former priest, a native of County Cork, Ireland, and lives with his wife and two children on Tralee Way in San Rafael — "I liked the address."

Mike Gale, the Hawaii state director, was a defensive end on USC's 1962 national championship football team. His Pacific territory also takes in Samoa and Guam. "There is great flexibility in our own ventures," he says studiously. "There's a synergistic effect."

Hawaii had a desperate need for legal services because the Legal Aid Society was bogged down. Mike's office developed a program using university political science students as paralegals, getting a year's academic credit for their work. Because of their help, the Legal Aid Society was able to triple its case load.

CHICK TOOKER, the only bachelor in the group, lives a swinging life on a sailboat in Marina del Rey. He has a staff of six people and three GSA (General Service Administration) cars under his wing. "It's great going into Watts in a government car," he grimaces. "They see you and they yell, 'There goes a narc.'"

Like his compatriots, Chick can move fast. When the Vietnamese started arriving at Cap Pendleton, south of Los Angeles, within a week Chick had 15 volunteers there to process the refugees, find sponsors for them in this country and relocate and reunite broken families.

"The benefit of ACTION," notes Chick, "is that you see something done at the beginning, the middle and the end."

There is also the satisfaction of accomplishment. You can see it when Jess Sixkiller starts talking about his modernized outhouses.

Dist. 54 has overbuilt! Too much tax money has gone into new schools and their supplies. Now drastic measures must be taken to trim back program areas because our board and administrators have not read the writing on the wall.

What can be gained by a change in our school calendar? One-third more space in our schools, shorter review times than those necessary under a 12-week summer, more money for teachers choosing to work more days a school year, more time for lesson planning and material gathering as there are periodic breaks in the calendar, more sharing of facilities and materials by the schools, library and park districts and more of an individualized program for our children as the kindergarteners start four times a year on their birthdays and students can be accelerated or retained one-quarter year according to need.

Why has Dist. 54 not looked into the matter more purposefully?

Fact 'lack' hit

It's unfortunate that The Herald regards Betty Ford's views favoring intrauterine murder as "refreshing." Actually, it takes no talent to choose abortion's easy solution; what Americans have a right to expect (and are not receiving) from our First Lady is the example of compassion, responsibility and personal morality, and the courage to find alternatives to the slaughter of the innocent.

Betty believes that legal abortion is "great" because it gives the poor as much opportunity to kill their young as the rich. Using her demented logic, should we therefore supply heroin and hunting rifles to the poor, because the wealthy can afford these luxuries?

The Herald may appreciate Betty's "candor" because her views coincide with its editorial policy. But if "truth" were really important to The Herald, it would have long ago published photos of aborted infants and in-depth interviews with pro-life leaders, so that readers could be accurately informed on this important issue. Instead, The Herald — and Betty — continue their refrain: "Our minds are made up. Don't confuse us with the facts."

An error corrected

In response to an article on the front page of The Herald dated Feb. 13, a point was made that one of the five finalists for Schaumburg's Outstanding Young Woman (Nancy Larson) has not been a member of Volunteers In Action since November.

As I understand the competition, it is for all things done during the calendar year 1975. So, even if she hasn't been a member since November, it appears that she should and has been credited for her time spent in 1975 up to November. Unless that point is made, people would think she was judged improperly.

Penny Dietrich
Schaumburg

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Feb. 13 story was an attempt to correct an earlier story, based on erroneous information, which indicated Mrs. Larson was currently president of the association. A straightforward correction should have been printed on an inside page, listing the name of the current president. The editor regrets compounding the error.

Letters welcome

The Herald welcomes and encourages letters from readers. Letters are published in "The Fence Post" column; no anonymous mail is considered for publication, and we will not withhold names on request. Letters in excess of 300 words are subject to condensation. Direct your mail to Herald Fence Post, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

A conflict is resolved as Hug quits park post

Charles Hug, Des Plaines city attorney, announced last week that he will resign from his post as attorney for the Des Plaines Park District — a move that was long overdue.

Hug held the park district job before being selected city attorney and consistently said he would resign should his double work load become a conflict of interest.

Last week, after the city and park district were named as defendants in a lawsuit, Hug stepped down from the park district post.

Although we don't question Hug's integrity, we do feel he was ignoring a continuing conflict by being employed by two governing bodies that frequently deal with one another. Prior to the lawsuit, Hug faced another conflict when city officials were negotiating with the park district over acquiring land.

Hug's decision was a good one and we can only add that it is about time. With his second job out of the way, Hug can now give his full attention to the full-time job with the city.

Some tuition necessary in college education

No one likes to pay tuition for the privilege of going to college, but paying a reasonable amount of tuition to attend a state college or university is inevitable if education is to continue to thrive in Illinois.

Gov. Walker, however, apparently doesn't think so. Last week he announced he would reject tuition increases proposed last month for state universities.

At stake is an undergraduate tuition hike of $60 a year and graduate tuition of $90 a year. Walker argues that the tuition increases would be especially painful to middle income families.

But Walker should consider the alternatives: another undesirable cutback in programs or a tax increase, in which all of us will have to pay more to support public higher education.

As Walker has promised to slash tuition, he's also slashed in the past other forms of financial support for higher education. With such budget-cutting, Illinois' colleges and universities have found themselves trapped with no other way to raise needed funds. We think a moderate tuition increase is a reasonable alternative — and we urge the governor to change his mind and support it.

Quality of life a target

ACTION still at work

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA) — Around the conference table, where the state directors of Region IX of ACTION are holding their budget meeting, Jess Sixkiller is known as the "Outhouse King."

Jess's territory is the state of Arizona, and every time he cruises through the south part of Tucson, a look of satisfaction softens his dark Indian face. Because of him and his volunteers in the federally sponsored program, a ramshackle house on a potholed street at least has indoor plumbing.

"We have just now completed renovating 150 outhouses," he says proudly, "in south Tucson. We designed modern outhouses and put in plumbing and attached them to buildings."

That is not precisely a giant step for mankind, but it is symbolic of the work Jess and his director cohorts do to upgrade the quality of life in the western United States.

Jess (an older cousin of footballer Sonny Sixkiller, and a full-blooded Cherokee Indian) isn't a complete altruist. Nor is Chick Tooker, who organized volunteers to process and relocate Vietnamese refugees at Camp Pendleton in southern California. The same goes for Willie Hall, who has rehabilitated ex-convicts to work with recent prison parolees in northern California. And Mike Gale, who recruited immigrant nurses in Hawaii to combat the health problems from the flood of Far East immigrants.

THESE MEN are all civil servants, being paid an average of $25,000 a year to administer social services to their state sectors under ACTION, which was created July 1, 1971, to embrace American volunteer groups — such as the Peace Corps and VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) — in one federal agency directly responsible to the White House.

But Jess and Willie and Chick and Mike — and their regional bosses at this conference table, Don Brown and Patrick Twohig — are not your usual breed of bureaucrat. Mike and Willie and Chick were originally Peace Corps volunteers in far-flung outposts such as Venezuela, Ethiopia and the Philippines.

They're casual, moderately long-haired, and their average ages is 38. They have one common denominator, according to Jess: social concern.

"You can't stand on the outside and get it done," says Jess, a former Chicago police detective who now lives in Phoenix. "If you believe, it's a challenge. The agency is a young bureaucracy. It hasn't gotten hardening of the arteries."

IT'S NOT DEALING with peanuts, either. The budget for Region IX, whose director is Don Brown, a former All-American swimmer and vice president of U.S. International University (San Diego), is $25 million. More than 17,000 volunteers fan out throughout the states of California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii.

"We can move quite quickly," says Patrick Twohig, the regional program manager, "in bringing something about because we aren't bogged down by layers of bureaucracy. The men here are directly on top of their state programs."

Twohig is a former priest, a native of County Cork, Ireland, and lives with his wife and two children on Tralee Way in San Rafael — "I liked the address."

Mike Gale, the Hawaii state director, was a defensive end on USC's 1962 national championship football team. His Pacific territory also takes in Samoa and Guam. "There is great flexibility in our own ventures," he says studiously. "There's a synergistic effect."

Hawaii had a desperate need for legal services because the Legal Aid Society was bogged down. Mike's office developed a program using university political science students as paralegals, getting a year's academic credit for their work. Because of their help, the Legal Aid Society was able to triple its case load.

CHICK TOOKER, the only bachelor in the group, lives a swinging life on a sailboat in Marina del Rey. He has a staff of six people and three GSA (General Service Administration) cars under his wing. "It's great going into Watts in a government car," he grimaces. "They see you and they yell, 'There goes a narc.'"

Like his compatriots, Chick can move fast. When the Vietnamese started arriving at Cap Pendleton, south of Los Angeles, within a week Chick had 15 volunteers there to process the refugees, find sponsors for them in this country and relocate and reunite broken families.

"The benefit of ACTION," notes Chick, "is that you see something done at the beginning, the middle and the end."

There is also the satisfaction of accomplishment. You can see it when Jess Sixkiller starts talking about his modernized outhouses.

than others. But Clarence does not stop or let it affect him.

"Good morning, I am Clarence Davis . . ."

This would be his final stop on the second floor. Two men were recuperating from surgery. They seemed to be having a jolly time.

"Neither one of you looks like you ought to be here," Clarence told them.

THE THREE MEN laughed quite a lot. Clarence's usual speech quickly went by the board. One man told him they had been palying cribbage.

"There's no end to the experiences I have here," Clarence said back in the hallway. "You can appreciate that now with just this little walk."

It's a little difficult convincing Clarence Davis that he should not be bashful about his volunteer work. He begs, "Please, please don't let any of this go in like I'm bragging. I'm afraid of hurting anyone else's feelings."

But Clarence is good people. There should be many more like him. Donna Dickey and Joe Goddard would surely agree. They are Northwest Community's other volunteer patient visitors.

The hospital is special to Clarence. "I pretty much owe my life to this place," he said. That's why Clarence helps now. He knows what it means.

Twelve years ago last October, Clarence Davis of Arlington Heights entered Northwest Community, his body ridden with cancer. And they cured him.

CLARENCE STOPS short today of agreeing that he is a walking miracle . . . just more fortunate than most.

At 64 years old, he'd been given another chance. Clarence chose to become involved.

He was the first volunteer patient visitor at Northwest Community. And Clarence began work for the American Cancer Society by also visiting patients at Lutheran General, Alexian Brothers and Holy Family hospitals.

Five years ago, when he was 72, Clarence began a four-year term as a local board member for the American Cancer Society.

Today, he serves as a board member and fund-raiser for the Northwest Community Hospital Foundation. And his wife, Helen, has been a volunteer worker for 15 years.

ALL OF THAT is important. But you can easily tell that Clarence most enjoys visiting those patients. Few of them can believe he is 76 years old.

"When you get old, like I am, it's nice to get a feeling that you're needed, that you're still of some use," Clarence said over lunch.

Now it was time to leave the lunchroom. It had been so obvious. Clarence Davis is a man with friends because he has chosen to be a friend.

In just a few minutes, they would be hearing him again in the hallways. Now, he would be saying:

"Good afternoon, I am Clarence Davis . . ."

Ida V. O'Reilly

Her credo: tell the truth

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

A few years back Ida V. O'Reilly disapproved of the way her village was being governed. She aired her discontent with Wheeling village leaders in a dozen or so probing letters to The Herald's Fence Post.

SHE HAS NO INTENTION of just sticking to her needlework. Having worked to bring needed improvement in Wheeling village government, Ida V. O'Reilly says she'll "keep an eye on things." She sits on the village ethics board.

Asking such questions as why weren't village officials telling the public what they were doing, Mrs. O'Reilly, a Wheeling homeowner for 20 years, likes to think those letters may have helped bring needed changes in Wheeling.

A former grammar school teacher in Wheeling and ex-telephone company emplove as well as mother of three grown children, Ida admits she wasn't always so public-spirited. Her interest in local politics was sparked by daughter Barbara, now a newspaper reporter and a then-newspaper intern covering Wheeling village trustee meetings. Ida attended a few of those meetings. "And I decided some changes should be made!" she said.

As a result of her letters to The Herald, Mrs. O'Reilly was asked to work in a new organization, then called the Wheeling Improvement Party, or WHIP as it came to be known. Its purpose was to bring reform at the local level.

"We wanted to make changes, not throw everybody out," Ida explained.

THAT WAS 1970. WHIP worked hard to achieve its aims, members canvassing street by street to inform residents of their intent.

"Our first attempts were ignorant and amateurish and our party was thrown off the ballot," Ida recalled. But the group grew smarter and lost by a close margin a second time around, she said.

A year ago, "after the Wheeling scandals had hit," WHIP won five of six seats on the village board. "We hope they will meet our expectations," said Ida. One gets the feeling she's thinking "They'd better."

Mrs. O'Reilly is on the newly formed Wheeling ethics board, a three-member body which examines the background of any who apply to do work for the village. They check the statutes to see there is no conflict of interest. Open meetings are conducted once a month and the board will act on requests for investigation.

"I am a firm believer in honesty," said Ida. "I taught our kids not to lie as it's better to tell the truth and take the consequences because the truth comes out eventually anyway."

(Besides Barbara her "kids" include a son, Dennis, an attorney, and Marilyn, who works in her husband's computer programming business.)

Generally satisfied with the status of things at village hall now, Ida does have one complaint. She dislikes "those oceans of asphalt" along Dundee and Milwaukee Avenue. "It's ugly, ugly!" she deplored.

MRS. O'REILLY HAS another suggestion. Using parking space at the K-Mart at Dundee-Rte 83 intersection, she'd like to have the village cut back about 20 feet and plant grass, trees, flowers and shrubs.

"It could be beautiful and there'd still be plenty of parking space," she said.

"Wheeling's new carillon is nice, but the money could have been better spent on parkways," she added.

Though her health's not been good the past year, Ida O'Reilly has no intention of putting down the gauntlet.

She hopes to resume as a teacher's aide at Stevenson School (she herself taught at Mark Twain and Walt Whitman) and has just recently become active in the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), though she's been a member since 1942. When she's able, Ida attends activities of the women's group at St. Joseph the Worker Church.

At home she makes hairpin lace, sews, paints and has just begun to needlepoint. Her husband, Dermott, is a retired naval jet mechanic and also a retired postal employe.

Along with her other activities, Ida promises "to keep an eye on things in Wheeling."

Must divorced father pay child's college?

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

I've been meaning to write to you for some time but can't put if off any longer because the problem is now at a point where something must be done.

What I'd like to know is: Must a divorced father pay for his child's college education?

I married a divorced man who had three children. I was not the cause of the divorce, having met him two years after it happened. I mention this because if I were the cause, I would keep my mouth shut. But I am an innocent victim and have had to work in order for my husband to support his ex-wife and the children. I'm not concerned about that since I married him knowing what was in store. But I never thought he would have to go beyond the high school level of paying for his children's education.

TWO OF THEM are now ready for college and their mother insists upon sending them to a small private one that majors in art studies. The school is in the East. I think she should let them attend the state college here and save money. My husband never went to college; neither did I; yet we both must sacrifice, depriving ourselves of so many things we could enjoy. It is another reason why I decided not to have any children so that I woulen't burden him further financially. This makes no impression on his former wife who keeps asking for more and more.

Please answer the question so I'll know what to tell my husband when the subject comes up again in the near future. I'll appreciate it. Thank you. — J.T.

Dear J.T.,

Well, I don't like to use the ole cliche "it all depends," but in this instance, at least, nothing else will do.

While no state requires a child to go beyond high school, the trend is to encourage parents, and at times, order them to pay for a child's college education when the parents are divorced.

The fact that the divorced father must pay does not nullify the fact that his responsibility cannot exceed his ability to pay. There are several other points to consider. One is, do the child's I.Q. and aptitude warrant a college education?

THE OTHERS ARE: How necessary is it that the girls attend a school outside of the area when there is a state school they can attend? Are their talents so distinct that there are no other schools in the area that could provide the training they need?

I think you have a good point there when you say the daughters could save their dad some money by attending the state U. and it does seem unfair for him to pay tuition when he has already paid taxes to provide a college education for his children. But it just might be one of the reasons why a court would deny them the right to have their father pay for a college out of the state.

Your comment that neither you nor your husband attended college and that you both "made it" anyway recalls a debate I heard some time ago on the subject "Is a College Education a Necessity Or a Ripoff?"

THE PREMISE WAS that a college education is a contrived necessity because large companies, who have so many applicants to choose from, see the advantage of not only tightening requirements but using it as a powerful weapon to set a population's style of living.

Some of the arguments against the proposition were that today large companies are faced with more sophisticated methods of operation, strict government regulations, national and international competition and only those who are skilled are qualified to fill the positions.

If the girls need the special training to qualify them for a well paying job, it might be wise to sacrifice a few more years to prepare them more quickly to support themselves. It may be, too, that because of the more specialized training, they would be able to come upon a school-work program in their field.

As I see it, you do have some consolation. Consider this. Your husband did not agree in writing to pay for the college eeucation at the time of the divorce, at which time many parents do as part of the divorce settlement. At least, under the present circumstances there is a chance for your husband either to negotiate with his ex-wife or for the court to deny the children the right to expect their father to pay for a school out of the state.

Cutting cost of vacation lodging

Speaking of...

by Kay Marsh

(Second of two parts)

When we went to Williamsburg, Va. last summer, every motel in town seemed to be full, and tourists were commuting from as far away as Richmond.

But we rented two large, comfortable double rooms at $15 per room per night in the home of Mrs. Pauline Barnes. We had our own private bath, air conditioning, morning coffee, ice, television — even pool privileges at a nearby motel.

Mrs. Barnes is one of many Williamsburg residents who increase their own incomes and serve tourists by providing attractive places to stay at reasonable prices. Some have only a single room to rent. Others have more. The Cedars, for instance, can accommodate 20 guests.

AND YOU'LL find similar rooms in private residences and apartments just about everywhere. Of course, you'll want to inspect the facilities and check carefully. But you'll be pleasantly surprised what nice, inexpensive places you can find to stay if you just ask around, or visit the local Chamber of Commerce.

Tourist homes are just one of many ways that families on vacation can cut lodging costs. Last week's column discussed two more popular methods: staying in budget motels and staying on a college campus.

Still another possibility is hostels. Although hosteling was originally designed for young bikers and hikers, today's expanded program attracts persons of all ages. Some hostels, too, provide family units. For more information, write American Youth Hostels, National Campus, Delaplane, Va. 22025.

But perhaps the most appealing way to cut vacation lodging costs is to rent a housekeeping cabin or cottage in a state park.

This is easier to say than to do, as facilities are limited. But with an early start and a bit of luck you just might be able to get a reservation for this summer. Most parks rent by the week, but some accommodations are available for a shorter period.

MANY STATES offer everything from rustic cabins to lodges that can compete with the most modern resorts. Some parks, too, have very large units suitable for family reunions and multi-family vacations. And nearly all parks offer swimming, boating, fishing, horseback riding or other special attractions and recreational programs.

Where should you stay? Well, we've heard fine comments about Hickory Knob State Park Resort Park in South Carolina, the resort parks of Kentucky and some of the state parks in West Virginia.

But our own experience has been in Virginia, and we've been fortunate enough to spend a week or more at several of the eight state parks there that have cabins for rent.

IF YOUR'RE interested in combining a state park vacation with Bicentennial sightseeing, you might want to consider Seashore or Westmoreland.

Seashore is not far from the Williamsburg - Yorktown - Jamestown triangle. As for Westmoreland, it's within easy driving distance of the various tourist attractions around Washington and Fredericksburg. In fact, when we were there two or three summers ago, at least one family alternated a day of sightseeing with a day or two if fishing, swimming and boating.

If you'd like to know more about state parks or other tourist attractions in Virginia, write the Virginia State Travel Service, 6 North Sixth St., Richmond 23219, or the Division of Parks, 1201 State Office Building, Richmond 23219.

Space doesn't permit a full listing here, but if you'll check your library for the July 1975 issue of Changing Times magazine, you'll find a complete listing of addresses for every state where you can write for more information on state parks and other tourist attractions.

Happy vacationing!

Live Y'ers serve pancakes Saturday

Ida V. O'Reilly

Her credo: tell the truth

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

A few years back Ida V. O'Reilly disapproved of the way her village was being governed. She aired her discontent with Wheeling village leaders in a dozen or so probing letters to The Herald's Fence Post.

SHE HAS NO INTENTION of just sticking to her needlework. Having worked to bring needed improvement in Wheeling village government, Ida V. O'Reilly says she'll "keep an eye on things." She sits on the village ethics board.

Asking such questions as why weren't village officials telling the public what they were doing, Mrs. O'Reilly, a Wheeling homeowner for 20 years, likes to think those letters may have helped bring needed changes in Wheeling.

A former grammar school teacher in Wheeling and ex-telephone company emplove as well as mother of three grown children, Ida admits she wasn't always so public-spirited. Her interest in local politics was sparked by daughter Barbara, now a newspaper reporter and a then-newspaper intern covering Wheeling village trustee meetings. Ida attended a few of those meetings. "And I decided some changes should be made!" she said.

As a result of her letters to The Herald, Mrs. O'Reilly was asked to work in a new organization, then called the Wheeling Improvement Party, or WHIP as it came to be known. Its purpose was to bring reform at the local level.

"We wanted to make changes, not throw everybody out," Ida explained.

THAT WAS 1970. WHIP worked hard to achieve its aims, members canvassing street by street to inform residents of their intent.

"Our first attempts were ignorant and amateurish and our party was thrown off the ballot," Ida recalled. But the group grew smarter and lost by a close margin a second time around, she said.

A year ago, "after the Wheeling scandals had hit," WHIP won five of six seats on the village board. "We hope they will meet our expectations," said Ida. One gets the feeling she's thinking "They'd better."

Mrs. O'Reilly is on the newly formed Wheeling ethics board, a three-member body which examines the background of any who apply to do work for the village. They check the statutes to see there is no conflict of interest. Open meetings are conducted once a month and the board will act on requests for investigation.

"I am a firm believer in honesty," said Ida. "I taught our kids not to lie as it's better to tell the truth and take the consequences because the truth comes out eventually anyway."

(Besides Barbara her "kids" include a son, Dennis, an attorney, and Marilyn, who works in her husband's computer programming business.)

Generally satisfied with the status of things at village hall now, Ida does have one complaint. She dislikes "those oceans of asphalt" along Dundee and Milwaukee Avenue. "It's ugly, ugly!" she deplored.

MRS. O'REILLY HAS another suggestion. Using parking space at the K-Mart at Dundee-Rte 83 intersection, she'd like to have the village cut back about 20 feet and plant grass, trees, flowers and shrubs.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Exercise helps varicose veins

Would you please let me know if playing tennis, dancing or strenuous exercise can be harmful if one has varicose veins. I will be anxiously awaiting your answer, along with two of my friends who also have varicose veins.

No, it will not. If you just have dilated or varicose veins over the outside of the leg and the veins deep inside your leg muscles that you can't see are all right, the exercise will actually help. As you exercise, the venous blood in the legs is milked out of the leg by a massaging action of the contracting leg muscles.

The superficial veins drain into the deeper veins and emptying the deep veins helps drain the superficial ones.

If the superficial veins are all that are involved, you will not have any trouble with significant ankle swelling. When the deep veins are also involved you will have persistent swelling of the involved leg.

The best thing you can do short of surgery for removal of varicose veins is to prevent further dilation of the veins. To do this you need to avoid prolonged standing without moving, and to wear some external support hose. The external pressure helps prevent distention of the veins. Varicose veins develop because of overdistention. The veins have valves inside them to help move the blood uphill back to the heart. When the veins are overstretched, the valves no longer meet and the blood leaks downhill distending the vein and you see the varicose vein. I think it is a good idea for women to wear support hose of some type during pregnancy as the pressure on the deep veins in the pelvis contribute to overstretching and later varicose veins. This is particularly important to women who have a family history of varicose veins.

If you have swelling of your ankles with your varicose veins, then go ahead and exercise, but you might want to wear some support hose while doing it.

For more information on varicose veins send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 5-8. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78292.

I have had my throid partially removed and am on two grains of thyroid a day, also Hydropress and have been on it for years, one or two a day depending on my pressure. Now I have been put on a medicine that I hate, in juice or not. Not only do I dislike the taste but the cramps and gas that I get from Kaon elixer are mean.

Now I see you tell another person to drink three glasses of orange juice a day. Perhaps I may solve my problems by doing just that but what size glasses please? I have always taken six ounces for breakfast, but that has been it. I'd appreciate any information that could help me get off the awful medicine.

You should follow your doctor's instructions as he knows what your potassium level is. You can discuss other sources of potassium with him and he may agree to let you take three 8-ounce glasses of orange juice a day.

You can also get a lot of potassium in milk. There is almost as much potassium in a quart of milk fortified with two per cent nonfat milk solids as there is in a quart of orange juice.

Salad mold recipe is worth repeating

Dear Dorothy: Some time back you had a molded salad recipe. It consisting of lime gelatin, cottage cheese, pecans and cucumber. I lost my recipe and wonder if you still have it.—Helen Robertson

It's worth repeating for everybody. Dissolve a package of lime gelatin in one and one-fourth cups of water and add a sprinkling of salt and a tablespoon of vinegar. Peel a large cucumber, chop it up and put in a colander to drain. Then add to the gelatin mixture. Put in a grated small onion, a pound carton of cottage cheese, drained well, one-half cup of mayonnaise and one-half cup of chopped nuts. Put into a greased quart-size mold. In a pretty copper mold, it makes an attractive dish garnished with bibb lettuce, cocktail tomatoes or watercress.

Dear Dorothy: I can't understand so many people having so much trouble with white nylons and polyesters becoming dingy or yellow. If these white synthetics would be washed only with white things, they wouldn't have this problem — synthetics are color scavengers.—Henry Scoll

Yes, but people get hurried and think that maybe this "one time" it won't happen. Always does, though, as my mail proves.

Dear Dorothy: Can you tell me how to remove candle wax from my wall-to-wall acrylic carpeting? A candle was turned over and left a large spot on the carpet.—Mildred Hahn

Unless the stain has been messed up, it usually is one of the easiest to get up. Scrape off as much of the wax as possible, then cover with a white blotter, paper napkins or tissue. Apply a barely warm iron to absorb the grease. Any stain remaining ought to come off with a good dry-cleaning solvent.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Exercise helps varicose veins

Would you please let me know if playing tennis, dancing or strenuous exercise can be harmful if one has varicose veins. I will be anxiously awaiting your answer, along with two of my friends who also have varicose veins.

No, it will not. If you just have dilated or varicose veins over the outside of the leg and the veins deep inside your leg muscles that you can't see are all right, the exercise will actually help. As you exercise, the venous blood in the legs is milked out of the leg by a massaging action of the contracting leg muscles.

The superficial veins drain into the deeper veins and emptying the deep veins helps drain the superficial ones.

If the superficial veins are all that are involved, you will not have any trouble with significant ankle swelling. When the deep veins are also involved you will have persistent swelling of the involved leg.

The best thing you can do short of surgery for removal of varicose veins is to prevent further dilation of the veins. To do this you need to avoid prolonged standing without moving, and to wear some external support hose. The external pressure helps prevent distention of the veins. Varicose veins develop because of overdistention. The veins have valves inside them to help move the blood uphill back to the heart. When the veins are overstretched, the valves no longer meet and the blood leaks downhill distending the vein and you see the varicose vein. I think it is a good idea for women to wear support hose of some type during pregnancy as the pressure on the deep veins in the pelvis contribute to overstretching and later varicose veins. This is particularly important to women who have a family history of varicose veins.

If you have swelling of your ankles with your varicose veins, then go ahead and exercise, but you might want to wear some support hose while doing it.

For more information on varicose veins send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 5-8. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78292.

I have had my throid partially removed and am on two grains of thyroid a day, also Hydropress and have been on it for years, one or two a day depending on my pressure. Now I have been put on a medicine that I hate, in juice or not. Not only do I dislike the taste but the cramps and gas that I get from Kaon elixer are mean.

Now I see you tell another person to drink three glasses of orange juice a day. Perhaps I may solve my problems by doing just that but what size glasses please? I have always taken six ounces for breakfast, but that has been it. I'd appreciate any information that could help me get off the awful medicine.

You should follow your doctor's instructions as he knows what your potassium level is. You can discuss other sources of potassium with him and he may agree to let you take three 8-ounce glasses of orange juice a day.

You can also get a lot of potassium in milk. There is almost as much potassium in a quart of milk fortified with two per cent nonfat milk solids as there is in a quart of orange juice.

Salad mold recipe is worth repeating

Dear Dorothy: Some time back you had a molded salad recipe. It consisting of lime gelatin, cottage cheese, pecans and cucumber. I lost my recipe and wonder if you still have it.—Helen Robertson

It's worth repeating for everybody. Dissolve a package of lime gelatin in one and one-fourth cups of water and add a sprinkling of salt and a tablespoon of vinegar. Peel a large cucumber, chop it up and put in a colander to drain. Then add to the gelatin mixture. Put in a grated small onion, a pound carton of cottage cheese, drained well, one-half cup of mayonnaise and one-half cup of chopped nuts. Put into a greased quart-size mold. In a pretty copper mold, it makes an attractive dish garnished with bibb lettuce, cocktail tomatoes or watercress.

Dear Dorothy: I can't understand so many people having so much trouble with white nylons and polyesters becoming dingy or yellow. If these white synthetics would be washed only with white things, they wouldn't have this problem — synthetics are color scavengers.—Henry Scoll

Yes, but people get hurried and think that maybe this "one time" it won't happen. Always does, though, as my mail proves.

Dear Dorothy: Can you tell me how to remove candle wax from my wall-to-wall acrylic carpeting? A candle was turned over and left a large spot on the carpet.—Mildred Hahn

Unless the stain has been messed up, it usually is one of the easiest to get up. Scrape off as much of the wax as possible, then cover with a white blotter, paper napkins or tissue. Apply a barely warm iron to absorb the grease. Any stain remaining ought to come off with a good dry-cleaning solvent.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Ask Andy

Butterfly more dapper than moth

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A BUTTERFLY AND A MOTH?

Of all the insects, the favorites of most boys and girls are probably the butterflies and moths. The reason for this could be that they are the second largest group of insects, but old Andy suspects that children of all ages love them just because they are so beautiful.

If you have ever touched the wing of a butterfly or moth, you may have noticed a soft powdery material left on our fingers. If you were to look at this powder under a microscope, you would see that it resembles teeny, tiny scales. These scales cover the wings of butterflies and moths, and overlap each other link shingles on a roof. While there are a number of general ways to tell the moths from the butterflies, to be really sure you would have to remove all the scales and examine the veins of their wings.

To keep from marring these beauteous wings, however, let's look at their general differences. First, most butterflies are active during the day, while the moths are generally night fliers. Butterfly bodies are almost always slender and elegant, while moths are more on the plumpish side. When at rest, the moth sits with her fuzzy wings spread out flat. The butterfly will hold her wings gracefully over her back in tentlike fashion. If you notice one of these insects at rest, creep up very quietly, and you may get a chance to look at her antennae. The butterfly will have slender antennae, to match her slender body, and these end in small knobs. The antennae of the moth are shorter not knobbed, and are often featherlike.

Other small differences that may help separate one from the other are coloration and the tpe of home the caterpillar builds. Butterflies are by far the more dapper and colorful of the two. Moths tend to be a bit drab in dress. When the moth caterpillar is ready to undergo the process that will change it into a full-fledged moth, he spins himself a silken cocoon.

Few butterflies spin cocoons. A butterfly spins a button of silk and grips the button with her rear prolegs and hangs head downward. The pupa, which has already formed inside the caterpillar's skin, will wiggle free and attach itself to the silk button. A hard shell, or chrysalis, forms and the pupa then settles down to wait for her emergence as a butterfly.

The life cycle of all lepidoptera, or scaly-winged insects, goes through the same four stages. Life begins for each as an egg. As the egg hatches, the larva, or caterpillar, emerges and begins its part of the cycle. After the caterpillar has reached its full growth, the pupa, or resting stage, begins. The adult stage represents the completion of the life cycle.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the chronicles of Narnia to Eilleen Ratajczak, 11, of Tucson, Ariz., for her question:

WHAT CAUSES A FEVER?

The human body, a very complex structure, continuously adjusts to the exertions placed upon it. Many of its most remarkable accomplishments happen without our knowledge — such as a fever. When the body tissues are attacked by a sneaky bacterial infection or virus of some sort, a fever occurs to indicate that the body is trying to fight off the pesky invaders.

A fever generaly means that the sweat glands are closed off, and the tiny blood vessels near the skin are contracted. This sends more blood to the interior of the body, which brings more white cells on the march to fight the infection. With the rie in body temperature, many bacteria are killed. In an infectious disease, fever usually spreads throughout the body, but many times, such as in the case of an infected cut on the finger, the tissues surrounding the cut are feverish, but not the entire body. Doctors can tell a lot about the specific nature of a disease just by calculating the feverS frequency and severity.

To a burglar, that living room light means Mr. Jones is home.

To Mr. Jones in Florida, that's a comforting thought.

How do you keep an empty house from looking empty? With timing devices that turn lights on and off at pre-set times while you're away. To a would-be burglar, your house seems occupied.

Some devices have special light-sensitive cells that automatically turn a light on at dusk and off at dawn. Some allow the on-off cycle to occur several times a night. The craftiest burglar would never suspect.

The best time to use timers is while you're on vacation or on weekends away from home. But it's a good idea to use them any time you're away. A burglar can take advantage of an evening on the town as easily as a two-week vacation.

You can pick up these burglar-proofing devices from your hardware, department or discount store for a few dollars. And they don't use any more current than an electric clock. That's a small price to pay for all the protection you're getting.

Ask Andy

Butterfly more dapper than moth

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A BUTTERFLY AND A MOTH?

Of all the insects, the favorites of most boys and girls are probably the butterflies and moths. The reason for this could be that they are the second largest group of insects, but old Andy suspects that children of all ages love them just because they are so beautiful.

If you have ever touched the wing of a butterfly or moth, you may have noticed a soft powdery material left on our fingers. If you were to look at this powder under a microscope, you would see that it resembles teeny, tiny scales. These scales cover the wings of butterflies and moths, and overlap each other link shingles on a roof. While there are a number of general ways to tell the moths from the butterflies, to be really sure you would have to remove all the scales and examine the veins of their wings.

To keep from marring these beauteous wings, however, let's look at their general differences. First, most butterflies are active during the day, while the moths are generally night fliers. Butterfly bodies are almost always slender and elegant, while moths are more on the plumpish side. When at rest, the moth sits with her fuzzy wings spread out flat. The butterfly will hold her wings gracefully over her back in tentlike fashion. If you notice one of these insects at rest, creep up very quietly, and you may get a chance to look at her antennae. The butterfly will have slender antennae, to match her slender body, and these end in small knobs. The antennae of the moth are shorter not knobbed, and are often featherlike.

Other small differences that may help separate one from the other are coloration and the tpe of home the caterpillar builds. Butterflies are by far the more dapper and colorful of the two. No ordinary variety show for Telly

by JOAN HANAUER

Telly Savalas has done for middle-aged macho what Mae West did for geriatric innuendo.

Savalas is bald, slightly paunchy and a grandfather — and he has more sex appeal than actors half his age with twice his hair.

Having proved that he had the male version of "it" as Kojak each week, now Savalas is moving in as a song and dance man on a CBS special, "Telly . . . Who Loves Ya, Baby?" to air today from 9 to 10 p.m.

SAVALAS SINGS, dances a little and , amoung other things, does charming monolog on how a boyhood dream could come true that ends up with him showing off his thoroughbred racehorse, Telly's Pop, which won California's Triple Crown for 2-year-olds.

Savalas has class guests. Cloris Leachman, a jewel of a performer with more facets than a diamond, half-sings half-talks a monolog on "I Am An Actress."

Few actresses could get away with, no less charm an audience, by reproducing a first-grade recital of "Spot, The Dog Nobody Wanted," followed not long after by Lady Macbeth worrying about "out, damned spot, out."

Diahann Carroll also adds class to the proceedings — a gorgeous singer in a white, halter-topped gown who kids with Savalas in a duet duel called "We Were So Poor," then solos in "I Won't Last a Day Without You."

THE THIRD guest star is Barbara Eden, who comes on without her "I Dream of Jeannie" outfit and conjures up a nicely husky singing voice of her own.

Savalas talks and sings several songs, winding up with a sentimental "The Men in My Little Girl's Life."

He also goes ethnic, dancing with his brother, Teddy, not Demosthenes, who plays Stavros on "Kojak," to a folk tune played on the bazouki.

Can Kojak sing? He's no Frank Sinatra — but then who is, these days?

Wrong contract made

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

North and South were so busy arguing about whose fault it was that they failed to bid and make a club or diamond slam, that neitiher one noticed that South should have made his four-spade contract.

It seems that after winining the heart lead, South had played three rounds of trumps after which unfortunate start there was no way for him to score more than nine tricks.

South could have insured a 10th trick by playing only two rounds of trumps and then leading a diamond. If West ducked South would have his 10th trick; if West took his ace and led a second heart South should refuse to ruff. Then he would be able to ruff the next heart in dummy and score the rest of the tricks.

This type of play in one form or another occurs quite often and is well worth learning. As for the bidding we agree with both partners. Each one had bid badly.

No ordinary variety show for Telly

by JOAN HANAUER

Telly Savalas has done for middle-aged macho what Mae West did for geriatric innuendo.

Savalas is bald, slightly paunchy and a grandfather — and he has more sex appeal than actors half his age with twice his hair.

Having proved that he had the male version of "it" as Kojak each week, now Savalas is moving in as a song and dance man on a CBS special, "Telly . . . Who Loves Ya, Baby?" to air today from 9 to 10 p.m.

SAVALAS SINGS, dances a little and , amoung other things, does charming monolog on how a boyhood dream could come true that ends up with him showing off his thoroughbred racehorse, Telly's Pop, which won California's Triple Crown for 2-year-olds.

Savalas has class guests. Cloris Leachman, a jewel of a performer with more facets than a diamond, half-sings half-talks a monolog on "I Am An Actress."

Few actresses could get away with, no less charm an audience, by reproducing a first-grade recital of "Spot, The Dog Nobody Wanted," followed not long after by Lady Macbeth worrying about "out, damned spot, out."

Diahann Carroll also adds class to the proceedings — a gorgeous singer in a white, halter-topped gown who kids with Savalas in a duet duel called "We Were So Poor," then solos in "I Won't Last a Day Without You."

THE THIRD guest star is Barbara Eden, who comes on without her "I Dream of Jeannie" outfit and conjures up a nicely husky singing voice of her own.

Savalas talks and sings several songs, winding up with a sentimental "The Men in My Little Girl's Life."

He also goes ethnic, dancing with his brother, Teddy, not Demosthenes, who plays Stavros on "Kojak," to a folk tune played on the bazouki.

Can Kojak sing? He's no Frank Sinatra — but then who is, these days?

Wrong contract made

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

North and South were so busy arguing about whose fault it was that they failed to bid and make a club or diamond slam, that neitiher one noticed that South should have made his four-spade contract.

It seems that after winining the heart lead, South had played three rounds of trumps after which unfortunate start there was no way for him to score more than nine tricks.

South could have insured a 10th trick by playing only two rounds of trumps and then leading a diamond. If West ducked South would have his 10th trick; if West took his ace and led a second heart South should refuse to ruff. Then he would be able to ruff the next heart in dummy and score the rest of the tricks.

This type of play in one form or another occurs quite often and is well worth learning. As for the bidding we agree with both partners. Each one had bid badly.

Bell asks ICC to reconsider size of rate increase

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Pres. James Olson Tuesday said the company formally asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to reconsider its Feb. 4 service rate decision.

Citing "numerous errors" in the commission's recent approval of a $70 million rate hike, Olson said the utility will go to court if the agency does not grant the request.

The phone company had asked for a $186-million rate-increase package. The request for a rehearing was filed Friday in Springfield. If the ICC issues no statement by March 4, the request will be denied.

CRITICISM OF the Feb. 4 phone service pricing decision also is offered by Gov. Daniel Walker and State's Atty. Bernard Carey. They questioned the size of the rate hike. Carey said a study by his investigators shows a rate reduction is in order for Illinois Bell customers. A 20-cent pay phone call price and a 1977 starting date for charges on some directory assistance calls is included in the ICC grant.

Among Olson's remarks on the ICC rate increase decision are:

- The commission erred in its order for directory assistance charges that are different from the plan discussed in 11 months of hearings. Olson said the plan "would substantially increase directory assistance cost by requiring equipment additions and much greater operator work time to enable operators to determine, call-by-call, which calls are to be charged and which are not chargeable."

The ICC plan for a 30-cent monthly director assistance credit for each customer would result in revenue losses of more than $14 million a year, Olson said.

- The commission's order "erroneously overstated the revenues which will result from the rates therein approved and therefore, the rates will not produce the revenue authorized in the order," he said.
- The commission did not take account of cutbacks in customer demand due to the increase in multi-message unit and other charges, Olson said.
- The commission ruling that an 8.75 per cent rate of return is fair, was disputed by Olson. "The manifest weight of the evidence in the record shows that 9.5 to 10 per cent is the range of a proper rate return on the company's property," he said.

Telephone service may suffer if the ICC's "inadequate" rate decision is allowed to stand, Olson said.

IN A STATEMENT issued following the Feb. 4 ICC decision, Carey said the burden of the 20-cent phone charge for coin telephones will "fall on those who can least afford it, those who are too poor to mai tain a telephone in their home." The previous rate for coin telephone service was 10 cents.

A spokesman for the ICC in Chicago said the commission may decide within one week whether to review the decision. Bell serves more than 3 million customers in Illinois.

Caution causes stock price dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Concern over the economic recovery and the third largest bank failure in U.S. history sent prices lower in fairly active trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, an 8.42-point loser Friday, lost another 7.79 points to 950.57. The blue chip indicator had been behind only about a point up until early afternoon.

Declines outdistanced advances, 842 to 677, while 386 remain unchanged among the 1,905 issues crossing the tape.

STANDARD & POOR'S 500-stock index gave up 0.62 to 99.05, and the NYSE common stock index, 0.32 to 52.95. The average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 20 cents.

Volume totaled 25,460,000 shares, up slightly from the 23,872,520 shares turned over Friday on the eve of the holiday weekend. The market was closed Monday for Washington's birthday.

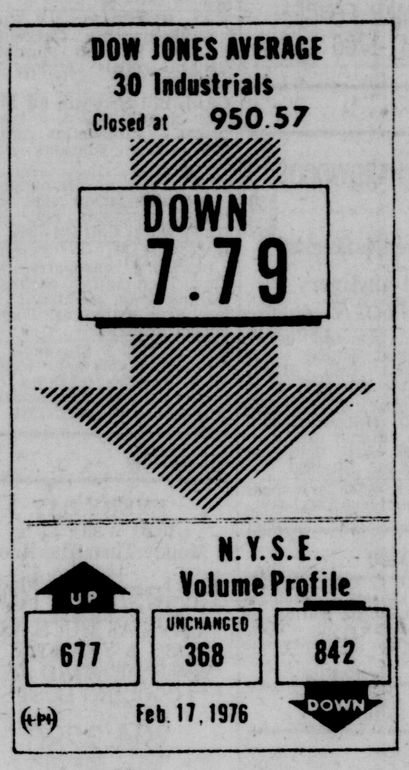
The market retreated substantially in the early afternoon after the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported one measure of the nation's balance of payments was $2.1 billion in deficit for the final 1975 quarter. There was a $4.9 billion surplus in the third quarter; in the closing 1974 quarter there was a $4.9 billion deficit.

Wall Street observers said investor uneasiness also stemmed from the weekend failure of the Hamilton National Bank of Chattanooga, the third biggest bank insolvency in the nation's history.

PAN AMERICAN World Airways led the actives, up 5/8 to 7 1/8 on 450,100 shares. Pan Am officials last week said the airline would record a modest profit this year after seven consecutive yearly losses. Levitz Furniture was second, up 3/8 to 6 3/8 on 368,600 shares. America Telephone & Telegraph followed, up ½ to 55 5/8 on 286,600 sharss.

Among the hard-hit blue chips, Du pont lost 2 7/8 to 149 7 /8 and Eastman Kodak, which Friday reported lower earnings for both the fourth quarter and full year, 2¾. Exxon gave up 1 5/8 to 85¾ and General Motors, which will expand its second-quarter production by 60,000 cars, ¼ to 63.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange, where the price of an average share gained six cents. Volume totaled 4,462,000 shares, compared with 3,418,000 shares Friday.



Electronic banking—Will it eliminate many jobs?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Americans cashed about 28 billion checks and made about 250 billion cash transactions in 1974. It is estimated check usage accounted for more than 90 per cent of the total dollar value of payments.

Banks, retail stores, bill collection agencies and various other businesses employ thousands of persons to process and record these transactions.

For the most part, workers are lower level white-collar employes. Typical are the bank teller, file clerk and supermarket checkout clerk.

The lower level white-collar employes may some day be an obsolete breed, according to a two-year study conducted for the National Science Foundation by the Arthur D. Little research firm.

THE REASON IS a new technology known as Electronic Funds Transfer.

"Basically, EFT is an effort to find a cheaper substitute for checks, and in some cases cash," says Martin Ernst, a Little vice president who was director of the study project.

"An example is the distribution of Social Security checks. Why not have an electronic network and on a given date your account is automatically credited," Ernst said.

"You could also do it for paying money. There are certain types of recurring payments, such as automobile loans, which people worry about. Why not authorize your bank to make it automatically. It can be done electronically without the paper work," he said.

In the banking business, fewer people would be required to process checks. Fewer tellers would be needed for deposits and withdrawals. In fact, with EFT, one may never have to set foot inside a bank.

"WHAT I THINK is important here is that this technology is taking away the starting white-collar jobs. These are jobs which people without college educations and fewer skills are able to move up from," Ernst said.

Ernst is quick to point out he is neither for nor against EFT. "Our assignment was to point out problems, not to solve them," he said.

Automation gradually dimished the blue-collar worker. Now EFT threatens to do the same thing to lower level white-collar employes.

"This is not something which will happen tomorrow. We are looking ahead to about 10 or 15 years," he said.

Gold medalist to speak at 'Skill Olympics' fete

Jon Henricks, holder of two Olympic gold medals, will speak today before the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America "Skill Olympics" luncheon at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago.

Henricks is vice president of corporate affairs for the DoAll Co., Des Plaines. He plans to discuss the shortage of skilled technical workers.

A swimming sprinter, Henricks won two gold medals in the 1956 Olympic competition. He was initiated into the International Swimming Hall of Fame at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in 1973.

Jon Henricks

THE VICA SESSION will include a preview of the 1976 Skill Olympics slated June 15-17 in Miami Beach, Fla. Some 4,000 vocational students from VICA's membership of 200,000 persons will compete for honors in vocational and industrial specialities.

Michael Wilkie, president of the DoAll Co., will be presented a plaque of appreciation by VICA representatives at a Feb. 19 tour of the company's productivity center.

The award is in recognition of the local company's contributions to the association and industrial vocational education. Arthur Meyers of the DoAll Technical Institute, is a member of the VICA Olympic Skills technical committee.

The luncheon Wednesday is jointly sponsored by VICA, the American Technical Society and Addressograph Multigraph Corp.

Natural rubber rebounds with Goodyear 'cancer' Rx

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the 1920s and '30s the automobile and rubber industries agonized over how to develop synthetic rubber. Now they are looking to use more natural rubber.

The increesed interest is underlined by a Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announcement that scientists working on its 10,000-acre Brazilian plantation have conqueed South American leaf blight, the rubber tree cancer that all but destroyed Brazil's great natural rubber forest in the Amazon Valley.

The victory over the leaf blight, achieved by Goodyear botanist Arnold Peterson, is so striking, says Jack Riedl, general manager of Goodyearrs rubber division that in years to come the world against will look to South America as well as Malaysia and Liberia for natural rubber.

All rubber products were made from natural rubber until the Germans produced Buna, the first successful synthetic, in the mid-1930s.

"Some people probably don't realize that natural latex still accounts for 25 per cent of all rubber consumed in the United States," Riedl said. The same ratio probably is roughly true for the world as a whole.

Natural rubber and the sophisticated synthetic rubbers both are needed. Each has advantages over the other. The toughness that gives modern auto tires long mileage is built into synthetics but the resilience and elasticity come from the natural gum and these qualities are vital to many rubber products.

Peterson, the Goodyear botanist, began his battle to conquer South American leaf blight three years ago.

The first year's effort produced a better leaf crop on the trees but no more rubber sap. The second year brought a small increase in rubber yield. The third year has brought harvest increases of 75 to 78 per cent. The results were inspiring, Riedl said, because Peterson started with extremely sick trees that looked hopeless.

As a result, Goodyear is going to resume planting on the plantation near Belem. Planting had been abandoned because of a severe attack of the tree cancer in the mid-1960s that almost wiped out the plantation.

Bell asks ICC to reconsider size of rate increase

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Pres. James Olson Tuesday said the company formally asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to reconsider its Feb. 4 service rate decision.

Citing "numerous errors" in the commission's recent approval of a $70 million rate hike, Olson said the utility will go to court if the agency does not grant the request.

The phone company had asked for a $186-million rate-increase package. The request for a rehearing was filed Friday in Springfield. If the ICC issues no statement by March 4, the request will be denied.

CRITICISM OF the Feb. 4 phone service pricing decision also is offered by Gov. Daniel Walker and State's Atty. Bernard Carey. They questioned the size of the rate hike. Carey said a study by his investigators shows a rate reduction is in order for Illinois Bell customers. A 20-cent pay phone call price and a 1977 starting date for charges on some directory assistance calls is included in the ICC grant.

Among Olson's remarks on the ICC rate increase decision are:

- The commission erred in its order for directory assistance charges that are different from the plan discussed in 11 months of hearings. Olson said the plan "would substantially increase directory assistance cost by requiring equipment additions and much greater operator work time to enable operators to determine, call-by-call, which calls are to be charged and which are not chargeable."

The ICC plan for a 30-cent monthly director assistance credit for each customer would result in revenue losses of more than $14 million a year, Olson said.

- The commission's order "erroneously overstated the revenues which will result from the rates therein approved and therefore, the rates will not produce the revenue authorized in the order," he said.
- The commission did not take account of cutbacks in customer demand due to the increase in multi-message unit and other charges, Olson said.
- The commission ruling that an 8.75 per cent rate of return is fair, was disputed by Olson. "The manifest weight of the evidence in the record shows that 9.5 to 10 per cent is the range of a proper rate return on the company's property," he said.

Telephone service may suffer if the ICC's "inadequate" rate decision is allowed to stand, Olson said.

IN A STATEMENT issued following the Feb. 4 ICC decision, Carey said the burden of the 20-cent phone charge for coin telephones will "fall on those who can least afford it, those who are too poor to mai tain a telephone in their home." The previous rate for coin telephone service was 10 cents.

A spokesman for the ICC in Chicago said the commission may decide within one week whether to review the decision. Bell serves more than 3 million customers in Illinois.

Caution causes stock price dip

NEW YORK (UPI) — Concern over the economic recovery and the third largest bank failure in U.S. history sent prices lower in fairly active trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, an 8.42-point loser Friday, lost another 7.79 points to 950.57. The blue chip indicator had been behind only about a point up until early afternoon.

Declines outdistanced advances, 842 to 677, while 386 remain unchanged among the 1,905 issues crossing the tape.

STANDARD & POOR'S 500-stock index gave up 0.62 to 99.05, and the NYSE common stock index, 0.32 to 52.95. The average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 20 cents.

Volume totaled 25,460,000 shares, up slightly from the 23,872,520 shares turned over Friday on the eve of the holiday weekend. The market was closed Monday for Washington's birthday.

The market retreated substantially in the early afternoon after the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported one measure of the nation's balance of payments was $2.1 billion in deficit for the final 1975 quarter. There was a $4.9 billion surplus in the third quarter; in the closing 1974 quarter there was a $4.9 billion deficit.

A NEW COMPUTER system speeds parts orders for Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge auto dealers. Here, catalog details are viewed on a tabletop screen by an auto dealer partsman.

Microfiche makes job easier for auto dealer

Thumbing through page after page of parts books is no longer necessary for the auto dealer parts man, thanks to a new microfiche catalog system used by Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge dealers.

The new, compact system is called MOPAD. To look up a part number, a parts man picks out the plastic card that's color coded to indicate model year. A complete year of auto parts can be listed on four to six of the cards.

Since the catalog pages are reduced to 50 times less their normal size, the fiche are inserted in a table top projector to be read. Once projected, the catalog details are about 20 per cent larger than the size in paper catalogs.

In addition to being a time-saving device for the dealer employe, the system enables dealers to serve customer demands quickly, the company said. The company's 19 parts depots are linked by computer.

Goal is to humanize businesses

Image building is firm's specialty

by ROZ LISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Giant corporations around the globe are faced with an identtity crisis now that professional managers are running what used to be family-owned empires with distinctive personalitits.

Walter Landor Associates, a leading industrial designer, specializes in corporate image building to capture the identity of the modern-day company whose public profile too often conveys impersonality and overwhelming size.

Armed with international specialists and psychology, Landor dispatches teams to both hemispheres to revamp a client's logo, slogan and even its business forms.

"THE LOGO IS only the tip of the corporate image," said Walter Landor, president of the San Francisco-based firm, which has its headquarters on a landmark ferry boat. "The total image is conveyed through everything the company prints and the words it uses."

One coporate facelift recently made headlines when the National Broadcasting Co. abandoned its peacock for a new symbol, at enormous cost, only to discover it duplicated the logo designed for a Nebraska educational station for a mere $100.

"The more companies tend toward completely abstract symbols," Landor told UPI, "the more difficult it is for people to respond as human beings to the corporation and to give the corporation a unique personality of its own."

One of Landor's most challenging projects is Isetan, a Tokyo-based retail chain similar to New York's Bloomingdale's. The company's quest for a new identity was compounded by the Japanese language, which uses symbols to convey word meaning.

"OUR MAIN PROBLEM as a Western firm was to understand the mentality and cultural history of the Japanese so that we did not trespass into the area of language symbolism," said Landor.

Using a team of Americans, Europeans and Orientals, the design firm creattd a logo with visual meaning that was totally unrelated to any Japanese character.

As part of the image overhaul, the team redesigned the store's sales tags, sales, slips, packaging, monthly bills and accompanying envelopes, office forms, interior, directional signs, lighting system and even studied the sales staff's clothing and approach to customers.

"A tremendous amount of money can be saved by a corporation over the years in standardizing sales slips and other office forms," according to Landor. "Huge cost cavings can be achieved by reducing the time it takes to fill out forms and process the information."

PUBLIC RECOGNITION of a corporation's new image also can boost profits, he said.

The Isetan project, which still is being implemented, also posed another communications hurdle for the Landor team.

"The Japanese are more indirect than Westerners, and the Japanese client never expresses outright approval or disapproval," Landor said. In marketing surveys on proposed images for Iseta, for example, the ttam used indirect methods of questioning to probe the attitudes of Japanese consumers.

"A change in corporate identity is resented only if it is not an appropriate solution," he said. "The public responds positively if the image conveys that the corporation is run by people with hearts and souls rather than by neuters and computers."

U.S. bonds a top stock: treasurer

"Taking stock in America is the best blue chip investment anyone can make," said Francine Neff, U. S. treasurer, speaking Tuesday in Chicago.

Addressing a group of savings bond campaign chairmen, Mrs. Neff said the goal for 1976 bond sales is $7.6 billion. The Chicago metropolitan area goal is $375 million.

Gov. Daniel Walker's proclamation of Feb. 16-22 as "Minute Man Week," to promote savings bond sales, was read at the luncheon meeting held in the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

As the National Director of the U. S. Savings Bond Division, Treasury Dept., Mrs. Neff plugs the investment as a decision that's good for an individual and good for the country. A payroll savings plan allows a citizen to participate in the financing of our government in a voluntary way, she said.

MRS. NEFF SAID Treasury Sec. William E. Simon pegs the U. S. capital needs for the coming decade at $4 trillion to $4.5 trillion.

James E. Olson, president of Illinois Bell Telephone Co., urged the business executives to develop personal involvement in the savings bond sales campaign. He is Chicago region representative in the U. S. Industrial Payroll Savings Committee.

Series E savings bonds are securities available in denominations starting at $25. The interest rate is 6 per cent, with a five-year maturity. They can be exchanged in multiples of $500 for Series H bonds, which pay interest every six months.

A NEW COMPUTER system speeds parts orders for Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge auto dealers. Here, catalog details are viewed on a tabletop screen by an auto dealer partsman.

Microfiche makes job easier for auto dealer

Thumbing through page after page of parts books is no longer necessary for the auto dealer parts man, thanks to a new microfiche catalog system used by Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge dealers.

The new, compact system is called MOPAD. To look up a part number, a parts man picks out the plastic card that's color coded to indicate model year. A complete year of auto parts can be listed on four to six of the cards.

Since the catalog pages are reduced to 50 times less their normal size, the fiche are inserted in a table top projector to be read. Once projected, the catalog details are about 20 per cent larger than the size in paper catalogs.

In addition to being a time-saving device for the dealer employe, the system enables dealers to serve customer demands quickly, the company said. The company's 19 parts depots are linked by computer.

Goal is to humanize businesses

Image building is firm's specialty

by ROZ LISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Giant corporations around the globe are faced with an identtity crisis now that professional managers are running what used to be family-owned empires with distinctive personalitits.

Walter Landor Associates, a leading industrial designer, specializes in corporate image building to capture the identity of the modern-day company whose public profile too often conveys impersonality and overwhelming size.

Armed with international specialists and psychology, Landor dispatches teams to both hemispheres to revamp a client's logo, slogan and even its business forms.

"THE LOGO IS only the tip of the corporate image," said Walter Landor, president of the San Francisco-based firm, which has its headquarters on a landmark ferry boat. "The total image is conveyed through everything the company prints and the words it uses."

Computer covers national mania for obscure stat

Jim Murray

Sportswriters, as a class, are noted for their addiction to statistics. Baseball is a game of inches, football is a game of yards, and basketball is regulated by seconds.

I once knew a guy, a sportswriter all his life, who was put to covering movies and, the first thing you knew, he was clocking things like "the longest movie kiss," "the most people killed in an adult Western," "the private eye hit oftenest over the head" or the most cigarets smoked by Bette Davis, or the most countries capured by Errol Flynn.

Some years ago Leonard Koppett, a baseball writer, famous for his passion for the all-purpose statistic, was observed struggling into a press box with a bulky suitcase. "What's he got in there?" someone wondered idly. Jimmy Cannon, casting a cursory glance at the bulging valise snapped tersely, "Decimal points."

It's the abstruse logarithm that fascinates the poets of the press box most — the non-winning times, the lap fractions of second-place finishers, the rap-outs at the lower heights by the pole vaulters. Never mind the third-down conversions, he likes the second-down yardages.

"Won" and "Lost" are no longer considered meaningful measures of prowess to the dedicated figure filbert. The language of sports has been enriched in the past few decades with the "earned run average," the "hang time" of punts. It's no longer the batting average but the "slugging" average. It's not whether you won or lost, it's the square root.

Managers and coaches have their own esoteric rating system. Baseball managers love guys who can bunt or hit to right. Home run hitters make them mutter in their sleep. Football coaches grade guys on how well they run their routes, or "slant" or "loop" in the line. Basketball coaches praise guys who can set a pick, regardless of what they do from the line.

And now, a whisky promotion has come along and attempted to computerize this national mania for the obscure stat, and perhaps prove that not all the best practitioners of sport are in the Super Bowl, the World Series, the Johnny Carson show, or even the Stanley Cup. They have come up with something called the "Productive Efficiency Rating," with a view to finding a (of course) "Seven Crowns of Sports" winner, who may not necessarily be O. J. Simpson, Johnny Bench, Jimmy Connors. Or it may even delve into the past and prove Babe Ruth was a bum and Dempsey a prelim fighter.

The program hoped to find out if the guy who really does hit to right, or moves the runner along, is really the MVP and not the hokey guy the writers awarded it to in a vote.

What they were trying to do was show that, say, a hockey goal scored in an 8-1 game against a backup goalie is not to be equated with one scored in overtime against the Philadelphia Flyers, or that a 30-save night against a bunch of slap-happy shots-on-goal players trying to wing in winners from the blue line is not all that impressive. That a 100-runs-batted-in year for a guy on a non-contending club who looks at second-line pitching all year is not all that valid.

They have come up with a few interesting oddities. A triple in baseball, for example, invariably results in 1.2 runs they say.

Since very few games are decided 1.2-0, and since the most triples hit in the big leagues last were by Mickey Rivers, who can triple on an infield hit, you have to wonder if the computer can be trusted.

If one were to hope the greatest player in the NFL last year would turn out to be Otis Sistrunk, or the best basketball player Toby Kimball, or the best baseball player John Wockenfuss, the hope is wasted. The computer turns out to be just another bubble-gum card collector. It's torn between Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Julius Erving in basketball, O. J. Simpson and Franco Harris in football, and Joe Morgan and Fred Lynn in baseball.

It did throw Connors out of the tennis scene and correctly identified Manuel Orantes as the Player of the Year even before Forest Hills. But otherwise, it's as big a chalk player as Sports Illustrated. It doesn't think any more of a guy who takes two and hits to right, or sets the pick, or provides the trap block, than any other autograph hound.

Alas! Not even a computer can be trained to watch the guards or reserve judgment till it studies the films. It throws its hat in the air over home runs and touchdowns and service aces and one-putts the same as the rest of us.

Conant wins thriller, gains South lead

by ART MUGALIAN

The Conant Cougars overcame stiff odds and a full-court press to defeat Schaumburg 51-49 Tuesday night at the Saxons' gym, knocking Schaumburg from first place in the Mid-Suburban League South Division basketball race.

The victory puts Conant in the driver's seat with a 9-2 record.

The Cougars survived a last-minute surge by Schaumburg which narrowed a five-point lead down to one with 13 seconds left, but a shot by Jon McIlraith fell short and Conant held on with the rebound and a free throw by Rob Totten.

Cougar guard Pete Scaffidi led his team with 18 points on nine field goals. Totten and Brian O Donnell hae 13 each, including 16 free throws zetween them, all but five in the second half.

Conant rebounded from a disastrous first quarter which saw Schaumburg build a 23-12 lead almost before the visitors knew what hit them. Schaumburg shot 10 for 13 in that first period, led by 6-3 guard Ed Chmiel who had four straight baskets. But Chmiel sprained an ankle late in the quarter and was in and out the rest of the way.

Schaumburg finished South Division play at 9-3. The Saxons can win a division title only if Conant is upset at Forest View Friday.

"We shot the whole game like Schaumburg did in the first quarter," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger, whose team is now 13-7 for the season. "The kids played well, they hung in there and they really hustled."

Redlinger had planned to switch zone defenses to confuse Schaumburg, but nothing stopped the Saxons in the opening minutes. Chmiel and Dan Breen scored from outside and John Chmiel broke free a couple times for easy baskets underneath.

"We decided to stay with the 2-3 zone," said Redlinger. "The 2-3 is what cooled them off in the second quarter."

While Scaffidi hit from the baseline and Totten drove the lanes and fed off, the Cougars closed ground, finally pulling even 31-31 on a pair of Totten free throws at the start of the second half.

"We didn't have one of our better shooting nights," said Saxon coach Joe Breault. "But we weren't getting too many open shots or second chances either."

Schaumburg shot just 35 per cent from the field and missed seven of 16 free throw attempts. The Cougars were 17 of 38 from the floor and 17 of 24 from the line.

Conant outrebounded their opponents 29-21.

The lead changed hands several times in the third quarter before the Cougars opened a 47-44 fourth period edge on a fast break layup and two free throws by O'Donnell.

With 1:36 left Totten dropped in two more free throws for what looked like a safe 50-45 lead.

But a short turnaround jumper by John Chmiel and a baseline drive by McIlraith with just 17 seconds left cut the margin to one. McIlraith's missed attempt from the top of the key with 8 seconds remaining, following a Conant turnover, was the Saxons' last chance.

Totten, whose final free throw iced the victory, finished with eight assists. O'Donnell had 10 rebounds to lead both teams. Ed Chmiel and McIlraith had 16 points each for Schaumburg. John Chmiel had 11 for Schaumburg, now 19-4.

Meadows romps; Pirates, Grens, West triumph

Led by Terry Moran's 16 first half points and helped by dominating control of the boards, the Rolling Meadows Mustangs buried Forest View Tuesday night, 84-50.

"It's one of those nights we've been waiting for forever," said Mustang coach Bill Weinberg after the game. Weinberg praised his team's over-all play, and especially singled out Moran.

"He's (Moran) started to come on late in the year and just had a helluva game," Weinberg said.

Both clubs shot at a blistering pace from the field — Forest View, 61 per cent, and Meadows 62 per cent. The Mustangs opened a 38-25 halftime lead with a red-hot 18 for 25 barrage, 72 per cent accuracy.

The Mustangs dominated on the boards, pulling down 38 to only 12 for Forest View.

The 84 points is a high season mark for the Mustangs, and just about everybody had a hand in the scoring honors. Moran led with 20, followed by Bill Wissen with 16, John Carbery with 16 and Jerry McGill with 10. Tom Lunak led the Falcons with 20.

more to come

PIRATES TOPPLE KNIGHTS

Ken Reid teamed with Kevin McKenna to dominate the backboard and the scoreboard Tuesday night in leading Palatine to a 66-57 triumph over visiting Prospect.

The Pirates, who have yet to win a game in their own North Division, captured the second straight crossover contest by jumping into an 18-10 first quarter lead and never relinquishing control.

Reid dropped in four buckets during the Palatine uprising and Al Knotek chipped in with a trio of field goals.

McKenna, nursing a sore ankle, still managed to maintain his hefty scoring average, zeroing in on 10 of 21 afield and finishing with 24 points. Reid clicked on nine of 17 from the floor for 18 total.

McKenna and Reid also hauled in 15 and 13 rebounds, respectively, while helping the hosts dominate the boards.

Heading up the Knight attack were Brad Millar with 17 points, Tim Kubicki with 11 and Chris Etter with 10. Prospect now owns an 8-15 overall log.

GRENS POST 18TH WIN

Dave Hornacek and Mark Sass combined for 37 points Tuesday night to lead the Elk Grove Grenadiers to a 53-40 win over the hosting Hoffman Estates Hawks.

The win pumped the Grens' Mid-Suburban League South Division slate to 7-4 and their overall record to 18-5.

"Our defense really tied them up in the second half," said Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier. "We held them to just three baskets in the fourth quarter."

The Grens took an early lead and never lost it as they topped the Hawks for the third time this season.

Hornacek led the Grens with 21 points and Sass canned 16.

Ron Warring chipped in 16 pints to lead Hoffman. Jeff Curtin added 12.

The two teams battled to a 31-31 standoff in rebounding.

WARRIORS BLITZ CARDS

The Maine West Warriors gave an impressive demonstration of 'both ends of the court' basketball Tuesday night in a convincing 78-49 non-conference victory over Arlington.

Spotting the visiting Cardinals an early 7-2 lead, Maine West forged back to tie the game on several occasions in the first quarter.

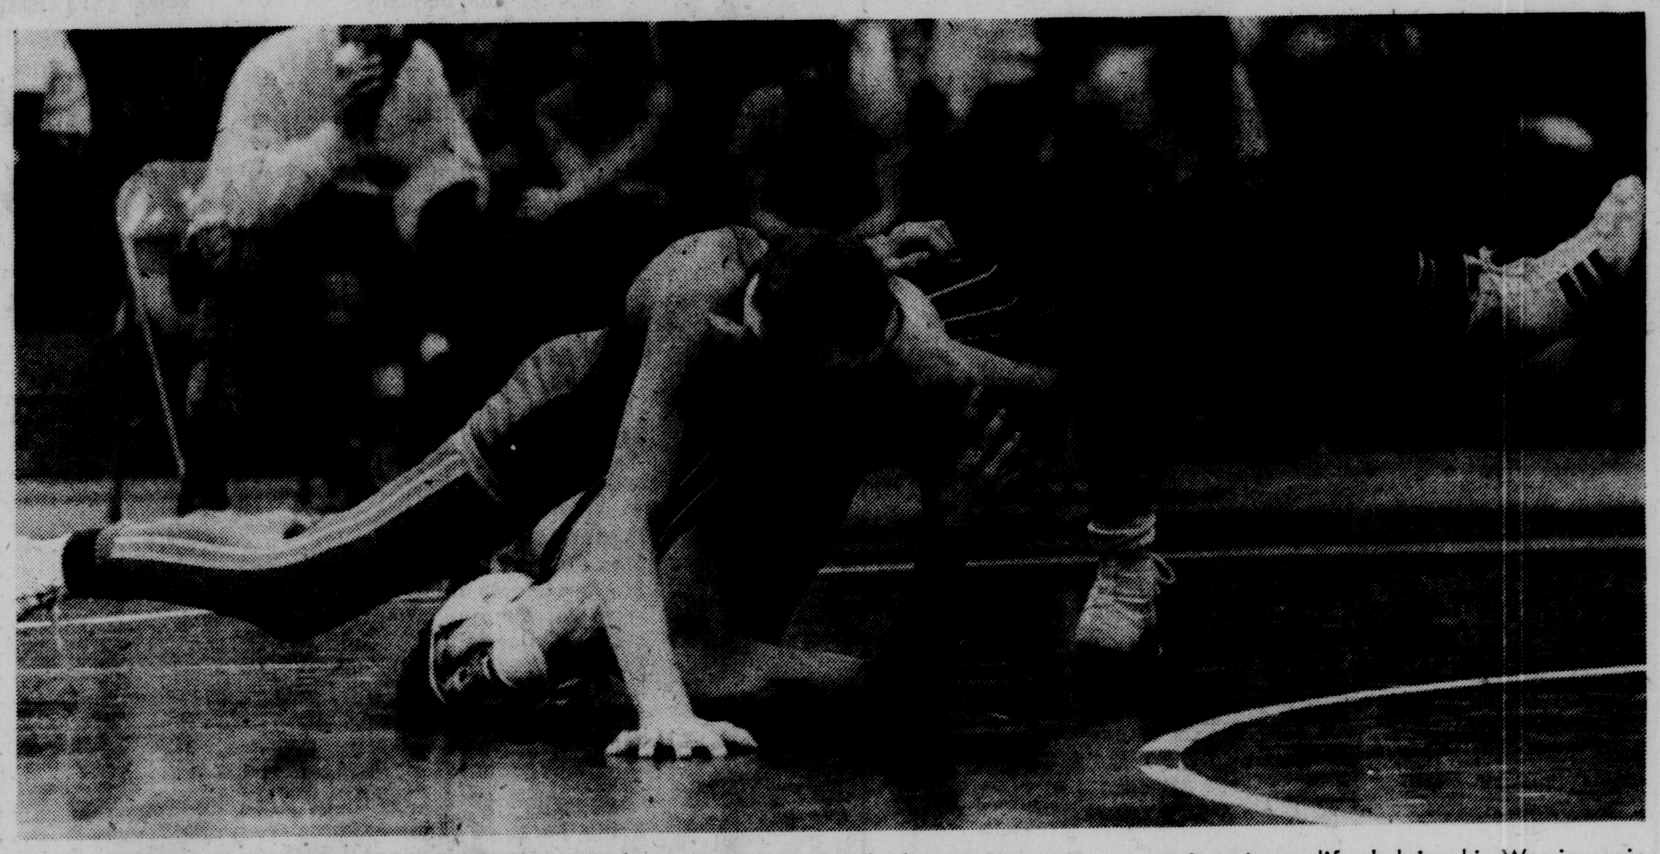
Strong rebounding on the defensive boards and good movement on offense were key factors in the Warriors' comeback. Baskets by Buddy Doroskin and Bob Zuccarini put Maine West up, 17-13, at the quarter's end.

The momentum and fluidity achieved by Maine West in the first quarter was maintained the rest of the way. Maine West outscored the Cardinals 40-24 in the final half.

Arlington was limited to one shot by the Warriors throughout much of the contest, which provided the hosts with a substantial edge in field goals, 33-22.

Senior forward Bill Fininis led Maine West, now 14-9, with 20 points, while Zuccarini scored 17 points.

Center Greg Kloiber topped the Arlington ledger with 14. The Cards are now 9-13 overall.



COLD SHOULDER. Rick Gauger tries some pinning combinations on Frank Roemisch of Forest View in their 112-pound quarterfinal bout at the Ridgewood district tourney. Gauger eventually won by fall at 3:20 and went on to qualify, helping his Warriors win the team championship.

Top girls' teams escape upsets

Only four Mid-Suburban League girls' basketball teams remain undefeated in division play after Tuesday night's action.

In the North Division, Fremd had a close call at Buffalo Grove before winning 63-56. Wheeling matched Fremd's 2-0 record with a convincing 65-33 victory over visiting Palatine.

Meanwhile, the top teams in the South were narrowed to Hoffman Estates and Conant. The Hoffman Hawks held off a tough hosting Elk Grove team to win 54-47. It was Hoffman's second divisional triumph without a loss. It was the Grenadiers first setback.

The Conant Cougars notched their first division win in as many tries with a 36-27 decision at Forest View (1-1).

In the other MSL game, Hersey evened its record at 1-1 with a 43-32 victory over visiting Arlington. The Prospect-Schaumburg game was called because there were no referees.

Other action had Sacred Heart stopping Lake Park, 38-27; Maine West losing its season opener to Highland Park, 61-40; and Rolling Meadows notching its first win in seven tries, edging Addison Trail 27-19.

Fremd, holder of an 8-0 over-all record, appeared headed for still another romp against the Bison. The Vikings jumped out to a 31-12 first quarter lead.

"They (Bison) just kept saying they wouldn't give up," said Buffalo Grove coach Ann Penstone. "They said they were going to give them a good game no matter what."

The Bison held Fremd to just two points in the second quarter to trail at the half, 33-22. Buffalo Grove cut the lead to four with a minute to go before Fremd put it out of reach.

Heidi Giesler led Fremd with 16 points. Allsmiller was tops for the Bison with 11. Buffalo Grove had won three straight coming into the contest. "Maybe somebody will take us seriously now," said Penstone.

Fremd's important win sets up the crucial matchup with Wheeling on Thursday with the division title quite possibly on the line.

Wheeling romped to its eighth win without a loss behind Sandy Rainey's 14 points. Marcy Mazzetta was high for the Pirates with 12.

The Hoffman Estates Hawks notched their sixth game in eight tries as Clare Dowling tossed in 26 — her high game and also the area high game of the season. Kim Richardson led the Grenadiers with 13.

Forest View ran into a tough defensive quintet in Conant, scoring only three in the third quarter. The Cougars put the game away in that period with 12 points. Kathy Evans scored 11 to led Conant to its seventh win in nine games.

Computer covers national mania for obscure stat

Jim Murray

Sportswriters, as a class, are noted for their addiction to statistics. Baseball is a game of inches, football is a game of yards, and basketball is regulated by seconds.

I once knew a guy, a sportswriter all his life, who was put to covering movies and, the first thing you knew, he was clocking things like "the longest movie kiss," "the most people killed in an adult Western," "the private eye hit oftenest over the head" or the most cigarets smoked by Bette Davis, or the most countries capured by Errol Flynn.

Some years ago Leonard Koppett, a baseball writer, famous for his passion for the all-purpose statistic, was observed struggling into a press box with a bulky suitcase. "What's he got in there?" someone wondered idly. Jimmy Cannon, casting a cursory glance at the bulging valise snapped tersely, "Decimal points."

It's the abstruse logarithm that fascinates the poets of the press box most — the non-winning times, the lap fractions of second-place finishers, the rap-outs at the lower heights by the pole vaulters. Never mind the third-down conversions, he likes the second-down yardages.

"Won" and "Lost" are no longer considered meaningful measures of prowess to the dedicated figure filbert. The language of sports has been enriched in the past few decades with the "earned run average," the "hang time" of punts. It's no longer the batting average but the "slugging" average. It's not whether you won or lost, it's the square root.

Managers and coaches have their own esoteric rating system. Baseball managers love guys who can bunt or hit to right. Home run hitters make them mutter in their sleep. Football coaches grade guys on how well they run their routes, or "slant" or "loop" in the line. Basketball coaches praise guys who can set a pick, regardless of what they do from the line.

And now, a whisky promotion has come along and attempted to computerize this national mania for the obscure stat, and perhaps prove that not all the best practitioners of sport are in the Super Bowl, the World Series, the Johnny Carson show, or even the Stanley Cup. They have come up with something called the "Productive Efficiency Rating," with a view to finding a (of course) "Seven Crowns of Sports" winner, who may not necessarily be O. J. Simpson, Johnny Bench, Jimmy Connors. Or it may even delve into the past and prove Babe Ruth was a bum and Dempsey a prelim fighter.

The program hoped to find out if the guy who really does hit to right, or moves the runner along, is really the MVP and not the hokey guy the writers awarded it to in a vote.

What they were trying to do was show that, say, a hockey goal scored in an 8-1 game against a backup goalie is not to be equated with one scored in overtime against the Philadelphia Flyers, or that a 30-save night against a bunch of slap-happy shots-on-goal players trying to wing in winners from the blue line is not all that impressive. That a 100-runs-batted-in year for a guy on a non-contending club who looks at second-line pitching all year is not all that valid.

They have come up with a few interesting oddities. A triple in baseball, for example, invariably results in 1.2 runs they say.

Since very few games are decided 1.2-0, and since the most triples hit in the big leagues last were by Mickey Rivers, who can triple on an infield hit, you have to wonder if the computer can be trusted.

If one were to hope the greatest player in the NFL last year would turn out to be Otis Sistrunk, or the best basketball player Toby Kimball, or the best baseball player John Wockenfuss, the hope is wasted. The computer turns out to be just another bubblegum card collector. It's torn between Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Julius Erving in basketball, O. J. Simpson and Franco Harris in football, and Joe Morgan and Fred Lynn in baseball.

It did throw Connors out of the tennis scene and correctly identified Manuel Orantes as the Player of the Year even before Forest Hills. But otherwise, it's as big a chalk player as Sports Illustrated. It doesn't think any more of a guy who takes two and hits to right, or sets the pick, or provides the trap block, than any other autograph hound.

Alas! Not even a computer can be trained to watch the guards or reserve judgment till it studies the films. It throws its hat in the air over home runs and touchdowns and service aces and one-putts the same as the rest of us.

Conant wins thriller, gains South lead

by ART MUGALIAN

The Conant Cougars overcame stiff odds and a full-court press to defeat Schaumburg 51-49 Tuesday night at the Saxons' gym, knocking Schaumburg from first place in the Mid-Suburban League South Division basketball race.

The victory puts Conant in the driver's seat with a 9-2 record.

The Cougars survived a last-minute surge by Schaumburg which narrowed a five-point lead down to one with 13 seconds left, but a shot by Jon McIlraith fell short and Conant held on with the rebound and a free throw by Rob Totten.

Cougar guard Pete Scaffidi led his team with 18 points on nine field goals. Totten and Brian O Donnell hae 13 each, including 16 free throws zetween them, all but five in the second half.

Conant rebounded from a disastrous first quarter which saw Schaumburg build a 23-12 lead almost before the visitors knew what hit them. Schaumburg shot 10 for 13 in that first period, led by 6-3 guard Ed Chmiel who had four straight baskets. But Chmiel sprained an ankle late in the quarter and was in and out the rest of the way.

Schaumburg finished South Division play at 9-3. The Saxons can win a division title only if Conant is upset at Forest View Friday.

"We shot the whole game like Schaumburg did in the first quarter," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger, whose team is now 13-7 for the season. "The kids played well, they hung in there and they really hustled."

Redlinger had planned to switch zone defenses to confuse Schaumburg, but nothing stopped the Saxons in the opening minutes. Chmiel and Dan Breen scored from outside and John Chmiel broke free a couple times for easy baskets underneath.

"We decided to stay with the 2-3 zone," said Redlinger. "The 2-3 is what cooled them off in the second quarter."

While Scaffidi hit from the baseline and Totten drove the lanes and fed off, the Cougars closed ground, finally pulling even 31-31 on a pair of Totten free throws at the start of the second half.

"We didn't have one of our better shooting nights," said Saxon coach Joe Breault. "But we weren't getting too many open shots or second chances either."

Schaumburg shot just 35 per cent from the field and missed seven of 16 free throw attempts. The Cougars were 17 of 38 from the floor and 17 of 24 from the line.

Conant outrebounded their opponents 29-21.

The lead changed hands several times in the third quarter before the Cougars opened a 47-44 fourth period edge on a fast break layup and two free throws by O'Donnell.

With 1:36 left Totten dropped in two more free throws for what looked like a safe 50-45 lead.

But a short turnaround jumper by John Chmiel and a baseline drive by McIlraith with just 17 seconds left cut the margin to one. McIlraith's missed attempt from the top of the key with 8 seconds remaining, following a Conant turnover, was the Saxons' last chance.

Totten, whose final free throw iced the victory, finished with eight assists. O'Donnell had 10 rebounds to lead both teams. Ed Chmiel and McIlraith had 16 points each for Schaumburg. John Chmiel had 11 for Schaumburg, now 19-4.

Meadows romps; Pirates, Grens, West triumph

Led by Terry Moran's 16 first half points and helped by dominating control of the boards, the Rolling Meadows Mustangs buried Forest View Tuesday night, 84-50.

"It's one of those nights we've been waiting for forever," said Mustang coach Bill Weinberg after the game. Weinberg praised his team's over-all play, and especially singled out Moran.

"He's (Moran) started to come on late in the year and just had a helluva game," Weinberg said.

Both clubs shot at a blistering pace from the field — Forest View, 61 per cent, and Meadows 62 per cent. The Mustangs opened a 38-25 halftime lead with a red-hot 18 for 25 barrage, 72 per cent accuracy.

The Mustangs dominated on the boards, pulling down 38 to only 12 for Forest View.

The 84 points is a high season mark for the Mustangs, and just about everybody had a hand in the scoring honors. Moran led with 20, followed by Bill Wissen with 16, John Carbery with 16 and Jerry McGill with 10. Tom Lunak led the Falcons with 20.

PIRATES TOPPLE KNIGHTS

Ken Reid teamed with Kevin McKenna to dominate the backboard and the scoreboard Tuesday night in leading Palatine to a 66-57 triumph over visiting Prospect.

The Pirates, who have yet to win a game in their own North Division, captured the second straight crossover contest by jumping into an 18-10 first quarter lead and never relinquishing control.

Reid dropped in four buckets during the Palatine uprising and Al Knotek chipped in with a trio of field goals.

McKenna, nursing a sore ankle, still managed to maintain his hefty scoring average, zeroing in on 10 of 21 afield and finishing with 24 points. Reid clicked on nine of 17 from the floor for 18 total.

McKenna and Reid also hauled in 15 and 13 rebounds, respectively, while helping the hosts dominate the boards.

Heading up the Knight attack were Brad Millar with 17 points, Tim Kubicki with 11 and Chris Etter with 10. Prospect now owns an 8-15 overall log.

GRENS POST 18TH WIN

Dave Hornacek and Mark Sass combined for 37 points Tuesday night to lead the Elk Grove Grenadiers to a 53-40 win over the hosting Hoffman Estates Hawks.

The win pumped the Grens' Mid-Suburban League South Division slate to 7-4 and their overall record to 18-5.

"Our defense really tied them up in the second half," said Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier. "We held them to just three baskets in the fourth quarter."

The Grens took an early lead and never lost it as they topped the Hawks for the third time this season.

Hornacek led the Grens with 21 points and Sass canned 16.

Ron Warring chipped in 16 pints to lead Hoffman. Jeff Curtin added 12.

The two teams battled to a 31-31 standoff in rebounding.

WARRIORS BLITZ CARDS

The Maine West Warriors gave an impressive demonstration of 'both ends of the court' basketball Tuesday night in a convincing 78-49 non-conference victory over Arlington.

Spotting the visiting Cardinals an early 7-2 lead, Maine West forged back to tie the game on several occasions in the first quarter.

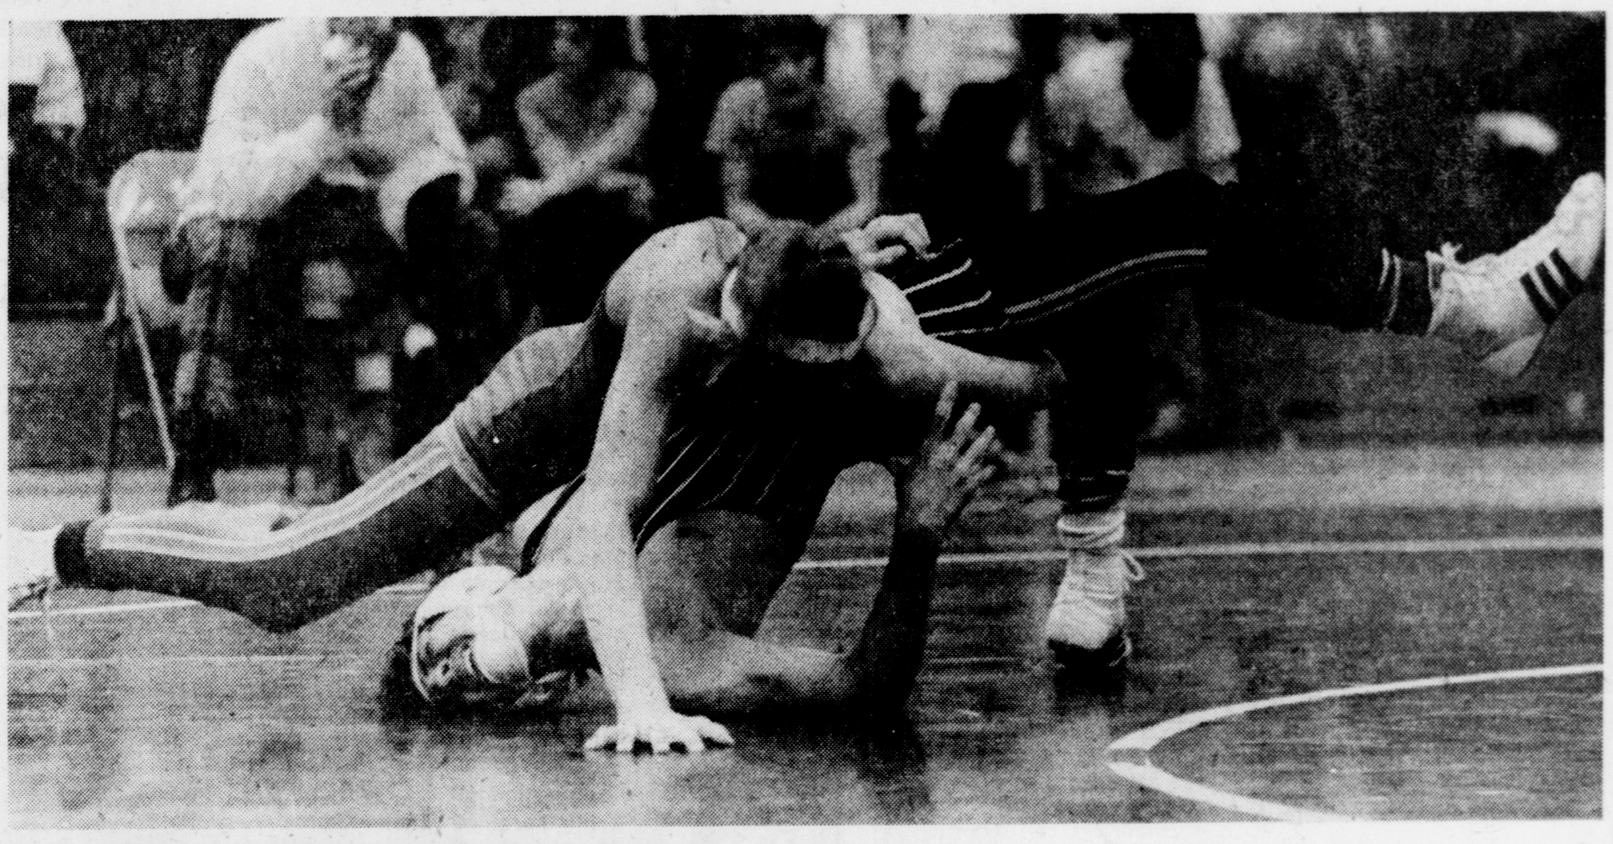
Strong rebounding on the defensive boards and good movement on offense were key factors in the Warriors' comeback. Baskets by Buddy Doroskin and Bob Zuccarini put Maine West up, 17-13, at the quarter's end.

The momentum and fluidity achieved by Maine West in the first quarter was maintained the rest of the way. Maine West outscored the Cardinals 40-24 in the final half.

Arlington was limited to one shot by the Warriors throughout much of the contest, which provided the hosts with a substantial edge in field goals, 33-22.

Senior forward Bill Fininis led Maine West, now 14-9, with 20 points, while Zuccarini scored 17 points.

Center Greg Kloiber topped the Arlington ledger with 14. The Cards are now 9-13 overall.



COLD SHOULDER. Rick Gauger tries some pinning combinations on Frank Roemisch of Forest View in their 112-pound quarterfinal bout at the Ridgewood district tourney. Gauger eventually won by fall at 3:20 and went on to qualify, helping his Warriors win the team championship.

Only four Mid-Suburban League girls' basketball teams remain undefeated in division play after Tuesday night's action.

In the North Division, Fremd had a close call at Buffalo Grove before winning 63-56. Wheeling matched Fremd's 2-0 record with a convincing 65-33 victory over visiting Palatine.

Meanwhile, the top teams in the South were narrowed to Hoffman Estates and Conant. The Hoffman Hawks held off a tough hosting Elk Grove team to win 54-47. It was Hoffman's second divisional triumph without a loss. It was the Grenadiers first setback.

The Conant Cougars notched their first division win in as many tries with a 36-27 decision at Forest View (1-1).

In the other MSL game, Hersey evened its record at 1-1 with a 43-32 victory over visiting Arlington. The Prospect-Schaumburg game was called because there were no referees.

Other action had Sacred Heart stopping Lake Park, 38-27; Maine West losing its season opener to Highland Park, 61-40; and Rolling Meadows notching its first win in seven tries, edging Addison Trail 27-19.

The Bison held Fremd to just two points in the second quarter to trail at the half, 33-22. Buffalo Grove cut the lead to four with a minute to go before Fremd put it out of reach.

Heidi Giesler led Fremd with 16 points. Allsmiller was tops for the Bison with 11. Buffalo Grove had won three straight coming into the contest. "Maybe somebody will take us seriously now," said Penstone.

Fremd's important win sets up the crucial matchup with Wheeling on Thursday with the division title quite possibly on the line.

The Hoffman Estates Hawks notched their sixth game in eight tries as Clare Dowling tossed in 26 — her high game and also the area high game of the season. Kim Richardson led the Grenadiers with 13.

Forest View ran into a tough defensive quintet in Conant, scoring only three in the third quarter. The Cougars put the game away in that period with 12 points. Kathy Evans scored 11 to led Conant to its seventh win in nine games.

Chicago topples Phoenix in OT

Jack Marin scored six points in the final 19 seconds of overtime Tuesday night to pace the Chicago Bulls to a 114-111 victory over the Phoenix Suns, breaking a three-game losing streak.

Marin put the Bulls ahead 110-109 with a layup with 19 seconds to play. Then he intercepted a Suns pass and banked in a five foot off balance shot with six seconds remaining. After a basket by Paul Westphal for the Suns, Marin canned two free throws with one second left.

Marin came off the bench after the first period to lead all scorers with a season high 34 points. Bob Love had 31, 24 of them in the first half. Starting center Elvin Adams of Phoenix had 32 points.

Phoenix sent the game into overtime when Curtis Perry scored on a tipin with three seconds remaining in regulation time. Chicago had led 81-76 going into the final period when the Suns came back to tie the game at 93-93 with just over three minutes to play.

But Love put the Bulls ahead with a layup with 2:40 left and then added four points and Marin two before Phoenix scored the final eight points of the period, four from Adams and two from Westphal, to tie.

Sale of Giants bogs down again

A tedious, point-by-point approval of a sale memorandum by directors of the National Exhibition Co. may delay transfer of the San Francisco Giants to Bob Lurie and Bob Short for several days, the attorney for the company said Tuesday.

"I doubt if we'll have a decision today," James L. Hunt said after meeting with directors of NEC, the parent company of the financially ailing National League team. "It might be a couple of days, maybe longer. Points that have to be renegotiated might stretch it out."

The Lurie and Short combine made an $8 million cash offer for the franchise last week, but Hunt said, "It is much more complicated than the flat offer made in court last week. Getting the exact terms of the cash transaction is not simple. There probably will be counter-proposals and counter-counter proposals.

"However, we're hopeful that everything will be worked out as quickly as possible."

Ali on the ropes with head cold

A coughing, nose-dripping Muhammad Ali cancelled a sparring session Tuesday but gave a crowd of 600 onlookers one of his typical monlogue performances.

"Patrice Lumumba, where are you?" shouted Ali. "Remember the Congo!", referring to the fact the challenger Jean-Pierre Coopman is Belgian. The heavyweight title bout is set for Friday at the Roberto Clemente Municipal Coliseum. "I'm here to talk, not to fight," Ali told the crowd.

During a light workout of rope skippping and punching the bag, the champion sweated profusely, coughed and blew his nose on his towel. However, he insisted, "I'm in top condition."

Aggie cagers forced to sidelines

Attorneys for Texas A&M basketball starters Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams, suspended by the Southwest Conference, tried and failed Tuesday to win resinstatement for the players, thus preventing them from appearing in Tuesday night's Aggie-Houston game.

The lawyers apparently planned another attempt today to win a temporary restraining order that would allow Godine and Williams to participate in the remainder of the schedule for the league-leading Aggies.

Godine and Williams, both freshmen, were suspended by the conference last Sunday. League officials have refused to state publicly why the action was taken, although subsequent reports have indicated the suspensions resulted from alleged recruiting violations.

Vilas back in tournament form

Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina used a hard volley and a strong backhand Tuesday to beat Anand Amritraj of India in the first round of the $60,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic, 7-6, 6-2. Vilas, 23, who had rested from tournament competition the last 10 weeks, won the tiebreaker, 7-1, as Amritraj lost all four of his serves.

Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Barcelona, Spain, took his first-round match over Ray Moore of Johannesburg, South Africa, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. Earlier in the tourney, Billy Martin, the 1975 NCAA champion from UCLA, beat Onny Parun of Wellington, New Zealand, 6-1, 7-5.

Meanwhile, back in the courts . . .

The estranged wife of Charles O. Finley has accused him of failing to file federal income tax returns for the company his sports franchises, including the Oakland Athletics . . . Heirs of race car driver Mark Donohue, killed last August in a practice round for the Austrian Grand Prix, Tuesday filed a $20 million damage suit against the makers of his Helmet (Bell Helmets, Inc.) and auto tires (Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.) . . .

Diablo, one of the nation's top four-year-olds last year and third-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was operated on Tuesday for a broken ankle suffered in the seventh race at Santa Anita Monday, and will not be destroyed . . . The jury hearing the multi-million dollar suit against the American League was dismissed Tuesday and the case — as per agreement — was continued until April, 1977.

The lawyers apparently planned another attempt today to win a temporary restraining order that would allow Godine and Williams to participate in the remainder of the schedule for the league-leading Aggies.

Godine and Williams, both freshmen, were suspended by the conference last Sunday. League officials have refused to state publicly why the action was taken, although subsequent reports have indicated the suspensions resulted from alleged recruiting violations.

Vilas back in tournament form

Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina used a hard volley and a strong backhand Tuesday to beat Anand Amritraj of India in the first round of the $60,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic, 7-6, 6-2. Vilas, 23, who had rested from tournament competition the last 10 weeks, won the tiebreaker, 7-1, as Amritraj lost all four of his serves.

Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Barcelona, Spain, took his first-round match over Ray Moore of Johannesburg, South Africa, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. Earlier in the tourney, Billy Martin, the 1975 NCAA champion from UCLA, beat Onny Parun of Wellington, New Zealand, 6-1, 7-5.

Meanwhile, back in the courts . . .

The estranged wife of Charles O. Finley has accused him of failing to file federal income tax returns for the company his sports franchises, including the Oakland Athletics . . . Heirs of race car driver Mark Donohue, killed last August in a practice round for the Austrian Grand Prix, Tuesday filed a $20 million damage suit against the makers of his Helmet (Bell Helmets, Inc.) and auto tires (Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.) . . .

Diablo, one of the nation's top four-year-olds last year and third-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was operated on Tuesday for a broken ankle suffered in the seventh race at Santa Anita Monday, and will not be destroyed . . . The jury hearing the multi-million dollar suit against the American League was dismissed Tuesday and the case — as per agreement — was continued until April, 1977.

AKC figures show Poodles down

The registration figures just released for 1975 by the American Kennel Club seemed to reflect the state of the economy during the year. Individual registrations declined 7.9 per cent for the year, down to 1,022,849 from 1,103,249 in 1974.

Of the 121 recognized breeds, seven in the top 30 showed increases in 1975: Dobermans, Cocker Spaniels, Golden Retrievers, Siberian Huskies, Lhasa Apsos, English Springer Spaniels and Shih Tzu. Increased Doberman registrations were particularly striking in the face of the general downturn. For the year, 57,336 Dobes were registered, placing them in the fourth spot among the top 10. In 1974 they were in sixth place.

Poodles, although still the number one dog in registrations, fell off in 1975, actually 19 per cent declining to 139,750 from 1974's 171,550.

And about the top 10, here they are: Poodles, German Shepherds, Irish Setters, Doberman Pinschers, Beagles, Dachshunds, Cocker Spaniels, Miniature Schnauzers, Labrador Retrievers and in No. 10, Collies.

Feeding time —

A dog is basically a creature of habit and should be fed at the same time each day. A new puppy should be fed small amounts at regular intervals throughout the day. This helps in the digestion of his food, since he requires more food per pound of body weight than grown dogs, but can't digest as much at one time.

As the dog grows older, the number of feedings should be reduced. Most grown dogs do well on one meal a day. Some owners prefer to feed a snack in the morning and a full meal at night.

Keep in mind the most important point, once you have established a regular feeding time, stick to it. You know how your stomach feels when you go past a normal meal time, then remember how your dog must feel when he gets fed just once during the day, and the meal is late.

Similar breeds confusing —

Dog owners who occasionally become confused by look-alike breeds of dogs should not consider themselves unusual.

In our country today, there are a number of breeds that even confuse the experts. For example the No. 4 dog in the A.K.C. listings, the Beagle. There is a 13-inch and a 15-inch. In Canada they go to a 16-inch dog. Of course, what really throws people is when they see a Harrier, they think it is a large Beagle, or a small Fox Hound.

Among the toy breeds years ago, it was pretty much of a foregone conclusion what the breeds were. Today, however, it's another story. With the introduction of a number of new breeds, some folks call a number of look-alikes a Pekingese, when they could be a Lhasa Apso or a Shih Tzu.

Barks & Bays —

If you have not done so, it's time to have that Christmas puppy checked for shots by your veterinarian.

Fyfe sets Lawrence scoring mark

Special to the Herald

APPLETON, WIS. — With a 19-point effort, Doug Fyfe became the all-time leading basketball scorer in Lawrence University history at Grinnel, Ia.

Fyfe's effort, the only bright spot in a 92-84 Lawrence defeat at the hands of the Grinnell Pioneers, gave him a career mark of 1,260 points, topping Joel Ungrodt's record 1,247 points set in the early 1960's. Fyfe has six games remaining in his Lawrence University career to add to his record.

To become the highest point scorer in Lawrence basketball history, Fyfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fyfe, 21 S. Glenwood, Palatine, has had to face four losing seasons of play.

But Fyfe's concerns about playing the game exceed a simple "winning is everything" philosophy. The ultimate thrill for any sports figure is to achieve a victory, and Fyfe agrees that "winning is great," but he also has learned to emphasize self-discipline and individual improvement.

"Any team's goal is to have a winning season," he said. "But losing a game doesn't mean a wasted evening if you do the best you can."

Fyfe's attitude toward basketball also has been an asset to the team. Viking Coach Bob Kastner praised his team efforts. "Doug is an extremely dedicated person. He is a student of the game and works continually to improve his playing as well as that of the team." Kastner also said that Fyfe has assisted with coaching responsibilities while serving as co-captain of the team the last two seasons.

Athletics have always been an important part of Fyfe's career as a student. A 1972 graduate of Palatine High School, he was named the basketball team's most valuable player his senior year. In addition to playing basketball for four years, Fyfe also lettered in football and golf.

When Fyfe came to Lawrence he decided to concentrate on one sport: basketball, and pursue other non-athletic activities offered by a small college.

His career as center of the Vikings has been impressive. As a freshman, the 6-foot Fyfe captured honors as team high scorer. During his junior season he racked up 398 points in 22 games to merit the same recognition and added 354 points as a sophomore.

The Vikings' 1974-75 season ended with a disappointing 5-17 record. With few returning upperclassmen and nine incoming freshmen players, the Vikes suffered the pains of a young team.

But the season did provide an individual victory for co-captain Fyfe. He was named to the All-Midwest Conference second team. He was the fourth leading scorer in the conference and team leader in rebounds as well as in scoring.

This winter Fyfe is averaging 18.1 points per game. The Vikings' conference record to date is 2-10; overall the Vikes are 6-10.

For Fyfe that record is a victory in itself. Coach Kastner sees an improved season as a "well deserved pay-off for sticking with the team through many defeats."

Fyfe also has found satisfaction in other ways at Lawrence. An English major, he also has pursued his interest in dramatic studies by taking a number of courses in the theatre department. As a sophomore he was cast in the spring production of Dion Boucicault's "Old Heads and Young Hearts," playing the part of Colonel Rocket.

Becoming a high school English teacher and basketball coach are Fyfe's tentative post-graduate plans. Last year, he spent a term student-teaching in English and social studies at James Madison Junior High in Appleton, while also directing a student dramatic production.

As a referee for on-campus sports, Fyfe keeps in touch with intramural athletics. He is a member of the Lawrence Letterman's Club and secretary of his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi.

Like many seniors, Fyfe is not exactly sure where he will be a year from today. He may be a coach rather than a player. If so, he will probably be telling his players about the value of participating in sports. That philosophy has been a successful one for him.

TRAVELERS WIN PAIR

The Travelers sponsored by Lattof Chevrolet defeated a strong St. Emily's team 54-50 as Williams hit for 15 points followed by Jachec's 14. Jachec kept the Travelers in the game as he controlled both boards while pulling down 21 rebounds. St. Emily's Florey was high point man with 24 points but couldn't keep his team from losing its third game of the year.

The Travelers first league win resulted in an easy victory over Wilmette 81-65 as Jachec and Calicchio ripped the nets for 22 each, both had help from Best and Tite as both hit for 10 points each. Once again it was Jachec's board work as he pulled down 21 rebounds for the second game in a row. The Travelers 22-2, are favorites to capture the second annual Lattof Invitational Basketball Tournament being held in March.

Swimming

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team experienced a bittersweet victory this past weekend as they went up against and defeated the National Champions, B.R. Ryall YMCA in a dual meet competition. The CDY Dolphins were divided into the Gold and Blue teams with the Gold team swimming against Ryall's National Team at Volo and the Blue traveling to Glen Ellyn to swim the balance of their team.

The victoy was bittersweet in that while the Gold Girls and the Blue Girls and Boys were able to defeat Ryall, the Gold Boys suffered their first loss of the season. Meet scores: Gold CDY Girls 183, B.R.R. Girls 166; Gold CDY Boys 154, B.R.R. Boys 192; Blue CDY Girls 212, B.R.R. Girls 135; Blue CDY Boys 159;, B.R.R. 132.

The quality of swimming in the Gold Meet could be shown in the fact that a National Record fell during the course of the meet. The Camp Duncan Junior Girls 200 yard Free Relay, including Linda Walkowiak, Chris Takata, Sharon Ratcliffe and Sue Cripe, set a new National Record, breaking the old record which was held by Indian Boundry YMCA.

TRAVELERS WIN PAIR

The Travelers sponsored by Lattof Chevrolet defeated a strong St. Emily's team 54-50 as Williams hit for 15 points followed by Jachec's 14. Jachec kept the Travelers in the game as he controlled both boards while pulling down 21 rebounds. St. Emily's Florey was high point man with 24 points but couldn't keep his team from losing its third game of the year.

The Travelers first league win resulted in an easy victory over Wilmette 81-65 as Jachec and Calicchio ripped the nets for 22 each, both had help from Best and Tite as both hit for 10 points each. Once again it was Jachec's board work as he pulled down 21 rebounds for the second game in a row. The Travelers 22-2, are favorites to capture the second annual Lattof Invitational Basketball Tournament being held in March.

Swimming

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team experienced a bittersweet victory this past weekend as they went up against and defeated the National Champions, B.R. Ryall YMCA in a dual meet competition. The CDY Dolphins were divided into the Gold and Blue teams with the Gold team swimming against Ryall's National Team at Volo and the Blue traveling to Glen Ellyn to swim the balance of their team.

The victoy was bittersweet in that while the Gold Girls and the Blue Girls and Boys were able to defeat Ryall, the Gold Boys suffered their first loss of the season. Meet scores: Gold CDY Girls 183, B.R.R. Girls 166; Gold CDY Boys 154, B.R.R. Boys 192; Blue CDY Girls 212, B.R.R. Girls 135; Blue CDY Boys 159;, B.R.R. 132.

The quality of swimming in the Gold Meet could be shown in the fact that a National Record fell during the course of the meet. The Camp Duncan Junior Girls 200 yard Free Relay, including Linda Walkowiak, Chris Takata, Sharon Ratcliffe and Sue Cripe, set a new National Record, breaking the old record which was held by Indian Boundry YMCA.

State asked to disclose names of suspended doctors

The Illinois Medical Society and its Chicago counterpart asked the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid Tuesday for names of 17 doctors who have been suspended from the Illinois Medicaid program so they can begin their own investigations.

In a separate action, the Better Government Assn. asked the department to withhold Medicaid payments from laboratories which offered BGA and federal investigators kickbacks at a dummy medical clinic.

The Illinois State Medical Society and the Chicago Medical Society sent a telegram to Public Aid Director James Trainor saying they plan to investigate doctors whom the state suspended from further participation in the Mediaid program.

"Full disciplinary action, including revocation of licenses and expulsion from medical society membership must be initiated, if warranted, against these individuals," the telegram said.

City to hire 400 policemen

Mayor Richard J. Daley Tuesday said the city will hire 400 more police officers under a quota system in accordance with an order issued by U.S. District Court Judge Prentice H. Marshall.

During a news conference, Daley also said results of a new examination for police applicants were submitted Tuesday to federal court.

Daley previously said the city would not hire any police officers under a racial and sexual quota system unless assured by Marshall that some of the $95 million in federal revenue-sharing funds being withheld from the city would be released.

Marshall ordered the funds withheld because the Chicago Police Dept. was allegedly discriminatory in its hiring and testing of applicants.

Illinois briefs

'Cuts imperil U.S. security'

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Tuesday if Congress substantially cuts President Ford's proposed $112.7 billion defense budget, it will "risk U.S. security."

"We have to dispel the illusion that the defense budget is a horn of plenty from which funds can be drawn without severe damage, for other national programs," Maj. Gen. George S. Brown said in a speech to the Chicago Rotary Club.

"Congressional cuts of the magnitude of recent years ($4 billion to $8 billion) . . . will cut into U.S. military capabilities, continue trends which would move the United States to a point of insufficiency and risk U.S. security by unnecessarily injecting a fundamental instability into an already confused world situation."

Brown's speech came only hours after Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld told President Ford and GOP congressional leaders in Washington that the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in developing all major conventional military weapons.

Railroad loses $31.1 million

The bankrupt Rock Island R.R. made a profit of $4.7 million in the final quarter of 1975, but lost $31.1 million for the entire year in 1975, it was announced Tuesday.

Rock Island Trustee William Gibbons said he views the fourth quarter profit with "a very guarded sort of optimism" because traffic on the line declined in January. "It's coming back now, but slowly," he said.

Strike injunction issued

A St Clair County judge Tuesday issued a temporary injunction ordering striking members of the Dupo Federation of Teachers Local 1732 back to their classrooms.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph Cunningham also scheduled a hearing on the strike for 9:30 a.m. next Tuesday.

The 57 teachers, who closed all four Dupo schools with a walkout Monday, were ordered back to their classrooms Wednesday. The 1,600 pupils in the Dupo district have missed two school days so far.

1.6 million registered voters

The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners said Tuesday it expects about 1.6 million voters to be registered for the March 16 primary election.

Registration in the city ended Tuesday and board chairman John Hanly estimated 100,000 persons would register on the last day possible. He said registration stood at 1,587,000 Tuesday morning.

"We will acquire somewhere in the range of 100,000 registrations today, but when we canvass, we'll strike some." he said. "I still expect we'll have a net gain, that is, add more than we strike."

State asked to disclose names of suspended doctors

The Illinois Medical Society and its Chicago counterpart asked the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid Tuesday for names of 17 doctors who have been suspended from the Illinois Medicaid program so they can begin their own investigations.

In a separate action, the Better Government Assn. asked the department to withhold Medicaid payments from laboratories which offered BGA and federal investigators kickbacks at a dummy medical clinic.

The Illinois State Medical Society and the Chicago Medical Society sent a telegram to Public Aid Director James Trainor saying they plan to investigate doctors whom the state suspended from further participation in the Mediaid program.

"Full disciplinary action, including revocation of licenses and expulsion from medical society membership must be initiated, if warranted, against these individuals," the telegram said.

City to hire 400 policemen

Mayor Richard J. Daley Tuesday said the city will hire 400 more police officers under a quota system in accordance with an order issued by U.S. District Court Judge Prentice H. Marshall.

During a news conference, Daley also said results of a new examination for police applicants were submitted Tuesday to federal court.

Daley previously said the city would not hire any police officers under a racial and sexual quota system unless assured by Marshall that some of the $95 million in federal revenue-sharing funds being withheld from the city would be released.

Marshall ordered the funds withheld because the Chicago Police Dept. was allegedly discriminatory in its hiring and testing of applicants.

Illinois briefs

'Cuts imperil U.S. security'

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Tuesday if Congress substantially cuts President Ford's proposed $112.7 billion defense budget, it will "risk U.S. security."

"We have to dispel the illusion that the defense budget is a horn of plenty from which funds can be drawn without severe damage, for other national programs," Maj. Gen. George S. Brown said in a speech to the Chicago Rotary Club.

"Congressional cuts of the magnitude of recent years ($4 billion to $8 billion) . . . will cut into U.S. military capabilities, continue trends which would move the United States to a point of insufficiency and risk U.S. security by unnecessarily injecting a fundamental instability into an already confused world situation."

Brown's speech came only hours after Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld told President Ford and GOP congressional leaders in Washington that the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in developing all major conventional military weapons.

Railroad loses $31.1 million

The bankrupt Rock Island R.R. made a profit of $4.7 million in the final quarter of 1975, but lost $31.1 million for the entire year in 1975, it was announced Tuesday.

Rock Island Trustee William Gibbons said he views the fourth quarter profit with "a very guarded sort of optimism" because traffic on the line declined in January. "It's coming back now, but slowly," he said.

Strike injunction issued

A St Clair County judge Tuesday issued a temporary injunction ordering striking members of the Dupo Federation of Teachers Local 1732 back to their classrooms.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph Cunningham also scheduled a hearing on the strike for 9:30 a.m. next Tuesday.

The 57 teachers, who closed all four Dupo schools with a walkout Monday, were ordered back to their classrooms Wednesday. The 1,600 pupils in the Dupo district have missed two school days so far.

1.6 million registered voters

The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners said Tuesday it expects about 1.6 million voters to be registered for the March 16 primary election.

Registration in the city ended Tuesday and board chairman John Hanly estimated 100,000 persons would register on the last day possible. He said registration stood at 1,587,000 Tuesday morning.

"We will acquire somewhere in the range of 100,000 registrations today, but when we canvass, we'll strike some," he said. "I still expect we'll have a net gain, that is, add more than we strike."

'I am Clarence Davis...'

CLARENCE DAVIS

It's a theater performance which has played before thousands during nearly one dozen years on stage. But seldom does the audience exceed one or two persons.

There is one actor. He's an older gentleman whose only props are his notebook and a smile.

He visits some rooms, but strides quickly past others. This mission is highly organized. "I don't want any mistakes around here," he said earlier.

Nobody bothers him much except for an occasional "Good morning, Mr. Davis." They know that he has important business around Northwest Community Hospital.

And there's never enough time.

He was nearly finished on the second floor. Now, Mr. Davis approached yet another room, hesitated momentarily outside, then pushed the door ajar and burst inside.

Mike Klein's people

"GOOD MORNING, I am Clarence Davis, one of the hospital's patient visitors," the gentleman told his audience in a voice crisp and strong. "Just stopped by to see if we're taking good care of you."

One woman reacted quickly and you knew that she was feeling pretty good. "Oh, they're doing their darndest!"

Clarence noticed that perhaps the other woman had been dozing. "Did I wake you up?" he wanted to know.

Not really, the woman responded. She had only been taking a little nap.

Clarence usually asks about the food, which even he describes as "edible," and better on Sundays. He wants to know whether their room has been kept clean.

"I do have one complaint," the first woman said. "They could have given me some more wine yesterday."

She was talking about her dinner wine, of course. It came with Sunday's lobster.

CLARENCE SAID he has been a patient at Northwest and that it helps to know the staff. That's how he got extra wine once without even asking.

"In fact, two doctors told me I needed the wine," Clarence told the listening women. "That's the kind of doctors I like!"

These discussions are usually the same. How's the food? . . . Keeping the place clean? . . . Hope you get well and hurry home.

But you are continually impressed with his sincerity.

Clarence walked a bit further down the hallway, then veered into a room where the woman was staring out the second floor window.

"Good morning, I am Clarence Davis. . ."

They talked a few minutes. All the regular topics were covered. She seemed distraught. There were many reasons.

THE WOMAN TOLD Clarence that her husband has a college degree but cannot find satisfactory employment.

Clarence walked back into the hallway shaking his head. "Her husband's making $3 per hour and supporting three children." He said no more.

Sometimes, the stories are sadder

Thoroughbreds won't run July 4 at race track

Arlington Park Race Track's request for Sunday racing on July 4 has been rejected by the Arlington Heights Village Board because trusttes feared a precedent for future Sunday racing would be set.

Thomas Rivera, a racetrack official, told the board Monday the special racing date was being requested because of the nation's Bicentennial celebration and because it is the 50th season of racing at the track.

New state racing laws permit Sunday racing with the permission of the municipality in which the track is located.

Plans to run the American Derby on July 4 will now have to be abandoned. Rivera said track officials already had begun talking with CBS about televising the race nationally.

"We have grouped all of our promotions and advertising around this special celebration," Rivera said. Arlington Park also was planning to have a special Bicentennial celebration at the park that day, with bands and picnic areas, he said.

RIVERA SAID the track probably would have lost money with the proposed July 4 racing. The Village of Arlington Heights would have received more than $3,500 that day with its new 10 cent head tax on each paid admission, he said.

River's request for racing on July 4 was denied in a somewhat unorthodox manner. The board first voted 5-4 against a motion to deny the request, then voted 5-4 against tabling the matter and finally voted 5-4 against approving the request. The deciding vote was cast by Trustee Alfred Barboro Jr., who was sworn in immediately prior to Monday's meeting.

Barboro voted against denying the park's request, but also voted against approving the request on the final motion.

Also voting against approving the request were Madeline Schroeder, Richard Durava, David Griffin and Frank Palmatier.

AUGUST BETTMAN, O.V. Anderson, Robert Miller and Village Pres. James T. Ryan voted to approve the request.

Three residents from the Ridge Park-Sherwood subdivisions near the racetrack objected to the request for one day of Sunday racing because of the heavy traffic generated by the track and because of the precedent it might set for future Sunday racing.

Bettman argued in favor of the racetrack's request, saying "Arlington Heights is getting a reputation of being against everything."

Request for four more firemen vetoed in budget

A request from Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden for four additional firemen has been rejected in the 1976-77 budget proposed by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

The village board's finance committee will conduct a hearing tonight on the proposed budgets for the fire and public works department.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The public works department's budget shows a decrease of two employes with the elimination of a foreman and a buildings repairman.

Last week during a hearing on the proposed police department budget it was learned Hanson had rejected requests for 11 additional patrolmen and five more cars.

The proposed budget does call for the purchase of a new aerial fire truck, which Hayden made a plea for at budget hearings last year. Purchase of the new truck was approved by the village board in June. Federal revenue sharing funds will be used to purchase the $158,000 vehicle.

Patty accuses SLA of 2 closet 'rapes'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst told the jury at her trial Tuesday two of the male kidnapers, Donald Defreeze and Willie Wolfe, forced her into "sexual intercourse" in a tiny closet as an introduction into the ways of the terrorist cult.

Gulping for breath and her voice quavering, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst said one of the woman members of the Symbionese Liberation Army told her it was time for her to "know what it was like being in the ceil."

"She told me I was going to sleep with Willie Wolfe, so I did," Miss Hearst said.

On the witness stand for a second day, Miss Hearst said she was told over and over that she was going to be killed and was forced to make a tape recording in which she berated her parents, saying they didn't care whether she was freed or not.

Defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey suddenly introduced the subject of her virtual rape about a month after her kidnaping while she was kept bound and blindfolded in the closet in the house where she was held.

"Did one of the women come into the closet and say it was time

Ford tells major intelligence reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Tuesday placed all intelligence operations under the management of CIA director George Bush, and created an independent, three-man White House board to safeguard against intelligence-gathering abuses.

Announcing a series of major reforms at the outset of a nationally broadcast news conference at the White House, the President asked Congress to outlaw assassination attempts by U.S. intelligence agencies against foreign heads of state and to make it a federal crime for agency employes to leak secret information.

Ford also said he was issuing a comprehensive set of legally binding guidelines intended to provide "stringent protections for the rights of American citizens" against illegal domestic intelligence activities.

Acting after months of widespread allegations of illegal or questionable CIA activities in Congress and the press, the President made clear he would retain ultimate control for U.S intelligence gathering.

Arlington rejects July 4 horse races

There will be no horse racing at Arlington Park Race Track July 4. The Arlington Heights Village Board has rejected the track's request to have racing Sunday, July 4. New state racing laws permit communities with tracks to allow Sunday racing. Park officials had planned to run the American Derby July 4 as part of a celebration of the track's 50th anniversary and the Bicentennial. The request was denied in a 5-4 vote.

Elk Grove GOP backs Thompson

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization has endorsed gubernatorial candidate James Thompson and lieutenant governor candidate David O'Neal in the March 16 primary. The organization endorsed Thompson unanimously and O'Neal with just two dissenting votes, said Elk Grove Committeeman Carl Hansen. Thompson, the former U.S. attorney, is running against Winnetka businessman Richard Cooper. O'Neal, St. Clair County sheriff, is running against Joan Anderson, a commissioner for the Metropolitan Sanitary District. The Elk Grove organization also agreed to make no endorsement in the race between President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan in the primary.

Buffalo Grove, undaunted by the failure of another Northwest suburb's lack of success, may try to give the village national exposure on a televised game show. Last week Palatine officials considered applying for a chance to appear on the ABC-TV network's "Almost Anything Goes" game show, but found out that the village's 28,000 population put it well above the show's 20,000 limit. In the show, neighboring villages compete for the right to meet in a regional championship. Buffalo Grove Trustee John Marienthal has applied to the show's producers and now needs support from local civic groups. "I thought it would be a fantastic way to bring the community together and put Buffalo Grove on the map," Marienthal said. If Marienthal is successful, some of Buffalo Grove's 18,400 residents may be powdering their noses for the television camera by summer.

Budget cuts asked for hospitals

The Cook County Hospital governing commission budget ought to be cut by $8 million to $10 million in order to limit the amount of property tax increase required to support the hospitals, Cook County Comr. Mary McDonald said Tuesday. Mrs. McDonald said she and other suburban Republican commissioners intend to submit proposals to cut the hospital commission's $172 million budget when the budget is submitted for adoption today. The budget contains a request for a property tax increase of 6.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Mrs. McDonald, a persistent critic of spending by the hospital commission, said she expects to see cuts that will decrease, but not eliminate, the property tax increase needed to support the budget. The county board legally only has the power to cut the budget total, but cannot specify what areas of the budget must be cut.

Gene Leonard

GOP worker named to RTA

Bremen Township GOP Committeeman Gene Leonard Tuesday was appointed by the suburban Cook County Commissioners to the Regional Transportation Authority Board.

The approval came despite the objections of the president of the Ripon Society, a Republican policy-making organization.

The six suburban commissioners, all Republicans, approved the appointment of Lenard with two abstentions after hearing Peter Baugher, president of the Chicago Ripon Society, ask that they hold hearings to interview candidates for the RTA post.

Leonard will replace Joseph Tecson, who was recently appointed by the suburban commissioners to replace Comr. Floyd Fulle on the Cook County County Board. Leonard was one of 30 candidates in addition to Tecson who interviewed for the county board post.

Leonard was opposed by a number of GOP leaders, including former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, as unqualified for the county board. Recently Ogilvie said he favored another candidate for the RTA.

UNDER LAW THE suburban commissioners have the power to appoint the two RTA board members from the Cook County suburbs. Four members of the board are appointed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and two others are appointed by the five counties surrounding Cook.

Baugher said appointing Leonard to the RTA board without further public hearings "demonstrates a regrettable disregard for high-quality government, resembling the poor politics of the Chicago political machine which Republicans have deplored for years."

After the commissioners approved the appointment, Comr. Harold Tyrrell, of LaGrange Park, one of the four who voted in favor of Leonard, said Baugher's statement was "pretty damn arrogant," adding Leonard will be a good RTA board member because "we need people who are strong representatives for the people of Cook County."

Tecson and Comr. Mary McDonald both abstained from voting on Leonard's appointment. Mrs. McDonald is a known opponent of Leonard both for the county board post and for the RTA. Tecson said his decision to abstain had nothing to do with Leonard's qualifications for the job.

ABA gives lawyers permission to advertise prices

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The American Bar Association Tuesday for the first time in its history authorized lawyers to advertise limited price and other information in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

The change in the ABA Canon of Ethics, first passed in 1908, left in doubt whether lawyers could cooperate with consumer groups publishing a directory of services and charges, the subject of a law suit by Consumers Union pending in federal court in Virginia.

But on a voice vote, after three hours of debate, the canon was changed to permit publication of a lawyer's standard fee for an initial consulation in the yellow pages of the telephone book and in "reputable law lists or legal directories."

Lawyers were also allowed to advertise their office hours, legal education, credit terms and fields of concentration.

The action came in response to a Supreme Court ruling last June removing antitrust protection from the legal profession.

Ironically, the Reuben H. Donnelly Co., publishers of the yellow pages in much of the nation, said it does not accept specific price advertising. Presumably, the same restriction would apply to legal advertising. Other information such as credit terms could be advertised.

Changes approved by the 340 member House of Delegates must be separately considered by state bar associations before they are effective. State bars are free to accept or reject the national ABA's recommenations.

Left unclear was whether lawyers ethically could cooperate with organizations such as Consumer Union in publishing directories which are not approved by local or state bar associations.

An amendment introduced by Texas delegate Leroy Jeffers, a 1977 candidate for ABA president, deleted specific authorization for publication of consultant fees by "bonafide consumers' organizations." The amendment was approved 153 to 118.

But ABA President Lawrence E. Walsh told reporters after the vote he believed lawyers could cooperate with consumer groups if the legal directory included only information authorized by the new canon.

Lewis Van Dusen, a Philadelphia lawyer who chaired the committee reviewing advertising guidelines, disagreed. He suggested that a consumer legal guide must obtain ABA approval, costing $750, before it could enlist the cooperation of lawyers.

The Consumers Union suit charges that First Amendment rights of consumers were offended by old rules forbidding any advertising of price information. Since ABA officials were themselves unclear about the results of Tuesday's vote, it was uncertain whether the new canon would eliminate the need for further court action in the Consumers Union case.

A three-judge court is scheduled to hear further arguments in the case March 15.

you were getting it on with someone?" Bailey asked.

"Yes."

"Who was the woman?"

"Angela Atwood."

She said the woman told her the first one would be Wolfe, who Miss Hearst in one of her later tapes described as the only true love of her life.

"Did she say it was a custom of the SLA?"

"Yes, she said they wanted me to know more what it was like being in the cell with them. She said everyone had to take care of the needs of other people. She said that even though I was in the closet I should know more of this."

Miss Hearst said that same night Wolfe came into the closet.

"Was your blindfold removed?" Bailey asked.

"Yes."

"What happened next?"

"He came in the closet and closed the door, and . . ."

"Did he make you like down on the floor?"

"Yes."

"Then what happened?"

"We had sexual intercourse." Miss Hearst said that about a week later Defreeze, the "Field Marshal General Cinque" of the SLA, a black escaped convict, came into the closet.

"Did you do the same thing?"

"Yes."

A short time later, she said the gang moved her to another apartment.

She said she was put in a garbage can, and it was tied up and dumped into the back of a car.

"It seemed like I was in there 45 minutes or an hour," she said. "They took me out and started carrying me inside the garbage can. They dropped it a couple of times. When I got out, I couldn't stand because my legs had gone to sleep because of the position in the garbage can."

Miss Hearst said she stayed in another closet in the second location for a few weeks, and then she was let out and the blindfold removed.

"And that's when I knew they were going to rob something, and Cinque said they were gong to rob a bank."

She said Cinque told her that "I'd be going inside the bank."

"What were your feelings?"

"I just couldn't believe they really were going to do it."

Cinque made sure there were cameras in the bank, she said. Bailey asked her why cameras were important.

"Because it would take a picture of me that everyone would know I robbed a bank," she said.

Earlier Miss Hearst testified her SLA captors called themselves part of a nationwide revolutionary "Third World movement for poor people, especially pimps and prostitutes."

Occasionally dabbing at her eyes and nose with a handkerchief, Miss Hearst described life with the SLA terrorists.

She said she was told by her captors the SLA consisted of revolutionary groups spread across the country "which ordered the combat unit I was with to kidnap me."

Their aim, she said, was to create violence so that the government would retaliate with violence, causing the people to rise up in support of the SLA.

"It was a Third World movement for poor people, especially pimps and prostitutes," she testified.

Except for the leader, Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, the band consisted of whites, but "they said whites couldn't be trusted because they were sellouts historically."

She said the terrorists felt the only way to trust whites was if they proved they were willing to die.

Miss Hearst earlier listened on the witness stand with expressionless face as a jury heard a tape recording in which she turned on her parents and for the first time praised her kidnapers.

In another section of the tape made during the Hearst free food giveaway program in March 1974, which the SLA had demanded as ransom a month after her kidnaping, Miss Hearst berated her father for not caring enough for her to give more than $2 million.

DEFENSE ATTY. F. Lee Bailey reaches for his wife, Lynda, who was caught in crush of spectators at the elevator in Federal Building where Patricia Hearst resumed her testimony Tuesday. Patty gave a day-by-day description of life as a captive of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

France extends recognition to Angola Reds

The Communist-backed faction in Angola followed its battlefield victory with a diplomatic blitzkrieg Tuesday with western nations racing to recognize it as the first native Angolan government despite pleas for caution by the United states. France became the first Western nation to extend diplomatic recognition to the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola as the Angolan People's Republic. Britain and Holland said they would follow suit soon. The rest of the Common Market was expected to to likewise.

Church hits Ford at Conference of Jewry

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, opened the World Conference on Soviet Jewry in Brussels Tuesday by accusing President Ford of abandoning America ideals by not pressuring the Kremlin to free Jews who want to leave Russia. Church, a potential Democratic candidate for president, also said the United States should keep sending arms to Israel and that Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should demand "more humane treatment of Soviet Jews."

Latin America reassured by Kissinger

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger reassured Latin America Tuesday of its special place in Washington's foreign policy and proposed a program seeking to increase economic cooperation to lessen political frictions. "It is time that all of us in the hemisphere put aside slogans and turn from rhetoric to resolve," Kissinger said in a major policy speech.

Later in the day Kissinger called Cuban military intervention in Angola "unacceptable" and warned that America "will not stand idly by" if Havana sends troops to other countries.

Ford reveals intelligence reforms

headed by the President.

The special White House board created to report on intelligence agency abuses will be headed by Undersecretary of State Robert D. Murphy, former chief of secret diplomatic operations in World War II, and also will include former Army Sec. Stephen Ailes and economist Leo Cherne.

Ford said it was important to have a strong intelligence agency and as President, "I will not be a party to the dismantling of the CIA and the other intelligence agencies."

Pressed further about Bush's qualifications, Ford said, "I think he has the intelligence to do the job and the experience in foreign policy."

In the end, Ford said, "the final and ultimate reponsibility falls on the shoulders of the President." Ford said he would take that responsibility.

ASKED WHETHER placing responsibility for the CIA in the White House might not lead to abuses, Ford said, "I can assure you it (the responsibility) will be handled in the most appropriate way."

Regarding the elections in November, Ford said he believed that "anyone to the right of me cannot win the election." He said he was not referring specifically to Ronald Reagan in that statement — that there are candidates of both parties philosophically to the right of him.

The President cited two main issues on which he differs with the former California governor: Social Security and the Reagan plan to trim federal spending by $90 billion.

Asked how he feels he will do in the New Hampshire and Florida primaries, Ford replied: "I think we'll do well in both."

"I WAS GREATLY encouraged by the two days I have just spent in Florida," the President said. "The crowds were large and enthusiastic and I was encouraged by that."

As for the intelligence agencies, Ford said, one of his recommendations is for the attorney general to work with Congress for a new law under which the attorney general would have to get court authority for electronic surveillance, even in cases of national security.

He noted that the attorney general does not currently need that authority.

The President said he thought congressional leaks of classified material provided by the administration was "a very serious matter." This was an obvious reference to the House Intelligence Committee report, which the full House voted to keep secret but most of which was published recently in the Village Voice.

Home-rule powers tested, budget planning at stake

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban commissioners on the Cook County Board will regain their veto power over the county's multi-million dollar budget if a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court by an Evanston attorney is successful.

The suit also may have major effects on the way the county will be able to use the home-rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution, a power widely believed to give the county board almost unlimited taxing authority.

The suit, filed by John T. Allen Jr., challenges the legality of county board action last fall, which changed the requirement for approving the county's expenditures from a two-thirds to a simple majority.

Under the two-thirds majority, which was required by state law, the six suburban Republican commissioners had a veto over county expenditures, even if the expenditures had the unanimous support of the county board's 10 Chicago Democrats.

THE SUBURBAN Republicans had won that veto power in 1974 when a federal court ruled that the "one-man, one-vote" requirement meant the suburbs must have six members on the board.

Last fall the county board's Democratic majority changed the two-thirds requirement, saying the county's home-rule power gave it the right to overrule the state statute with a county ordinance. The Republican commissioners opposed the action.

Thomas Brannigan, Allen's attorney, said the suit challenging the ordinance is a class action suit on behalf of all the taxpayers in the county.

Brannigan said he will argue that the ordinance denies suburban taxpayers equal protection of the law under the U.S. constitution, that the county's home-rule power is not broad enough to allow it to overrule a state statute and that proper notice of the proposed ordinance was not given before it was approved.

In a brief filed with the suit, Brannigan says the action deprives the suburban commissioners and their constituents "of an equally effective voice and meaningful representation on the Cook County board."

BRANNIGN SAID if the court rules the county cannot overrule a state statute under home rule, "it would change pretty substantially what home-rule units think they can do."

He said he will argue that because the Illinois Supreme Court held that the county could not collect property taxes in four installments, because a state law called for two installments, that the county does not have the power to overrule a state law.

A spoksman for County Board Pres. George W. Dunne said the county "will defend the legality of our action."

Suburban commissioners, who have been studying the possibility of their own suit challenging the county board action ,said they are studying the suit to see whether they can join it.

COMR. CARL HANSEN of Elk Grove Village said, "We have to make sure the suit is strong enough to support our position." He said studying the legal options open to the suburban commissioners under the suit "is an item of No. 1 priority."

Brannigan said he does not know what the suburban commissioners can do to support the suit. "They are welcome to do anything they can," he said.

Brannigan said he and Allen are prepared to appeal the case to the state Supreme Court if necessary. County officials have until early March to file replies to the suit before arguments can be heard by Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Happy 89th birthday, Arlington!

by JOE SWICKARD

Happy Birthday, Arlington Heights. As a village, you're now 89 years old.

It was on this date back in 1887 when the village fathers started taking on airs and changed the name of the place from Dunton (after its founder) to the more "high-toned" Arlington Heights. The incorporation vote was 126 to 34, and the town was on its way.

In the ensuing 89 years, some things just don't change in Arlington Heights.

FOR EXAMPLE, streetlights were a big topic in the community's early official deliberations. In 1893 the first 50 lamps (fed with gasoline) were installed, and it wasn't long before there were complaints.

Because there wasn't a Scarsdale yet, the controversy centered around people who wanted more street lights. They were soon appeased with the addition of 75 more fixtures around the town.

Even this week, a village board committee will meet to wrangle with the street lighting question in Scarsdale.

An event in 1902 was to pave the way for future heated village board debates. That was the year the first concrete sidewalk was poured in town.

The last village election was highlighted with spirited debates on what areas of the village should have the sidewalks and who should pay for them.

WATER PROBLEMS are nothing new to Arlington Heights, either. Consider the newspaper account of 1902: "The engineer on the Arlington Heights waterworks must be a blunderbluss. The reservoir caved in Wednesday night."

Today, the village bans lawn sprinkling on certain summer days, and the village and other municipalities are trying to find a way to bring Lake Michigan water to the area.

During the winter of 1893-94, residents banded together to augment the three-man police force. They formed the Citizens Protective League.

In the winter of 1975-76, residents are being asked by the police to join the Neighborhood Watch program designed to keep an eye on vandals, burglars and rowdies.

There was imaginative municipal financing throughout the village's history. But some of the methods are not exactly endorsed procedures today.

IN 1937 IT WAS revealed the village got a cut of the take from the local slot machine racket. The officials didn't line their pockets, though.

Instead they bought a new police squad car, 500 feet of fire hose and put a new roof on the village bandstand.

It is unlikely that source of revenue will be suggested during the current hearings on the municipal budget.

If some malcontents are still looking for the heights of Arlington Heights, they can reread the fulsome praise that greeted the renaming 89 years ago.

Arlington Heights, it was noted, "is an especially appropriate one, for it is located on high ground . . . and its residents enjoy the full benefits of the pure health-giving air of the country, unvitiated by swamps and vapors."

After 89 years, the town is still unvitiated by those vapors and and still a nice place to live.

Thoroughbreds won't run July 4

exactly as it is. Maybe they should just pull up shop and go elsewhere," Bettman said. "If they can put Arlington Heights on the map for one day, great. We can use some good publicity.

"NOW THAT WE got them (annexed), we want to slap their wrists everytime they ask for something. This should not be just an Arlington Park project; it could be an Arlington Heights project," said Bettman, who added that he is against Sunday racing at any other time.

Mrs. Schroeder said she didn't "equate a horse race with being patriotic. Citizens that live in that area are entitled to that one day off," she said. "Maybe we should consider having a race in honor of the Easter bunny, too, and call it the Bunny Hop," Griffin said. "The track will survive without this. The American Derby can be run as easily on July 3," he said.

In a final plea for approval of the request, Rivera said that as a resident of the area, he found it "strange to defend myself as a corporate pirate of some sort."

Overpass upgrade for Rte. 72

A $4.5 million overpass improvement for Ill. Rte. 72 at the Northwest Tollway was announced Tuesday by Gov. Daniel Walker as part of a $59 million highway construction program.

The governor said the program calls for repairing or rebuilding more than 100 miles of roads, streets and highways, and the improvement of numerous bridges and intersections.

Walker said the program will be in addition to the area's share of regular road programs which will be announced in June.

The Ill. Rte. 72 overpass improvement will widen the bridge over the tollway from two lanes to four lanes, Walker said.

TWO OTHER AREA projects included in the program are $750,000 for improvement of the intersection of Irving Park and Barrington roads and $820,000 for improvement of Irving Park and Rohlwing roads in Schaumburg Township.

While some of the work will be started immediately, major construction projects will not begin until July.

"I am proposing that we start this summer to cut away at the backlog of repairs on neglected streets, some of which are 40 years old. These renovations must be undertaken now if we are to have quality transportation in the metropolitan Chicago area," Walker said.

In addition to the local improvements, Walker also announced plans to spend $8.5 million to resurface, widen and improve intersections along Cicero Avenue in Chicago.

WALKER AIDES said Monday the project had no connection with the Walker feud with Mayor Richard J. Daley over construction of the Crosstown Expressway, which closely parallels Cicero Avenue.

Funds for the project will come from a special state bond issue, which was to have been in a joint Chicago-Illinois road project. However, Walker aides said Chicago failed to meet all of its obligations in the project.

The project also will involve construction of bus turnout lanes at a number of locations, to allow other vehicles to move past buses stopping to load or unload passengers, and the construction of 100 bus shelters.

Crane urges cuts in U.N. support

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has told a congressional committee the United States should cut its payments to the United Nations from 26 per cent to slightly more than 5 per cent of the cost of operation.

Crane's comments came during a subcommittee hearing of the U. S. House International Relations Committee. He said the proposal would save the U. S. about $350 million annually.

Crane has pushed for a U. S.-backed change in the funding procedures for the United Nations since 1971.

In his testimony, Crane noted while the balance of power in the United Nations has shifted dramatically, the burden of financial support has remained on the same shoulders.

"Such a situation is an invitation to political demagoguery and violation of the U. N. charter," the congressman said. He cited the U. N. resolution which branded Zionism as a form of racism and the expulsion of Nationalist China as examples.

Under the payment formula proposed by Crane, third world "nonaligned countries" would pay 20 per cent of the U. N. budget. Such countries now pay only about 3 per cent of the cost.

The cost to China and India also would increase.

"Such a change in the assessment formula is badly needed and long overdue. By taking the first step and unilaterally reducing our contributions to 5.6 per cent, we would not only save the taxpayers money, but we would put the U. N. on notice, without wrecking it or withdrawing from it, that it cannot expect to command adequate financial support unless it exercises more discretion and acts with a greater sense of responsibility," Crane said.

Political briefs

Township Democratic Organization voted to endorse Walker's opponent, Sec. of State Michael Howlett, for governor in the March 16 primary.

Lynn Williams, Democratic Township committeeman, said the group voted 51-11 to back Howlett over Walker.

He said members of the organization cited "disappointment with the Walker administration" as a major reason for backing Howlett.

Only Illinois Atty. General Ronald Stackler, who is running with Walker and seeking the nomination for attorney general, managed to obtain a plurality over a member of the regular Democratic ticket.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon was endorsed over State Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, in the race for secretary of state, and Michael Bakalis was backed over Roland Burris in the contest for comptroller.

Williams said the group voted 51-11 to endorse Howlett. He said at least 50 votes were needed for a candidate before the group would formally endorse.

The organization made no endorsements in the race between Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and Joanne Alter, where the vote was 40-26 for lieutenant governor; State Sen. Cecil Partee and Ronald Stackler, where the vote was 17-44 for attorney general; or between former Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan and Donald Page Moore, where the vote was 31-38, for Cook County State's Attorney.

Dems dinner-dance Friday

The Wheeling Township Democratic Organization dinner dance will be held Friday at Algauer's Restaurant in Northbrook.

Sec. of State Michael Howelett will be the featured speaker at the event. Howlett is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, State Treasurer Alan Dixon and former Appellate Court Judge Edward Egan also will attend the affair.

For Shutter Bugs

by Ed Landwehr

In case you don't know, shutter bugs are those people who spend more then the average time with cameras. We came across one during a TV service job; he was snapping pictures from the television screen, and we learned a bit about it.

Shoot your camera at shutter speeds of about 1/25th seconds. This speed seems to synchronize best with the TV tube scanning action. Keep reflections off the glass and block any strong light from the sides and top. Using a tripod or a firm base will get best results with the wider lens openings. Keep a record of your shots so you'll know which film does best.

Of course, your TV picture should be clear and bright, and we sneak in the commercial that a phone call to 255-0700 gets prompt service from Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 18, the 49th day of 1976 with 317 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and the last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American philanthropist George Peabody was born Feb. 18, 1795.

On this day in history:

• In 1861, Jefferson Davis was sworn into office as president of the Confederate States of America at Montgomery, Ala.

• In 1930, the planet Pluto was discovered by astronomer Clyde Tom Baugh at the Lovell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz.

• In 1967, nuclear physicist Robert Oppenheimer died at the age of 62. He played a key role in development of the atomic bomb.

• In 1969, six persons were wounded when Arab terrorists attacked an Israeli airliner in Zurich, Switzerland.

A thought for the day: Thomas Jefferson said, "I hold . . . that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, and as necessary in the political world as storms in the physical."

The way we see it

We support deficit plans

A growing number of suburban school districts are forecasting million dollar deficits. With that glum prospect in mind, boards of education are beginning to wrestle with major decisions involving tax hikes, school closings and program cutbacks.

The plight of many suburban school districts, under the pressure of declining enrollment and reduced state aid, is a long-term problem that will not be remedied easily.

The future includes a projected $3.9 million deficit in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 by 1984; bankruptcy in River Trails Dist. 26 by 1977; a $1 million deficit next year in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21; and more than $2 million deficits in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. The pattern extends to nearly every district in the Northwest suburbs.

One district, East Maine Dist. 63, has taken measures already to prevent an estimated $500,000 deficit next year. It's a step others may wish to consider.

Dist. 63, which serves the unincorporated portion of Maine Township, began discussing its bleak financial future last August. By January, board members had enrollment and demographic studies, budget studies and a list of options to increase revenue and decrease spending.

Last week the Dist. 63 board informally agreed on about $800,000 in budget cuts ranging from increasing book rental and lunch fees to decreasing teaching, custodial and secretarial staffs.

The initial cuts will prevent a deficit next year, and the board is already discussing holding a tax rate increase referendum, closing schools and selling its vacant property to prevent future money problems.

Dist. 63 is far ahead of many Northwest suburban school districts that are just now seeking solutions to their September financial woes. It is an example of a farsighted board and administration and good planning.

A conflict is resolved as Hug quits park post

Charles Hug, Des Plaines city attorney, announced last week that he will resign from his post as attorney for the Des Plaines Park District — a move that was long overdue.

Hug held the park district job before being selected city attorney and consistently said he would resign should his double work load become a conflict of interest.

Last week, after the city and park district were named as defendants in a lawsuit, Hug stepped down from the park district post.

Although we don't question Hug's integrity, we do feel he was ignoring a continuing conflict by being employed by two governing bodies that frequently deal with one another. Prior to the lawsuit, Hug faced another conflict when city officials were negotiating with the park district over acquiring land.

Hug's decision was a good one and we can only add that it is about time. With his second job out of the way, Hug can now give his full attention to the full-time job with the city.

Some tuition necessary in college education

No one likes to pay tuition for the privilege of going to college, but paying a reasonable amount of tuition to attend a state college or university is inevitable if education is to continue to thrive in Illinois.

Gov. Walker, however, apparently doesn't think so. Last week he announced he would reject tuition increases proposed last month for state universities.

At stake is an undergraduate tuition hike of $60 a year and graduate tuition of $90 a year. Walker argues that the tuition increases would be especially painful to middle income families.

But Walker should consider the alternatives: another undesirable cutback in programs or a tax increase, in which all of us will have to pay more to support public higher education.

As Walker has promised to slash tuition, he's also slashed in the past other forms of financial support for higher education. With such budget-cutting, Illinois' colleges and universities have found themselves trapped with no other way to raise needed funds. We think a moderate tuition increase is a reasonable alternative — and we urge the governor to change his mind and support it.

She endorses year-round school

Unfortunately, the referendum for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 went down in defeat and we must pick ourselves up, dust ourselves off and rethink our plans and procedures. There is only so much money any district has for educating their children.

If we spend it on new buildings we don't have it for teachers salaries, or other educational fund and operational and maintenance fund programs. Obviously, Dist. 54 has already spent too much for new schools and alternate plans for further use of the existing buildings have not been explored or examined to any degree.

Now, in this time of belt tightening, something has to give. The taxpayer is getting it from all sides and we are rethinking the cost of state and federal aid to our schools. These additional moneys do not necessarily increase academic achievement. Other alternatives are needed.

Right now, there are two million children in 168 districts using their schools more fully, on the 12-month basis. Why must we keep on building schools when they are used only nine months and only 2,600 out of 17,000 students in our district go to summer school?

Dist. 54 has overbuilt! Too much tax money has gone into new schools and their supplies. Now drastic measures must be taken to trim back program areas because our board and administrators have not read the writing on the wall.

What can be gained by a change in our school calendar? One-third more space in our schools, shorter review times than those necessary under a 12-week summer, more money for teachers choosing to work more days a school year, more time for lesson planning and material gathering as there are periodic breaks in the calendar, more sharing of facilities and materials by the schools, library and park districts and more of an individualized program for our children as the kindergarteners start four times a year on their birthdays and students can be accelerated or retained one-quarter year according to need.

Why has Dist. 54 not looked into the matter more purposefully?

Fact 'lack' hit

It's unfortunate that The Herald regards Betty Ford's views favoring intrauterine murder as "refreshing." Actually, it takes no talent to choose abortion's easy solution; what Americans have a right to expect (and are not receiving) from our First Lady is the example of compassion, responsibility and personal morality, and the courage to find alternatives to the slaughter of the innocent.

Betty believes that legal abortion is "great" because it gives the poor as much opportunity to kill their young as the rich. Using her demented logic, should we therefore supply heroin and hunting rifles to the poor, because the wealthy can afford these luxuries?

The Herald may appreciate Betty's "candor" because her views coincide with its editorial policy. But if "truth" were really important to The Herald, it would have long ago published photos of aborted infants and in-depth interviews with pro-life leaders, so that readers could be accurately informed on this important issue. Instead, The Herald — and Betty — continue their refrain: "Our minds are made up. Don't confuse us with the facts."

An error corrected

In response to an article on the front page of The Herald dated Feb. 13, a point was made that one of the five finalists for Schaumburg's Outstanding Young Woman (Nancy Larson) has not been a member of Volunteers In Action since November.

As I understand the competition, it is for all things done during the calendar year 1975. So, even if she hasn't been a member since November, it appears that she should and has been credited for her time spent in 1975 up to November. Unless that point is made, people would think she was judged improperly.

Penny Dietrich
Schaumburg

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Feb. 13 story was an attempt to correct an earlier story, based on erroneous information, which indicated Mrs. Larson was currently president of the association. A straightforward correction should have been printed on an inside page, listing the name of the current president. The editor regrets compounding the error.

Quality of life a target

ACTION still at work

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA) — Around the conference table, where the state directors of Region IX of ACTION are holding their budget meeting, Jess Sixkiller is known as the "Outhouse King."

Jess's territory is the state of Arizona, and every time he cruises through the south part of Tucson, a look of satisfaction softens his dark Indian face. Because of him and his volunteers in the federally sponsored program, a ramshackle house on a potholed street at least has indoor plumbing.

"We have just now completed renovating 150 outhouses," he says proudly, "in south Tucson. We designed modern outhouses and put in plumbing and attached them to buildings."

That is not precisely a giant step for mankind, but it is symbolic of the work Jess and his director cohorts do to upgrade the quality of life in the western United States.

Jess (an older cousin of footballer Sonny Sixkiller, and a full-blooded Cherokee Indian) isn't a complete altruist. Nor is Chick Tooker, who organized volunteers to process and relocate Vietnamese refugees at Camp Pendleton in southern California. The same goes for Willie Hall, who has rehabilitated ex-convicts to work with recent prison parolees in northern California. And Mike Gale, who recruited immigrant nurses in Hawaii to combat the health problems from the flood of Far East immigrants.

THESE MEN are all civil servants, being paid an average of $25,000 a year to administer social services to their state sectors under ACTION, which was created July 1, 1971, to embrace American volunteer groups — such as the Peace Corps and VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) — in one federal agency directly responsible to the White House.

But Jess and Willie and Chick and Mike — and their regional bosses at this conference table, Don Brown and Patrick Twohig — are not your usual breed of bureaucrat. Mike and Willie and Chick were originally Peace Corps volunteers in far-flung outposts such as Venezuela, Ethiopia and the Philippines.

They're casual, moderately long-haired, and their average ages is 38. They have one common denominator, according to Jess: social concern.

"You can't stand on the outside and get it done," says Jess, a former Chicago police detective who now lives in Phoenix. "If you believe, it's a challenge. The agency is a young bureaucracy. It hasn't gotten hardening of the arteries."

IT'S NOT DEALING with peanuts, either. The budget for Region IX, whose director is Don Brown, a former All-American swimmer and vice president of U.S. International University (San Diego), is $25 million. More than 17,000 volunteers fan out throughout the states of California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii.

"We can move quite quickly," says Patrick Twohig, the regional program manager, "in bringing something about because we aren't bogged down by layers of bureaucracy. The men here are directly on top of their state programs."

Twohig is a former priest, a native of County Cork, Ireland, and lives with his wife and two children on Tralee Way in San Rafael — "I liked the address."

Mike Gale, the Hawaii state director, was a defensive end on USC's 1962 national championship football team. His Pacific territory also takes in Samoa and Guam. "There is great flexibility in our own ventures," he says studiously. "There's a synergistic effect."

Hawaii had a desperate need for legal services because the Legal Aid Society was bogged down. Mike's office developed a program using university political science students as paralegals, getting a year's academic credit for their work. Because of their help, the Legal Aid Society was able to triple its case load.

CHICK TOOKER, the only bachelor in the group, lives a swinging life on a sailboat in Marina del Rey. He has a staff of six people and three GSA (General Service Administration) cars under his wing. "It's great going into Watts in a government car," he grimaces. "They see you and they yell, 'There goes a narc.'"

Like his compatriots, Chick can move fast. When the Vietnamese started arriving at Cap Pendleton, south of Los Angeles, within a week Chick had 15 volunteers there to process the refugees, find sponsors for them in this country and relocate and reunite broken families.

"The benefit of ACTION," notes Chick, "is that you see something done at the beginning, the middle and the end."

There is also the satisfaction of accomplishment. You can see it when Jess Sixkiller starts talking about his modernized outhouses.

'Good morning, I am Clarence Davis'

than others. But Clarence does not stop or let it affect him.

"Good morning, I am Clarence Davis . . ."

This would be his final stop on the second floor. Two men were recuperating from surgery. They seemed to be having a jolly time.

"Neither one of you looks like you ought to be here," Clarence told them.

THE THREE MEN laughed quite a lot. Clarence's usual speech quickly went by the board. One man told him they had been palying cribbage.

"There's no end to the experiences I have here," Clarence said back in the hallway. "You can appreciate that now with just this little walk."

It's a little difficult convincing Clarence Davis that he should not be bashful about his volunteer work. He begs, "Please, please don't let any of this go in like I'm bragging. I'm afraid of hurting anyone else's feelings."

But Clarence is good people. There should be many more like him. Donna Dickey and Joe Goddard would surely agree. They are Northwest Community's other volunteer patient visitors.

The hospital is special to Clarence. "I pretty much owe my life to this place," he said. That's why Clarence helps now. He knows what it means.

Twelve years ago last October, Clarence Davis of Arlington Heights entered Northwest Community, his body ridden with cancer. And they cured him.

CLARENCE STOPS short today of agreeing that he is a walking miracle . . . just more fortunate than most.

At 64 years old, he'd been given another chance. Clarence chose to become involved.

He was the first volunteer patient visitor at Northwest Community. And Clarence began work for the American Cancer Society by also visiting patients at Lutheran General, Alexian Brothers and Holy Family hospitals.

Five years ago, when he was 72, Clarence began a four-year term as a local board member for the American Cancer Society.

Today, he serves as a board member and fund-raiser for the Northwest Community Hospital Foundation. And his wife, Helen, has been a volunteer worker for 15 years.

ALL OF THAT is important. But you can easily tell that Clarence most enjoys visiting those patients. Few of them can believe he is 76 years old.

"When you get old, like I am, it's nice to get a feeling that you're needed, that you're still of some use," Clarence said over lunch.

Now it was time to leave the lunchroom. It had been so obvious. Clarence Davis is a man with friends because he has chosen to be a friend.

In just a few minutes, they would be hearing him again in the hallways. Now, he would be saying:

"Good afternoon, I am Clarence Davis . . ."

Ida V. O'Reilly

Her credo: tell the truth

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

A few years back Ida V. O'Reilly disapproved of the way her village was being governed. She aired her discontent with Wheeling village leaders in a dozen or so probing letters to The Herald's Fence Post.

SHE HAS NO INTENTION of just sticking to her needlework. Having worked to bring needed improvement in Wheeling village government, Ida V. O'Reilly says she'll "keep an eye on things." She sits on the village ethics board.

Asking such questions as why weren't village officials telling the public what they were doing, Mrs. O'Reilly, a Wheeling homeowner for 20 years, likes to think those letters may have helped bring needed changes in Wheeling.

A former grammar school teacher in Wheeling and ex-telephone company emplove as well as mother of three grown children, Ida admits she wasn't always so public-spirited. Her interest in local politics was sparked by daughter Barbara, now a newspaper reporter and a then-newspaper intern covering Wheeling village trustee meetings. Ida attended a few of those meetings. "And I decided some changes should be made!" she said.

As a result of her letters to The Herald, Mrs. O'Reilly was asked to work in a new organization, then called the Wheeling Improvement Party, or WHIP as it came to be known. Its purpose was to bring reform at the local level.

"We wanted to make changes, not throw everybody out," Ida explained.

THAT WAS 1970. WHIP worked hard to achieve its aims, members canvassing street by street to inform residents of their intent.

"Our first attempts were ignorant and amateurish and our party was thrown off the ballot," Ida recalled. But the group grew smarter and lost by a close margin a second time around, she said.

A year ago, "after the Wheeling scandals had hit," WHIP won five of six seats on the village board. "We hope they will meet our expectations," said Ida. One gets the feeling she's thinking "They'd better."

Mrs. O'Reilly is on the newly formed Wheeling ethics board, a three-member body which examines the background of any who apply to do work for the village. They check the statutes to see there is no conflict of interest. Open meetings are conducted once a month and the board will act on requests for investigation.

"I am a firm believer in honesty," said Ida. "I taught our kids not to lie as it's better to tell the truth and take the consequences because the truth comes out eventually anyway."

(Besides Barbara her "kids" include a son, Dennis, an attorney, and Marilyn, who works in her husband's computer programming business.)

Generally satisfied with the status of things at village hall now, Ida does have one complaint. She dislikes "those oceans of asphalt" along Dundee and Milwaukee Avenue. "It's ugly, ugly!" she deplored.

MRS. O'REILLY HAS another suggestion. Using parking space at the K-Mart at Dundee-Rte 83 intersection, she'd like to have the village cut back about 20 feet and plant grass, trees, flowers and shrubs.

"It could be beautiful and there'd still be plenty of parking space," she said.

"Wheeling's new carillon is nice, but the money could have been better spent on parkways," she added.

Though her health's not been good the past year, Ida O'Reilly has no intention of putting down the gauntlet.

She hopes to resume as a teacher's aide at Stevenson School (she herself taught at Mark Twain and Walt Whitman) and has just recently become active in the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), though she's been a member since 1942. When she's able, Ida attends activities of the women's group at St. Joseph the Worker Church.

At home she makes hairpin lace, sews, paints and has just begun to needlepoint. Her husband, Dermott, is a retired naval jet mechanic and also a retired postal employe.

Along with her other activities, Ida promises "to keep an eye on things in Wheeling."

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

Must divorced father pay child's college?

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

I've been meaning to write to you for some time but can't put if off any longer because the problem is now at a point where something must be done.

What I'd like to know is: Must a divorced father pay for his child's college education?

I married a divorced man who had three children. I was not the cause of the divorce, having met him two years after it happened. I mention this because if I were the cause, I would keep my mouth shut. But I am an innocent victim and have had to work in order for my husband to support his ex-wife and the children. I'm not concerned about that since I married him knowing what was in store. But I never thought he would have to go beyond the high school level of paying for his children's education.

TWO OF THEM are now ready for college and their mother insists upon sending them to a small private one that majors in art studies. The school is in the East. I think she should let them attend the state college here and save money. My husband never went to college; neither did I; yet we both must sacrifice, depriving ourselves of so many things we could enjoy. It is another reason why I decided not to have any children so that I woulen't burden him further financially. This makes no impression on his former wife who keeps asking for more and more.

Please answer the question so I'll know what to tell my husband when the subject comes up again in the near future. I'll appreciate it. Thank you. — J.T.

Dear J.T.,

Well, I don't like to use the ole cliche "it all depends," but in this instance, at least, nothing else will do.

While no state requires a child to go beyond high school, the trend is to encourage parents, and at times, order them to pay for a child's college education when the parents are divorced.

The fact that the divorced father must pay does not nullify the fact that his responsibility cannot exceed his ability to pay. There are several other points to consider. One is, do the child's I.Q. and aptitude warrant a college education?

THE OTHERS ARE: How necessary is it that the girls attend a school outside of the area when there is a state school they can attend? Are their talents so distinct that there are no other schools in the area that could provide the training they need?

I think you have a good point there when you say the daughters could save their dad some money by attending the state U. and it does seem unfair for him to pay tuition when he has already paid taxes to provide a college education for his children. But it just might be one of the reasons why a court would deny them the right to have their father pay for a college out of the state.

Your comment that neither you nor your husband attended college and that you both "made it" anyway recalls a debate I heard some time ago on the subject "Is a College Education a Necessity Or a Ripoff?"

THE PREMISE WAS that a college education is a contrived necessity because large companies, who have so many applicants to choose from, see the advantage of not only tightening requirements but using it as a powerful weapon to set a population's style of living.

Some of the arguments against the proposition were that today large companies are faced with more sophisticated methods of operation, strict government regulations, national and international competition and only those who are skilled are qualified to fill the positions.

If the girls need the special training to qualify them for a well paying job, it might be wise to sacrifice a few more years to prepare them more quickly to support themselves. It may be, too, that because of the more specialized training, they would be able to come upon a school-work program in their field.

As I see it, you do have some consolation. Consider this. Your husband did not agree in writing to pay for the college eeucation at the time of the divorce, at which time many parents do as part of the divorce settlement. At least, under the present circumstances there is a chance for your husband either to negotiate with his ex-wife or for the court to deny the children the right to expect their father to pay for a school out of the state.

Cutting cost of vacation lodging

Speaking of...

by Kay Marsh

(Second of two parts)

When we went to Williamsburg, Va. last summer, every motel in town seemed to be full, and tourists were commuting from as far away as Richmond.

But we rented two large, comfortable double rooms at $15 per room per night in the home of Mrs. Pauline Barnes. We had our own private bath, air conditioning, morning coffee, ice, television — even pool privileges at a nearby motel.

Mrs. Barnes is one of many Williamsburg residents who increase their own incomes and serve tourists by providing attractive places to stay at reasonable prices. Some have only a single room to rent. Others have more. The Cedars, for instance, can accommodate 20 guests.

AND YOU'LL find similar rooms in private residences and apartments just about everywhere. Of course, you'll want to inspect the facilities and check carefully. But you'll be pleasantly surprised what nice, inexpensive places you can find to stay if you just ask around, or visit the local Chamber of Commerce.

Tourist homes are just one of many ways that families on vacation can cut lodging costs. Last week's column discussed two more popular methods: staying in budget motels and staying on a college campus.

Still another possibility is hostels. Although hosteling was originally designed for young bikers and hikers, today's expanded program attracts persons of all ages. Some hostels, too, provide family units. For more information, write American Youth Hostels, National Campus, Delaplane, Va. 22025.

But perhaps the most appealing way to cut vacation lodging costs is to rent a housekeeping cabin or cottage in a state park.

This is easier to say than to do, as facilities are limited. But with an early start and a bit of luck you just might be able to get a reservation for this summer. Most parks rent by the week, but some accommodations are available for a shorter period.

MANY STATES offer everything from rustic cabins to lodges that can compete with the most modern resorts. Some parks, too, have very large units suitable for family reunions and multi-family vacations. And nearly all parks offer swimming, boating, fishing, horseback riding or other special attractions and recreational programs.

Where should you stay? Well, we've heard fine comments about Hickory Knob State Park Resort Park in South Carolina, the resort parks of Kentucky and some of the state parks in West Virginia.

But our own experience has been in Virginia, and we've been fortunate enough to spend a week or more at several of the eight state parks there that have cabins for rent.

IF YOUR'RE interested in combining a state park vacation with Bicentennial sightseeing, you might want to consider Seashore or Westmoreland.

Seashore is not far from the Williamsburg - Yorktown - Jamestown triangle. As for Westmoreland, it's within easy driving distance of the various tourist attractions around Washington and Fredericksburg. In fact, when we were there two or three summers ago, at least one family alternated a day of sightseeing with a day or two if fishing, swimming and boating.

If you'd like to know more about state parks or other tourist attractions in Virginia, write the Virginia State Travel Service, 6 North Sixth St., Richmond 23219, or the Division of Parks, 1201 State Office Building, Richmond 23219.

Space doesn't permit a full listing here, but if you'll check your library for the July 1975 issue of Changing Times magazine, you'll find a complete listing of addresses for every state where you can write for more information on state parks and other tourist attractions.

Happy vacationing!

Live Y'ers serve pancakes Saturday

The aroma of pancakes and sausages will fill the air at Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines, all day Saturday as the Live Y'ers, formerly known as the Women's Auxiliary, sponsor their 14th annual Pancake Day. Serving will be continuous from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Pancake flippers will be Charles McClellan, executive director of the Y; Stephen Jurco, chairman of the board; Dick Bueschel, Warren Lattof, Bernard Lee, "Uncle Joe" Lesniak, Jimmy Walker, Homer Nielsen and Rudy Kemp.

THE KITCHEN and dining room will be taken over for the day by the Live Y'er members — all volunteers — assisted by the Y senior citizens who call themselves the "Over The Hill Gang."

Proceeds will help the Live Y'ers reduce their pledge to the YMCA building fund. Mrs. Rudy Kemp, Des Plaines, is pancake day chairman; Mrs. Homer Nielsen, Arlington Heights, is Live Y'er president.

Tickets are $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children. They may be obtained at the Y in advance or at the door Saturday.

A WIG MAKES for a fast change hairdo but Alan Peters will see the real thing, hairdos created on the spot on members of the audience, at Clearbrook Center's winter luncheon to be held Sunday at the Arlington Park Hilton. Peters, Mrs. Steven Logan and Mrs. Harry Bystricky are committee members planning the benefit, which along with hairstyles for both men and women created by the Hair Jazzers of Arlington Heights, will also feature crepes, garden salad and cheesecake with strawberry sauce. Proceeds will help the center meet a $15,000 operating deficit. Tickets, $10, are available from the Hair Jazzers, 253-2463, or the center, 255-0120.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Exercise helps varicose veins

Would you please let me know if playing tennis, dancing or strenuous exercise can be harmful if one has varicose veins. I will be anxiously awaiting your answer, along with two of my friends who also have varicose veins.

No, it will not. If you just have dilated or varicose veins over the outside of the leg and the veins deep inside your leg muscles that you can't see are all right, the exercise will actually help. As you exercise, the venous blood in the legs is milked out of the leg by a massaging action of the contracting leg muscles.

The superficial veins drain into the deeper veins and emptying the deep veins helps drain the superficial ones.

If the superficial veins are all that are involved, you will not have any trouble with significant ankle swelling. When the deep veins are also involved you will have persistent swelling of the involved leg.

The best thing you can do short of surgery for removal of varicose veins is to prevent further dilation of the veins. To do this you need to avoid prolonged standing without moving, and to wear some external support hose. The external pressure helps prevent distention of the veins. Varicose veins develop because of overdistention. The veins have valves inside them to help move the blood uphill back to the heart. When the veins are overstretched, the valves no longer meet and the blood leaks downhill distending the vein and you see the varicose vein. I think it is a good idea for women to wear support hose of some type during pregnancy as the pressure on the deep veins in the pelvis contribute to overstretching and later varicose veins. This is particularly important to women who have a family history of varicose veins.

If you have swelling of your ankles with your varicose veins, then go ahead and exercise, but you might want to wear some support hose while doing it.

For more information on varicose veins send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 5-8. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, Texas 78292.

I have had my throid partially removed and am on two grains of thyroid a day, also Hydropress and have been on it for years, one or two a day depending on my pressure. Now I have been put on a medicine that I hate, in juice or not. Not only do I dislike the taste but the cramps and gas that I get from Kaon elixer are mean.

Now I see you tell another person to drink three glasses of orange juice a day. Perhaps I may solve my problems by doing just that but what size glasses please? I have always taken six ounces for breakfast, but that has been it. I'd appreciate any information that could help me get off the awful medicine.

You should follow your doctor's instructions as he knows what your potassium level is. You can discuss other sources of potassium with him and he may agree to let you take three 8-ounce glasses of orange juice a day.

You can also get a lot of potassium in milk. There is almost as much potassium in a quart of milk fortified with two per cent nonfat milk solids as there is in a quart of orange juice.

Salad mold recipe is worth repeating

Dear Dorothy: Some time back you had a molded salad recipe. It consisting of lime gelatin, cottage cheese, pecans and cucumber. I lost my recipe and wonder if you still have it.—Helen Robertson

It's worth repeating for everybody. Dissolve a package of lime gelatin in one and one-fourth cups of water and add a sprinkling of salt and a tablespoon of vinegar. Peel a large cucumber, chop it up and put in a colander to drain. Then add to the gelatin mixture. Put in a grated small onion, a pound carton of cottage cheese, drained well, one-half cup of mayonnaise and one-half cup of chopped nuts. Put into a greased quart-size mold. In a pretty copper mold, it makes an attractive dish garnished with bibb lettuce, cocktail tomatoes or watercress.

Dear Dorothy: I can't understand so many people having so much trouble with white nylons and polyesters becoming dingy or yellow. If these white synthetics would be washed only with white things, they wouldn't have this problem — synthetics are color scavengers.—Henry Scoll

Yes, but people get hurried and think that maybe this "one time" it won't happen. Always does, though, as my mail proves.

Dear Dorothy: Can you tell me how to remove candle wax from my wall-to-wall acrylic carpeting? A candle was turned over and left a large spot on the carpet.—Mildred Hahn

Unless the stain has been messed up, it usually is one of the easiest to get up. Scrape off as much of the wax as possible, then cover with a white blotter, paper napkins or tissue. Apply a barely warm iron to absorb the grease. Any stain remaining ought to come off with a good dry-cleaning solvent.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Northwest AAUW

"Over the hill but definitely not out of the running!" That's how Dorothy Koelling, program director at Northwest Suburban YMCA, describes the new breed of senior citizens with whom she works. Butterfly more dapper than moth

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Peter Gaska, 12, of West Allis, Wis., for his question:
WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A BUTTERFLY AND A MOTH?

Of all the insects, the favorites of most boys and girls are probably the butterflies and moths. The reason for this could be that they are the second largest group of insects, but old Andy suspects that children of all ages love them just because they are so beautiful.

If you have ever touched the wing of a butterfly or moth, you may have noticed a soft powdery material left on our fingers. If you were to look at this powder under a microscope, you would see that it resembles teeny, tiny scales. These scales cover the wings of butterflies and moths, and overlap each other link shingles on a roof. While there are a number of general ways to tell the moths from the butterflies, to be really sure you would have to remove all the scales and examine the veins of their wings.

To keep from marring these beauteous wings, however, let's look at their general differences. First, most butterflies are active during the day, while the moths are generally night fliers. Butterfly bodies are almost always slender and elegant, while moths are more on the plumpish side. When at rest, the moth sits with her fuzzy wings spread out flat. The butterfly will hold her wings gracefully over her back in tentlike fashion. If you notice one of these insects at rest, creep up very quietly, and you may get a chance to look at her antennae. The butterfly will have slender antennae, to match her slender body, and these end in small knobs. The antennae of the moth are shorter not knobbed, and are often featherlike.

Other small differences that may help separate one from the other are coloration and the tpe of home the caterpillar builds. Butterflies are by far the more dapper and colorful of the two. Moths tend to be a bit drab in dress. When the moth caterpillar is ready to undergo the process that will change it into a full-fledged moth, he spins himself a silken cocoon.

Few butterflies spin cocoons. A butterfly spins a button of silk and grips the button with her rear prolegs and hangs head downward. The pupa, which has already formed inside the caterpillar's skin, will wiggle free and attach itself to the silk button. A hard shell, or chrysalis, forms and the pupa then settles down to wait for her emergence as a butterfly.

The life cycle of all lepidoptera, or scaly-winged insects, goes through the same four stages. Life begins for each as an egg. As the egg hatches, the larva, or caterpillar, emerges and begins its part of the cycle. After the caterpillar has reached its full growth, the pupa, or resting stage, begins. The adult stage represents the completion of the life cycle.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the chronicles of Narnia to Eilleen Ratajczak, 11, of Tucson, Ariz., for her question:
WHAT CAUSES A FEVER?

The human body, a very complex structure, continuously adjusts to the exertions placed upon it. Many of its most remarkable accomplishments happen without our knowledge — such as a fever. When the body tissues are attacked by a sneaky bacterial infection or virus of some sort, a fever occurs to indicate that the body is trying to fight off the pesky invaders.

A fever generaly means that the sweat glands are closed off, and the tiny blood vessels near the skin are contracted. This sends more blood to the interior of the body, which brings more white cells on the march to fight the infection. With the rie in body temperature, many bacteria are killed. In an infectious disease, fever usually spreads throughout the body, but many times, such as in the case of an infected cut on the finger, the tissues surrounding the cut are feverish, but not the entire body. Doctors can tell a lot about the specific nature of a disease just by calculating the feverS frequency and severity.

To a burglar, that living room light means Mr. Jones is home.

To Mr. Jones in Florida, that's a comforting thought.

How do you keep an empty house from looking empty? With timing devices that turn lights on and off at pre-set times while you're away. To a would-be burglar, your house seems occupied.

Some devices have special light-sensitive cells that automatically turn a light on at dusk and off at dawn. Some allow the on-off cycle to occur several times a night. The craftiest burglar would never suspect.

The best time to use timers is while you're on vacation or on weekends away from home. But it's a good idea to use them any time you're away. A burglar can take advantage of an evening on the town as easily as a two-week vacation.

You can pick up these burglar-proofing devices from your hardware, department or discount store for a few dollars. And they don't use any more current than an electric clock. That's a small price to pay for all the protection you're getting.

No ordinary variety show for Telly

by JOAN HANAUER

Telly Savalas has done for middle-aged macho what Mae West did for geriatric innuendo.

Savalas is bald, slightly paunchy and a grandfather — and he has more sex appeal than actors half his age with twice his hair.

Having proved that he had the male version of "it" as Kojak each week, now Savalas is moving in as a song and dance man on a CBS special, "Telly . . . Who Loves Ya, Baby?" to air today from 9 to 10 p.m.

SAVALAS SINGS, dances a little and , amoung other things, does charming monolog on how a boyhood dream could come true that ends up with him showing off his thoroughbred racehorse, Telly's Pop, which won California's Triple Crown for 2-year-olds.

Savalas has class guests. Cloris Leachman, a jewel of a performer with more facets than a diamond, half-sings half-talks a monolog on "I Am An Actress."

Few actresses could get away with, no less charm an audience, by reproducing a first-grade recital of "Spot, The Dog Nobody Wanted," followed not long after by Lady Macbeth worrying about "out, damned spot, out."

Diahann Carroll also adds class to the proceedings — a gorgeous singer in a white, halter-topped gown who kids with Savalas in a duet duel called "We Were So Poor," then solos in "I Won't Last a Day Without You."

THE THIRD guest star is Barbara Eden, who comes on without her "I Dream of Jeannie" outfit and conjures up a nicely husky singing voice of her own.

Savalas talks and sings several songs, winding up with a sentimental "The Men in My Little Girl's Life."

He also goes ethnic, dancing with his brother, Teddy, not Demosthenes, who plays Stavros on "Kojak," to a folk tune played on the bazouki.

Can Kojak sing? He's no Frank Sinatra — but then who is, these days?

Wrong contract made

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

North and South were so busy arguing about whose fault it was that they failed to bid and make a club or diamond slam, that neitiher one noticed that South should have made his four-spade contract.

It seems that after winining the heart lead, South had played three rounds of trumps after which unfortunate start there was no way for him to score more than nine tricks.

South could have insured a 10th trick by playing only two rounds of trumps and then leading a diamond. If West ducked South would have his 10th trick; if West took his ace and led a second heart South should refuse to ruff. Then he would be able to ruff the next heart in dummy and score the rest of the tricks.

This type of play in one form or another occurs quite often and is well worth learning. As for the bidding we agree with both partners. Each one had bid badly.

Bell asks ICC to reconsider size of rate increase

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Pres. James Olson Tuesday said the company formally asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to reconsider its Feb. 4 service rate decision.

Citing "numerous errors" in the commission's recent approval of a $70 million rate hike, Olson said the utility will go to court if the agency does not grant the request.

The phone company had asked for a $186-million rate-increase package. The request for a rehearing was filed Friday in Springfield. If the ICC issues no statement by March 4, the request will be denied.

CRITICISM OF the Feb. 4 phone service pricing decision also is offered by Gov. Daniel Walker and State's Atty. Bernard Carey. They questioned the size of the rate hike. Carey said a study by his investigators shows a rate reduction is in order for Illinois Bell customers. A 20-cent pay phone call price and a 1977 starting date for charges on some directory assistance calls is included in the ICC grant.

Among Olson's remarks on the ICC rate increase decision are:

• The commission erred in its order for directory assistance charges that are different from the plan discussed in 11 months of hearings. Olson said the plan "would substantially increase directory assistance cost by requiring equipment additions and much greater operator work time to enable operators to determine, call-by-call, which calls are to be charged and which are not chargeable."

The ICC plan for a 30-cent monthly director assistance credit for each customer would result in revenue losses of more than $14 million a year, Olson said.

• The commission's order "erroneously overstated the revenues which will result from the rates therein approved and therefore, the rates will not produce the revenue authorized in the order," he said.

• The commission did not take account of cutbacks in customer demand due to the increase in multi-message unit and other charges, Olson said.

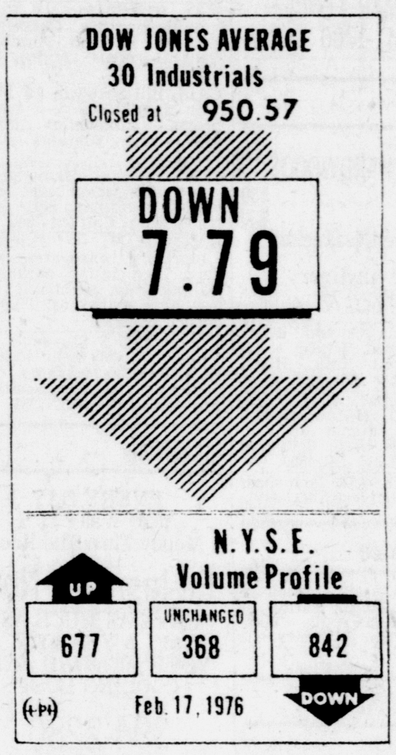
• The commission ruling that an 8.75 per cent rate of return is fair, was disputed by Olson. "The manifest weight of the evidence in the record shows that 9.5 to 10 per cent is the range of a proper rate return on the company's property," he said.

Telephone service may suffer if the ICC's "inadequate" rate decision is allowed to stand, Olson said.

IN A STATEMENT issued following the Feb. 4 ICC decision, Carey said the burden of the 20-cent phone charge for coin telephones will "fall on those who can least afford it, those who are too poor to mai tain a telephone in their home." The previous rate for coin telephone service was 10 cents.

A spokesman for the ICC in Chicago said the commission may decide within one week whether to review the decision. Bell serves more than 3 million customers in Illinois.

Caution causes stock price dip



NEW YORK (UPI) — Concern over the economic recovery and the third largest bank failure in U.S. history sent prices lower in fairly active trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, an 8.42-point loser Friday, lost another 7.79 points to 950.57. The blue chip indicator had been behind only about a point up until early afternoon.

Declines outdistanced advances, 842 to 677, while 386 remain unchanged among the 1,905 issues crossing the tape.

STANDARD & POOR'S 500-stock index gave up 0.62 to 99.05, and the NYSE common stock index, 0.32 to 52.95. The average price of an NYSE common share decreased by 20 cents.

Volume totaled 25,460,000 shares, up slightly from the 23,872,520 shares turned over Friday on the eve of the holiday weekend. The market was closed Monday for Washington's birthday.

The market retreated substantially in the early afternoon after the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported one measure of the nation's balance of payments was $2.1 billion in deficit for the final 1975 quarter. There was a $4.9 billion surplus in the third quarter; in the closing 1974 quarter there was a $4.9 billion deficit.

Wall Street observers said investor uneasiness also stemmed from the weekend failure of the Hamilton National Bank of Chattanooga, the third biggest bank insolvency in the nation's history.

PAN AMERICAN World Airways led the actives, up 5/8 to 7 1/8 on 450,100 shares. Pan Am officials last week said the airline would record a modest profit this year after seven consecutive yearly losses. Levitz Furniture was second, up 3/8 to 6 3/8 on 368,600 shares. America Telephone & Telegraph followed, up ½ to 55 5/8 on 286,600 sharss.

Among the hard-hit blue chips, Du pont lost 2 7/8 to 149 7 /8 and Eastman Kodak, which Friday reported lower earnings for both the fourth quarter and full year, 2¾. Exxon gave up 1 5/8 to 85¾ and General Motors, which will expand its second-quarter production by 60,000 cars, ¼ to 63.

Prices closed higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange, where the price of an average share gained six cents. Volume totaled 4,462,000 shares, compared with 3,418,000 shares Friday.

Electronic banking—Will it eliminate many jobs?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Americans cashed about 28 billion checks and made about 250 billion cash transactions in 1974. It is estimated check usage accounted for more than 90 per cent of the total dollar value of payments.

Banks, retail stores, bill collection agencies and various other businesses employ thousands of persons to process and record these transactions.

For the most part, workers are lower level white-collar employes. Typical are the bank teller, file clerk and supermarket checkout clerk.

The lower level white-collar employes may some day be an obsolete breed, according to a two-year study conducted for the National Science Foundation by the Arthur D. Little research firm.

THE REASON IS a new technology known as Electronic Funds Transfer.

"Basically, EFT is an effort to find a cheaper substitute for checks, and in some cases cash," says Martin Ernst, a Little vice president who was director of the study project.

"An example is the distribution of Social Security checks. Why not have an electronic network and on a given date your account is automatically credited," Ernst said.

"You could also do it for paying money. There are certain types of recurring payments, such as automobile loans, which people worry about. Why not authorize your bank to make it automatically. It can be done electronically without the paper work," he said.

In the banking business, fewer people would be required to process checks. Fewer tellers would be needed for deposits and withdrawals. In fact, with EFT, one may never have to set foot inside a bank.

"WHAT I THINK is important here is that this technology is taking away the starting white-collar jobs. These are jobs which people without college educations and fewer skills are able to move up from," Ernst said.

Ernst is quick to point out he is neither for nor against EFT. "Our assignment was to point out problems, not to solve them," he said.

Automation gradually dimished the blue-collar worker. Now EFT threatens to do the same thing to lower level white-collar employes.

"This is not something which will happen tomorrow. We are looking ahead to about 10 or 15 years," he said.

Gold medalist to speak at 'Skill Olympics' fete

Jon Henricks, holder of two Olympic gold medals, will speak today before the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America "Skill Olympics" luncheon at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago.

Henricks is vice president of corporate affairs for the DoAll Co., Des Plaines. He plans to discuss the shortage of skilled technical workers.

A swimming sprinter, Henricks won two gold medals in the 1956 Olympic competition. He was initiated into the International Swimming Hall of Fame at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in 1973.

Jon Henricks

THE VICA SESSION will include a preview of the 1976 Skill Olympics slated June 15-17 in Miami Beach, Fla. Some 4,000 vocational students from VICA's membership of 200,000 persons will compete for honors in vocational and industrial specialities.

Michael Wilkie, president of the DoAll Co., will be presented a plaque of appreciation by VICA representatives at a Feb. 19 tour of the company's productivity center.

The award is in recognition of the local company's contributions to the association and industrial vocational education. Arthur Meyers of the DoAll Technical Institute, is a member of the VICA Olympic Skills technical committee.

The luncheon Wednesday is jointly sponsored by VICA, the American Technical Society and Addressograph Multigraph Corp.

Natural rubber rebounds with Goodyear 'cancer' Rx

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the 1920s and '30s the automobile and rubber industries agonized over how to develop synthetic rubber. Now they are looking to use more natural rubber.

The increesed interest is underlined by a Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announcement that scientists working on its 10,000-acre Brazilian plantation have conqueed South American leaf blight, the rubber tree cancer that all but destroyed Brazil's great natural rubber forest in the Amazon Valley.

The victory over the leaf blight, achieved by Goodyear botanist Arnold Peterson, is so striking, says Jack Riedl, general manager of Goodyearrs rubber division that in years to come the world against will look to South America as well as Malaysia and Liberia for natural rubber.

All rubber products were made from natural rubber until the Germans produced Buna, the first successful synthetic, in the mid-1930s.

"Some people probably don't realize that natural latex still accounts for 25 per cent of all rubber consumed in the United States," Riedl said. The same ratio probably is roughly true for the world as a whole.

Natural rubber and the sophisticated synthetic rubbers both are needed. Each has advantages over the other. The toughness that gives modern auto tires long mileage is built into synthetics but the resilience and elasticity come from the natural gum and these qualities are vital to many rubber products.

Peterson, the Goodyear botanist, began his battle to conquer South American leaf blight three years ago.

The first year's effort produced a better leaf crop on the trees but no more rubber sap. The second year brought a small increase in rubber yield. The third year has brought harvest increases of 75 to 78 per cent. The results were inspiring, Riedl said, because Peterson started with extremely sick trees that looked hopeless.

As a result, Goodyear is going to resume planting on the plantation near Belem. Planting had been abandoned because of a severe attack of the tree cancer in the mid-1960s that almost wiped out the plantation.

A NEW COMPUTER system speeds parts orders for Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge auto dealers. Here, catalog details are viewed on a tabletop screen by an auto dealer partsman.

Microfiche makes job easier for auto dealer

Thumbing through page after page of parts books is no longer necessary for the auto dealer parts man, thanks to a new microfiche catalog system used by Chrysler Plymouth and Dodge dealers.

The new, compact system is called MOPAD. To look up a part number, a parts man picks out the plastic card that's color coded to indicate model year. A complete year of auto parts can be listed on four to six of the cards.

Since the catalog pages are reduced to 50 times less their normal size, the fiche are inserted in a table top projector to be read. Once projected, the catalog details are about 20 per cent larger than the size in paper catalogs.

In addition to being a time-saving device for the dealer employe, the system enables dealers to serve customer demands quickly, the company said. The company's 19 parts depots are linked by computer.

Goal is to humanize businesses

Image building is firm's specialty

by ROZ LISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Giant corporations around the globe are faced with an identtity crisis now that professional managers are running what used to be family-owned empires with distinctive personalitits.

Walter Landor Associates, a leading industrial designer, specializes in corporate image building to capture the identity of the modern-day company whose public profile too often conveys impersonality and overwhelming size.

Armed with international specialists and psychology, Landor dispatches teams to both hemispheres to revamp a client's logo, slogan and even its business forms.

"THE LOGO IS only the tip of the corporate image," said Walter Landor, president of the San Francisco-based firm, which has its headquarters on a landmark ferry boat. "The total image is conveyed through everything the company prints and the words it uses."

One coporate facelift recently made headlines when the National Broadcasting Co. abandoned its peacock for a new symbol, at enormous cost, only to discover it duplicated the logo designed for a Nebraska educational station for a mere $100.

"The more companies tend toward completely abstract symbols," Landor told UPI, "the more difficult it is for people to respond as human beings to the corporation and to give the corporation a unique personality of its own."

One of Landor's most challenging projects is Isetan, a Tokyo-based retail chain similar to New York's Bloomingdale's. The company's quest for a new identity was compounded by the Japanese language, which uses symbols to convey word meaning.

"OUR MAIN PROBLEM as a Western firm was to understand the mentality and cultural history of the Japanese so that we did not trespass into the area of language symbolism," said Landor.

Using a team of Americans, Europeans and Orientals, the design firm creattd a logo with visual meaning that was totally unrelated to any Japanese character.

As part of the image overhaul, the team redesigned the store's sales tags, sales, slips, packaging, monthly bills and accompanying envelopes, office forms, interior, directional signs, lighting system and even studied the sales staff's clothing and approach to customers.

"A tremendous amount of money can be saved by a corporation over the years in standardizing sales slips and other office forms," according to Landor. "Huge cost cavings can be achieved by reducing the time it takes to fill out forms and process the information."

PUBLIC RECOGNITION of a corporation's new image also can boost profits, he said.

The Isetan project, which still is being implemented, also posed another communications hurdle for the Landor team.

"The Japanese are more indirect than Westerners, and the Japanese client never expresses outright approval or disapproval," Landor said. In marketing surveys on proposed images for Iseta, for example, the ttam used indirect methods of questioning to probe the attitudes of Japanese consumers.

"A change in corporate identity is resented only if it is not an appropriate solution," he said. "The public responds positively if the image conveys that the corporation is run by people with hearts and souls rather than by neuters and computers."

U.S. bonds a top stock: treasurer

"Taking stock in America is the best blue chip investment anyone can make," said Francine Neff, U. S. treasurer, speaking Tuesday in Chicago.

Addressing a group of savings bond campaign chairmen, Mrs. Neff said the goal for 1976 bond sales is $7.6 billion. The Chicago metropolitan area goal is $375 million.

Gov. Daniel Walker's proclamation of Feb. 16-22 as "Minute Man Week," to promote savings bond sales, was read at the luncheon meeting held in the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

As the National Director of the U. S. Savings Bond Division, Treasury Dept., Mrs. Neff plugs the investment as a decision that's good for an individual and good for the country. A payroll savings plan allows a citizen to participate in the financing of our government in a voluntary way, she said.

MRS. NEFF SAID Treasury Sec. William E. Simon pegs the U. S. capital needs for the coming decade at $4 trillion to $4.5 trillion.

James E. Olson, president of Illinois Bell Telephone Co., urged the business executives to develop personal involvement in the savings bond sales campaign. He is Chicago region representative in the U. S. Industrial Payroll Savings Committee.

Series E savings bonds are securities available in denominations starting at $25. The interest rate is 6 per cent, with a five-year maturity. They can be exchanged in multiples of $500 for Series H bonds, which pay interest every six months.

Computer covers national mania for obscure stat

Jim Murray

Sportswriters, as a class, are noted for their addiction to statistics. Baseball is a game of inches, football is a game of yards, and basketball is regulated by seconds.

I once knew a guy, a sportswriter all his life, who was put to covering movies and, the first thing you knew, he was clocking things like "the longest movie kiss," "the most people killed in an adult Western," "the private eye hit oftenest over the head" or the most cigarets smoked by Bette Davis, or the most countries capured by Errol Flynn.

Some years ago Leonard Koppett, a baseball writer, famous for his passion for the all-purpose statistic, was observed struggling into a press box with a bulky suitcase. "What's he got in there?" someone wondered idly. Jimmy Cannon, casting a cursory glance at the bulging valise snapped tersely, "Decimal points."

It's the abstruse logarithm that fascinates the poets of the press box most — the non-winning times, the lap fractions of second-place finishers, the rap-outs at the lower heights by the pole vaulters. Never mind the third-down conversions, he likes the second-down yardages.

"Won" and "Lost" are no longer considered meaningful measures of prowess to the dedicated figure filbert. The language of sports has been enriched in the past few decades with the "earned run average," the "hang time" of punts. It's no longer the batting average but the "slugging" average. It's not whether you won or lost, it's the square root.

Managers and coaches have their own esoteric rating system. Baseball managers love guys who can bunt or hit to right. Home run hitters make them mutter in their sleep. Football coaches grade guys on how well they run their routes, or "slant" or "loop" in the line. Basketball coaches praise guys who can set a pick, regardless of what they do from the line.

And now, a whisky promotion has come along and attempted to computerize this national mania for the obscure stat, and perhaps prove that not all the best practitioners of sport are in the Super Bowl, the World Series, the Johnny Carson show, or even the Stanley Cup. They have come up with something called the "Productive Efficiency Rating," with a view to finding a (of course) "Seven Crowns of Sports" winner, who may not necessarily be O. J. Simpson, Johnny Bench, Jimmy Connors. Or it may even delve into the past and prove Babe Ruth was a bum and Dempsey a prelim fighter.

The program hoped to find out if the guy who really does hit to right, or moves the runner along, is really the MVP and not the hokey guy the writers awarded it to in a vote.

What they were trying to do was show that, say, a hockey goal scored in an 8-1 game against a backup goalie is not to be equated with one scored in overtime against the Philadelphia Flyers, or that a 30-save night against a bunch of slap-happy shots-on-goal players trying to wing in winners from the blue line is not all that impressive. That a 100-runs-batted-in year for a guy on a non-contending club who looks at second-line pitching all year is not all that valid.

They have come up with a few interesting oddities. A triple in baseball, for example, invariably results in 1.2 runs they say.

Since very few games are decided 1.2-0, and since the most triples hit in the big leagues last were by Mickey Rivers, who can triple on an infield hit, you have to wonder if the computer can be trusted.

If one were to hope the greatest player in the NFL last year would turn out to be Otis Sistrunk, or the best basketball player Toby Kimball, or the best baseball player John Wockenfuss, the hope is wasted. The computer turns out to be just another bubblegum card collector. It's torn between Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Julius Erving in basketball, O. J. Simpson and Franco Harris in football, and Joe Morgan and Fred Lynn in baseball.

It did throw Connors out of the tennis scene and correctly identified Manuel Orantes as the Player of the Year even before Forest Hills. But otherwise, it's as big a chalk player as Sports Illustrated. It doesn't think any more of a guy who takes two and hits to right, or sets the pick, or provides the trap block, than any other autograph hound.

Alas! Not even a computer can be trained to watch the guards or reserve judgment till it studies the films. It throws its hat in the air over home runs and touchdowns and service aces and one-putts the same as the rest of us.

Conant wins thriller, gains South lead

by ART MUGALIAN

The Conant Cougars overcame stiff odds and a full-court press to defeat Schaumburg 51-49 Tuesday night at the Saxons' gym, knocking Schaumburg from first place in the Mid-Suburban League South Division basketball race.

The victory puts Conant in the driver's seat with a 9-2 record.

The Cougars survived a last-minute surge by Schaumburg which narrowed a five-point lead down to one with 13 seconds left, but a shot by Jon McIlraith fell short and Conant held on with the rebound and a free throw by Rob Totten.

Cougar guard Pete Scaffidi led his team with 18 points on nine field goals. Totten and Brian O Donnell hae 13 each, including 16 free throws zetween them, all but five in the second half.

Conant rebounded from a disastrous first quarter which saw Schaumburg build a 23-12 lead almost before the visitors knew what hit them. Schaumburg shot 10 for 13 in that first period, led by 6-3 guard Ed Chmiel who had four straight baskets. But Chmiel sprained an ankle late in the quarter and was in and out the rest of the way.

Schaumburg finished South Division play at 9-3. The Saxons can win a division title only if Conant is upset at Forest View Friday.

"We shot the whole game like Schaumburg did in the first quarter," said Conant coach Dick Redlinger, whose team is now 13-7 for the season. "The kids played well, they hung in there and they really hustled."

Redlinger had planned to switch zone defenses to confuse Schaumburg, but nothing stopped the Saxons in the opening minutes. Chmiel and Dan Breen scored from outside and John Chmiel broke free a couple times for easy baskets underneath.

"We decided to stay with the 2-3 zone," said Redlinger. "The 2-3 is what cooled them off in the second quarter."

While Scaffidi hit from the baseline and Totten drove the lanes and fed off, the Cougars closed ground, finally pulling even 31-31 on a pair of Totten free throws at the start of the second half.

"We didn't have one of our better shooting nights," said Saxon coach Joe Breault. "But we weren't getting too many open shots or second chances either."

Schaumburg shot just 35 per cent from the field and missed seven of 16 free throw attempts. The Cougars were 17 of 38 from the floor and 17 of 24 from the line.

Conant outrebounded their opponents 29-21.

The lead changed hands several times in the third quarter before the Cougars opened a 47-44 fourth period edge on a fast break layup and two free throws by O'Donnell.

With 1:36 left Totten dropped in two more free throws for what looked like a safe 50-45 lead.

But a short turnaround jumper by John Chmiel and a baseline drive by McIlraith with just 17 seconds left cut the margin to one. McIlraith's missed attempt from the top of the key with 8 seconds remaining, following a Conant turnover, was the Saxons' last chance.

Totten, whose final free throw iced the victory, finished with eight assists. O'Donnell had 10 rebounds to lead both teams. Ed Chmiel and McIlraith had 16 points each for Schaumburg. John Chmiel had 11 for Schaumburg, now 19-4.

Meadows romps; Pirates, Grens, West triumph

Led by Terry Moran's 16 first half points and helped by dominating control of the boards, the Rolling Meadows Mustangs buried Forest View Tuesday night, 84-50.

"It's one of those nights we've been waiting for forever," said Mustang coach Bill Weinberg after the game. Weinberg praised his team's over-all play, and especially singled out Moran.

"He's (Moran) started to come on late in the year and just had a helluva game," Weinberg said.

Both clubs shot at a blistering pace from the field — Forest View, 61 per cent, and Meadows 62 per cent. The Mustangs opened a 38-25 halftime lead with a red-hot 18 for 25 barrage, 72 per cent accuracy.

The Mustangs dominated on the boards, pulling down 38 to only 12 for Forest View.

The 84 points is a high season mark for the Mustangs, and just about everybody had a hand in the scoring honors. Moran led with 20, followed by Bill Wissen with 16, John Carbery with 16 and Jerry McGill with 10. Tom Lunak led the Falcons with 20.

more to come

PIRATES TOPPLE KNIGHTS

Ken Reid teamed with Kevin McKenna to dominate the backboard and the scoreboard Tuesday night in leading Palatine to a 66-57 triumph over visiting Prospect.

The Pirates, who have yet to win a game in their own North Division, captured the second straight crossover contest by jumping into an 18-10 first quarter lead and never relinquishing control.

Reid dropped in four buckets during the Palatine uprising and Al Knotek chipped in with a trio of field goals.

McKenna, nursing a sore ankle, still managed to maintain his hefty scoring average, zeroing in on 10 of 21 afield and finishing with 24 points. Reid clicked on nine of 17 from the floor for 18 total.

McKenna and Reid also hauled in 15 and 13 rebounds, respectively, while helping the hosts dominate the boards.

Heading up the Knight attack were Brad Millar with 17 points, Tim Kubicki with 11 and Chris Etter with 10. Prospect now owns an 8-15 overall log.

Doug Buenzow chipped in with 10 for the Pirates, who are now 6-14 on the season.

GRENS POST 18TH WIN

Dave Hornacek and Mark Sass combined for 37 points Tuesday night to lead the Elk Grove Grenadiers to a 53-40 win over the hosting Hoffman Estates Hawks.

The win pumped the Grens' Mid-Suburban League South Division slate to 7-4 and their overall record to 18-5.

"Our defense really tied them up in the second half," said Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier. "We held them to just three baskets in the fourth quarter."

The Grens took an early lead and never lost it as they topped the Hawks for the third time this season.

Hornacek led the Grens with 21 points and Sass canned 16.

Ron Warring chipped in 16 pints to lead Hoffman. Jeff Curtin added 12.

The two teams battled to a 31-31 standoff in rebounding.

WARRIORS BLITZ CARDS

The Maine West Warriors gave an impressive demonstration of 'both ends of the court' basketball Tuesday night in a convincing 78-49 non-conference victory over Arlington.

Spotting the visiting Cardinals an early 7-2 lead, Maine West forged back to tie the game on several occasions in the first quarter.

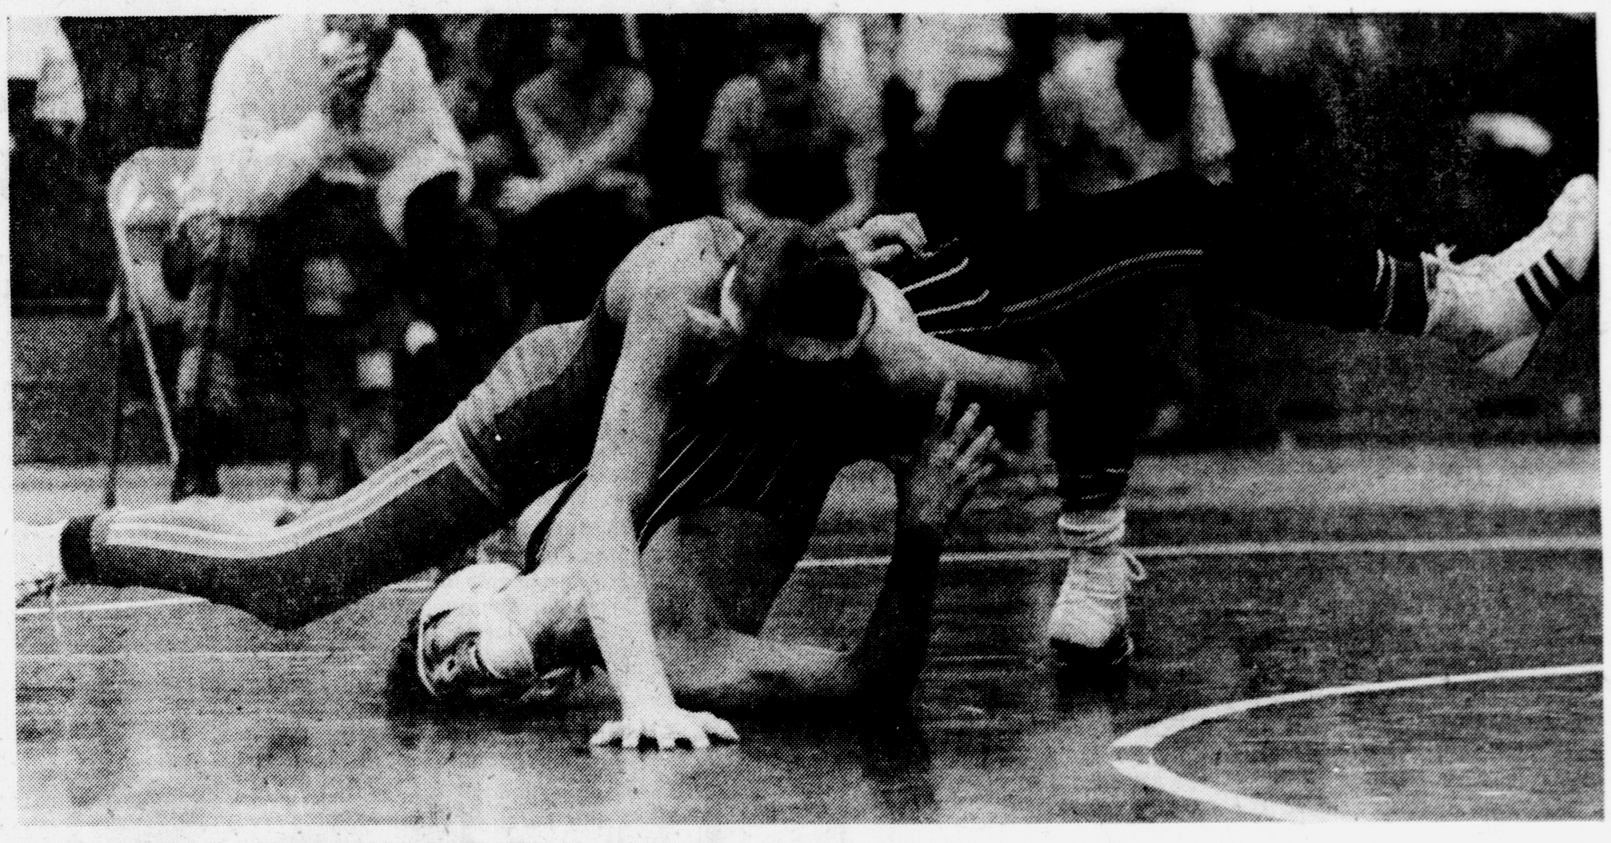
Strong rebounding on the defensive boards and good movement on offense were key factors in the Warriors' comeback. Baskets by Buddy Doroskin and Bob Zuccarini put Maine West up, 17-13, at the quarter's end.

The momentum and fluidity achieved by Maine West in the first quarter was maintained the rest of the way. Maine West outscored the Cardinals 40-24 in the final half.

Arlington was limited to one shot by the Warriors throughout much of the contest, which provided the hosts with a substantial edge in field goals, 33-22.

Senior forward Bill Fininis led Maine West, now 14-9, with 20 points, while Zuccarini scored 17 points.

Center Greg Kloiber topped the Arlington ledger with 14. The Cards are now 9-13 overall.



COLD SHOULDER. Rick Gauger tries some pinning combinations on Frank Roemisch of Forest View in their 112-pound quarterfinal bout at the Ridgewood district tourney. Gauger eventually won by fall at 3:20 and went on to qualify, helping his Warriors win the team championship.

DRIVING AGAINST a Downers Grove defender is Hersey's Debbie Barnd during Hersey hosted tournament.

Only four Mid-Suburban League girls' basketball teams remain undefeated in division play after Tuesday night's action.

In the North Division, Fremd had a close call at Buffalo Grove before winning 63-56. Wheeling matched Fremd's 2-0 record with a convincing 65-33 victory over visiting Palatine.

Meanwhile, the top teams in the South were narrowed to Hoffman Estates and Conant. The Hoffman Hawks held off a tough hosting Elk Grove team to win 54-47. It was Hoffman's second divisional triumph without a loss. It was the Grenadiers first setback.

The Conant Cougars notched their first division win in as many tries with a 36-27 decision at Forest View (1-1).

In the other MSL game, Hersey evened its record at 1-1 with a 43-32 victory over visiting Arlington. The Prospect-Schaumburg game was called because there were no referees.

Other action had Sacred Heart stopping Lake Park, 38-27; Maine West losing its season opener to Highland Park, 61-40; and Rolling Meadows notching its first win in seven tries, edging Addison Trail 27-19.

Fremd, holder of an 8-0 over-all record, appeared headed for still another romp against the Bison. The Vikings jumped out to a 31-12 first quarter lead.

"They (Bison) just kept saying they wouldn't give up," said Buffalo Grove coach Ann Penstone. "They said they were going to give them a good game no matter what."

The Bison held Fremd to just two points in the second quarter to trail at the half, 33-22. Buffalo Grove cut the lead to four with a minute to go before Fremd put it out of reach.

Heidi Giesler led Fremd with 16 points. Allsmiller was tops for the Bison with 11. Buffalo Grove had won three straight coming into the contest. "Maybe somebody will take us seriously now," said Penstone.

Fremd's important win sets up the crucial matchup with Wheeling on Thursday with the division title quite possibly on the line.

Wheeling romped to its eighth win without a loss behind Sandy Rainey's 14 points. Marcy Mazzetta was high for the Pirates with 12.

The Hoffman Estates Hawks notched their sixth game in eight tries as Clare Dowling tossed in 26 — her high game and also the area high game of the season. Kim Richardson led the Grenadiers with 13.

Forest View ran into a tough defensive quintet in Conant, scoring only three in the third quarter. The Cougars put the game away in that period with 12 points. Kathy Evans scored 11 to led Conant to its seventh win in nine games.

(See scoreboard for statistics on all games.)

READY OR NOT. Rather than a parking lot for trucks and cranes, the main Olympic Stadium in Montreal will be the site of track and field events this summer.

Chicago topples Phoenix in OT

Jack Marin scored six points in the final 19 seconds of overtime Tuesday night to pace the Chicago Bulls to a 114-111 victory over the Phoenix Suns, breaking a three-game losing streak.

Marin put the Bulls ahead 110-109 with a layup with 19 seconds to play. Then he intercepted a Suns pass and banked in a five foot off balance shot with six seconds remaining. After a basket by Paul Westphal for the Suns, Marin canned two free throws with one second left.

Marin came off the bench after the first period to lead all scorers with a season high 34 points. Bob Love had 31, 24 of them in the first half. Starting center Elvin Adams of Phoenix had 32 points.

Phoenix sent the game into overtime when Curtis Perry scored on a tipin with three seconds remaining in regulation time. Chicago had led 81-76 going into the final period when the Suns came back to tie the game at 93-93 with just over three minutes to play.

But Love put the Bulls ahead with a layup with 2:40 left and then added four points and Marin two before Phoenix scored the final eight points of the period, four from Adams and two from Westphal, to tie.

Sale of Giants bogs down again

A tedious, point-by-point approval of a sale memorandum by directors of the National Exhibition Co. may delay transfer of the San Francisco Giants to Bob Lurie and Bob Short for several days, the attorney for the company said Tuesday.

"I doubt if we'll have a decision today," James L. Hunt said after meeting with directors of NEC, the parent company of the financially ailing National League team. "It might be a couple of days, maybe longer. Points that have to be renegotiated might stretch it out."

The Lurie and Short combine made an $8 million cash offer for the franchise last week, but Hunt said, "It is much more complicated than the flat offer made in court last week. Getting the exact terms of the cash transaction is not simple. There probably will be counter-proposals and counter-counter proposals.

"However, we're hopeful that everything will be worked out as quickly as possible."

Ali on the ropes with head cold

A coughing, nose-dripping Muhammad Ali cancelled a sparring session Tuesday but gave a crowd of 600 onlookers one of his typical monlogue performances.

"Patrice Lumumba, where are you?" shouted Ali. "Remember the Congo!", referring to the fact the challenger Jean-Pierre Coopman is Belgian. The heavyweight title bout is set for Friday at the Roberto Clemente Municipal Coliseum. "I'm here to talk, not to fight," Ali told the crowd.

During a light workout of rope skippping and punching the bag, the champion sweated profusely, coughed and blew his nose on his towel. However, he insisted, "I'm in top condition."

Aggie cagers forced to sidelines

Attorneys for Texas A&M basketball starters Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams, suspended by the Southwest Conference, tried and failed Tuesday to win resinstatement for the players, thus preventing them from appearing in Tuesday night's Aggie-Houston game.

The lawyers apparently planned another attempt today to win a temporary restraining order that would allow Godine and Williams to participate in the remainder of the schedule for the league-leading Aggies.

Godine and Williams, both freshmen, were suspended by the conference last Sunday. League officials have refused to state publicly why the action was taken, although subsequent reports have indicated the suspensions resulted from alleged recruiting violations.

Vilas back in tournament form

Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina used a hard volley and a strong backhand Tuesday to beat Anand Amritraj of India in the first round of the $60,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic, 7-6, 6-2. Vilas, 23, who had rested from tournament competition the last 10 weeks, won the tiebreaker, 7-1, as Amritraj lost all four of his serves.

Second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Barcelona, Spain, took his first-round match over Ray Moore of Johannesburg, South Africa, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3. Earlier in the tourney, Billy Martin, the 1975 NCAA champion from UCLA, beat Onny Parun of Wellington, New Zealand, 6-1, 7-5.

Meanwhile, back in the courts . . .

The estranged wife of Charles O. Finley has accused him of failing to file federal income tax returns for the company his sports franchises, including the Oakland Athletics . . . Heirs of race car driver Mark Donohue, killed last August in a practice round for the Austrian Grand Prix, Tuesday filed a $20 million damage suit against the makers of his Helmet (Bell Helmets, Inc.) and auto tires (Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.) . . .

Diablo, one of the nation's top four-year-olds last year and third-place finisher in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was operated on Tuesday for a broken ankle suffered in the seventh race at Santa Anita Monday, and will not be destroyed . . . The jury hearing the multi-million dollar suit against the American League was dismissed Tuesday and the case — as per agreement — was continued until April, 1977.

AKC figures show Poodles down

The registration figures just released for 1975 by the American Kennel Club seemed to reflect the state of the economy during the year. Individual registrations declined 7.9 per cent for the year, down to 1,022,849 from 1,103,249 in 1974.

Of the 121 recognized breeds, seven in the top 30 showed increases in 1975: Dobermans, Cocker Spaniels, Golden Retrievers, Siberian Huskies, Lhasa Apsos, English Springer Spaniels and Shih Tzu. Increased Doberman registrations were particularly striking in the face of the general downturn. For the year, 57,336 Dobes were registered, placing them in the fourth spot among the top 10. In 1974 they were in sixth place.

Poodles, although still the number one dog in registrations, fell off in 1975, actually 19 per cent declining to 139,750 from 1974's 171,550.

And about the top 10, here they are: Poodles, German Shepherds, Irish Setters, Doberman Pinschers, Beagles, Dachshunds, Cocker Spaniels, Miniature Schnauzers, Labrador Retrievers and in No. 10, Collies.

Feeding time —

A dog is basically a creature of habit and should be fed at the same time each day. A new puppy should be fed small amounts at regular intervals throughout the day. This helps in the digestion of his food, since he requires more food per pound of body weight than grown dogs, but can't digest as much at one time.

As the dog grows older, the number of feedings should be reduced. Most grown dogs do well on one meal a day. Some owners prefer to feed a snack in the morning and a full meal at night.

Keep in mind the most important point, once you have established a regular feeding time, stick to it. You know how your stomach feels when you go past a normal meal time, then remember how your dog must feel when he gets fed just once during the day, and the meal is late.

Similar breeds confusing —

Dog owners who occasionally become confused by look-alike breeds of dogs should not consider themselves unusual.

In our country today, there are a number of breeds that even confuse the experts. For example the No. 4 dog in the A.K.C. listings, the Beagle. There is a 13-inch and a 15-inch. In Canada they go to a 16-inch dog. Of course, what really throws people is when they see a Harrier, they think it is a large Beagle, or a small Fox Hound.

Among the toy breeds years ago, it was pretty much of a foregone conclusion what the breeds were. Today, however, it's another story. With the introduction of a number of new breeds, some folks call a number of look-alikes a Pekingese, when they could be a Lhasa Apso or a Shih Tzu.

Barks & Bays —

If you have not done so, it's time to have that Christmas puppy checked for shots by your veterinarian.

Fyfe sets Lawrence scoring mark

Special to the Herald

APPLETON, WIS. — With a 19-point effort, Doug Fyfe became the all-time leading basketball scorer in Lawrence University history at Grinnel, Ia.

Fyfe's effort, the only bright spot in a 92-84 Lawrence defeat at the hands of the Grinnell Pioneers, gave him a career mark of 1,260 points, topping Joel Ungrodt's record 1,247 points set in the early 1960's. Fyfe has six games remaining in his Lawrence University career to add to his record.

To become the highest point scorer in Lawrence basketball history, Fyfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fyfe, 21 S. Glenwood, Palatine, has had to face four losing seasons of play.

But Fyfe's concerns about playing the game exceed a simple "winning is everything" philosophy. The ultimate thrill for any sports figure is to achieve a victory, and Fyfe agrees that "winning is great," but he also has learned to emphasize self-discipline and individual improvement.

"Any team's goal is to have a winning season," he said. "But losing a game doesn't mean a wasted evening if you do the best you can."

Fyfe's attitude toward basketball also has been an asset to the team. Viking Coach Bob Kastner praised his team efforts. "Doug is an extremely dedicated person. He is a student of the game and works continually to improve his playing as well as that of the team." Kastner also said that Fyfe has assisted with coaching responsibilities while serving as co-captain of the team the last two seasons.

Athletics have always been an important part of Fyfe's career as a student. A 1972 graduate of Palatine High School, he was named the basketball team's most valuable player his senior year. In addition to playing basketball for four years, Fyfe also lettered in football and golf.

When Fyfe came to Lawrence he decided to concentrate on one sport: basketball, and pursue other non-athletic activities offered by a small college.

His career as center of the Vikings has been impressive. As a freshman, the 6-foot Fyfe captured honors as team high scorer. During his junior season he racked up 398 points in 22 games to merit the same recognition and added 354 points as a sophomore.

The Vikings' 1974-75 season ended with a disappointing 5-17 record. With few returning upperclassmen and nine incoming freshmen players, the Vikes suffered the pains of a young team.

But the season did provide an individual victory for co-captain Fyfe. He was named to the All-Midwest Conference second team. He was the fourth leading scorer in the conference and team leader in rebounds as well as in scoring.

This winter Fyfe is averaging 18.1 points per game. The Vikings' conference record to date is 2-10; overall the Vikes are 6-10.

For Fyfe that record is a victory in itself. Coach Kastner sees an improved season as a "well deserved pay-off for sticking with the team through many defeats."

Fyfe also has found satisfaction in other ways at Lawrence. An English major, he also has pursued his interest in dramatic studies by taking a number of courses in the theatre department. As a sophomore he was cast in the spring production of Dion Boucicault's "Old Heads and Young Hearts," playing the part of Colonel Rocket.

Becoming a high school English teacher and basketball coach are Fyfe's tentative post-graduate plans. Last year, he spent a term student-teaching in English and social studies at James Madison Junior High in Appleton, while also directing a student dramatic production.

As a referee for on-campus sports, Fyfe keeps in touch with intramural athletics. He is a member of the Lawrence Letterman's Club and secretary of his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi.

Like many seniors, Fyfe is not exactly sure where he will be a year from today. He may be a coach rather than a player. If so, he will probably be telling his players about the value of participating in sports. That philosophy has been a successful one for him.

TRAVELERS WIN PAIR

The Travelers sponsored by Lattof Chevrolet defeated a strong St. Emily's team 54-50 as Williams hit for 15 points followed by Jachec's 14. Jachec kept the Travelers in the game as he controlled both boards while pulling down 21 rebounds. St. Emily's Florey was high point man with 24 points but couldn't keep his team from losing its third game of the year.

The Travelers first league win resulted in an easy victory over Wilmette 81-65 as Jachec and Calicchio ripped the nets for 22 each, both had help from Best and Tite as both hit for 10 points each. Once again it was Jachec's board work as he pulled down 21 rebounds for the second game in a row. The Travelers 22-2, are favorites to capture the second annual Lattof Invitational Basketball Tournament being held in March.

Swimming

Camp Duncan

The Camp Duncan YMCA Swim Team experienced a bittersweet victory this past weekend as they went up against and defeated the National Champions, B.R. Ryall YMCA in a dual meet competition. The CDY Dolphins were divided into the Gold and Blue teams with the Gold team swimming against Ryall's National Team at Volo and the Blue traveling to Glen Ellyn to swim the balance of their team.

The victoy was bittersweet in that while the Gold Girls and the Blue Girls and Boys were able to defeat Ryall, the Gold Boys suffered their first loss of the season. Meet scores: Gold CDY Girls 183, B.R.R. Girls 166; Gold CDY Boys 154, B.R.R. Boys 192; Blue CDY Girls 212, B.R.R. Girls 135; Blue CDY Boys 159;, B.R.R. 132.

The quality of swimming in the Gold Meet could be shown in the fact that a National Record fell during the course of the meet. The Camp Duncan Junior Girls 200 yard Free Relay, including Linda Walkowiak, Chris Takata, Sharon Ratcliffe and Sue Cripe, set a new National Record, breaking the old record which was held by Indian Boundry YMCA.

State asked to disclose names of suspended doctors

The Illinois Medical Society and its Chicago counterpart asked the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid Tuesday for names of 17 doctors who have been suspended from the Illinois Medicaid program so they can begin their own investigations.

In a separate action, the Better Government Assn. asked the department to withhold Medicaid payments from laboratories which offered BGA and federal investigators kickbacks at a dummy medical clinic.

The Illinois State Medical Society and the Chicago Medical Society sent a telegram to Public Aid Director James Trainor saying they plan to investigate doctors whom the state suspended from further participation in the Mediaid program.

"Full disciplinary action, including revocation of licenses and expulsion from medical society membership must be initiated, if warranted, against these individuals," the telegram said.

City to hire 400 policemen

Mayor Richard J. Daley Tuesday said the city will hire 400 more police officers under a quota system in accordance with an order issued by U.S. District Court Judge Prentice H. Marshall.

During a news conference, Daley also said results of a new examination for police applicants were submitted Tuesday to federal court.

Daley previously said the city would not hire any police officers under a racial and sexual quota system unless assured by Marshall that some of the $95 million in federal revenue-sharing funds being withheld from the city would be released.

Marshall ordered the funds withheld because the Chicago Police Dept. was allegedly discriminatory in its hiring and testing of applicants.

Illinois briefs

'Cuts imperil U.S. security'

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Tuesday if Congress substantially cuts President Ford's proposed $112.7 billion defense budget, it will "risk U.S. security."

"We have to dispel the illusion that the defense budget is a horn of plenty from which funds can be drawn without severe damage, for other national programs," Maj. Gen. George S. Brown said in a speech to the Chicago Rotary Club.

"Congressional cuts of the magnitude of recent years ($4 billion to $8 billion) . . . will cut into U.S. military capabilities, continue trends which would move the United States to a point of insufficiency and risk U.S. security by unnecessarily injecting a fundamental instability into an already confused world situation."

Brown's speech came only hours after Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld told President Ford and GOP congressional leaders in Washington that the Soviet Union is ahead of the United States in developing all major conventional military weapons.

Railroad loses $31.1 million

The bankrupt Rock Island R.R. made a profit of $4.7 million in the final quarter of 1975, but lost $31.1 million for the entire year in 1975, it was announced Tuesday.

Rock Island Trustee William Gibbons said he views the fourth quarter profit with "a very guarded sort of optimism" because traffic on the line declined in January. "It's coming back now, but slowly," he said.

Strike injunction issued

A St Clair County judge Tuesday issued a temporary injunction ordering striking members of the Dupo Federation of Teachers Local 1732 back to their classrooms.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph Cunningham also scheduled a hearing on the strike for 9:30 a.m. next Tuesday.

The 57 teachers, who closed all four Dupo schools with a walkout Monday, were ordered back to their classrooms Wednesday. The 1,600 pupils in the Dupo district have missed two school days so far.

1.6 million registered voters

The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners said Tuesday it expects about 1.6 million voters to be registered for the March 16 primary election.

Registration in the city ended Tuesday and board chairman John Hanly estimated 100,000 persons would register on the last day possible. He said registration stood at 1,587,000 Tuesday morning.

"We will acquire somewhere in the range of 100,000 registrations today, but when we canvass, we'll strike some," he said. "I still expect we'll have a net gain, that is, add more than we strike."
